By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

Three former colleagues of Miss Mildred E. Gillars, 48, known as "Axis Sally" because of her wartime broadcasts from Germany, yesterday coldly and indifferently put the finger on her as a Nazi propagandist.

The attractive silver-haired defendant is facing a possible death sentence in District Court on treason charges stemming from the broadcasts in which she is alleged to have told United States troops that the war was futile and to quit. (Under the law, two witnesses to each overt act are required to prove treason.—Editor's Note.)

Threatened by Prisoners

How American soldiers reacted to such pleas was described by one of the witnesses, Miss Inge Sylvia Doman, 32, blonde former German overseas radio announcer, in telling of a conversation she said she had with Miss Gillars on a train in Germany in 1944.

The witness said that Miss Gillars told her of being threatened by imprisoned Yanks when she sought to interview them. (Such interviews were recorded and beamed to the United States by the Nazi propaganda radio.)

"How did she say she was threatened?" Prosecutor John . Kelley, jr., inquired.

"With words. She said she had some difficulties because the soldiers didn't like her to be there, and she had to leave."

Witness Denies Jealousies

The full-bosomed, statuesque witness, a divorcee, was garbed in a smart sand-colored suit and wearing a blue shirt open at the throat.

In answer to a query by Defense Counsel James J. Laughlin she said she knew Dr. Otto Koischwitz (former Nazi radio official and former fiance of Miss Gillars who died in 1944) "only slightly."

"Miss Doman, weren't you a little jealous of Miss Gillars?" pursued Laughlin.

"No, my duties were different. I had no reason to be jealous," the witness replied evenly, her English unmarred by any trace of accent.

Earlier Miss Doman told the court that while she was a German citizen she was never a member of the Nazi party. She said she had lived in the United States from 1924 to 1932 with her parents, her father having married an American opera singer. From 1932 to 1937 she lived in Switzerland, she testified, and returned to Germany in 1939 as a secretary in the German Foreign Office, later becoming an announcer for the Reich radio.

Identifies Defendant

Answering a question by Kelley, Miss Doman said: "I do know Mildred Gillars," and she nodded curtly toward where the defendant sat toying nervously with a handkerchief.

The witness said she had seen Miss Gillars "face to face about 10 times" and had watched her broadcast, disc jockey style, about twice.

She said the defendant would play some dance records and read in something about the title of the song.

Cross-questioned by Laughlin, Miss Doman said she recognized Miss Gillars although she hadn't seen her since 1944 because "she looks very much like she did except she had black hair." She added that the defendant usually wore black slacks, black jacket and a black cap when she was around the studio.

At one point, Miss Doman ex-

Home Rule Hopes Now Rest in Senate

New House Committee Setup Unfavorable to Plan on Past Records

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Formation of a new District committee setup in the House yesterday decisively shifted the scene for action on Washington home rule to the Senate.

The District group in the House, meeting to organize, agreed to place home-rule legislation in the hands of a subcommittee, a majority of whose members opposed home-rule legislation in the last Congress.

Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.), chief sponsor of the Washington home-rule bill in the last Congress, greeted the new line-up with apparently mixed feelings.

At first he said "home rule legislation ought to rest very peacefully" in the new subcommittee.

But a little later, after Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.) declared "I'll guarantee I won't try to strangle opportunity to vote on any bill," Auchincloss said he was perfectly satisfied with the setup of the new subcommittee.

In the subcommittee reorganization, the separate home-rule subcommittee which Auchincloss headed last year was scrapped, and its remaining members were assigned to the District Judiciary Subcommittee, which will now take jurisdiction over home-rule bills. The Judiciary Subcommittee line-up will be:

Representative Oren Harris (D., Ark.), chairman, and Representatives Thomas G. Abernethy (D., Miss.), Robert E. Jones, jr., (D., Ala.), Olin E. Teague (D., Tex.), Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.), Auchincloss and John J. Allen, jr., (R., Calif.).

Jones and Allen served with Auchincloss on last year's Home Rule Subcommittee. Allen supported the home-rule bill; Jones did not join actively in the drive for passage, but did not opose the measure. The four others assigned to the Judiciary group did oppose last year's bill, but some have said their votes this year would be guided by the kind of home-rule bill that is presented.

Chairman McMillan said his earlier announcement that Representative Monroe M. Redden (D., N. C.), rather than Representative Teague, would serve on the Judiciary group was an error.

Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.) said he felt that the House District Committee line-up should parallel that of the Senate committee where there is a three-member Home Rule Subcommittee headed by Senator Estes Kefauver

GOP Offers Two Housing Bills Today

House Measure Calls for 810,000 Units in 6 Years, Senate's for 600,000

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

GOP-sponsored substitutes for the Administration's public housing program will be introduced today on both sides of Congress.

Thirteen Republican Senators, including Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) and the "Young Turks" bloc who tried to unseat him as policy chairman, joined in one measure calling for the construction of 600,000 public housing units in six years.

Ten House Republicans are backing a slightly different measure calling for the construction of 810,000 public housing units in six years.

Direct Loan Provision

The bill sponsored by the House group also makes provision for direct loans for lower middle income family housing, and for improvements in FHA financing of private home construction.

Taft said the Senate group had decided the matter of improvement in FHA financing, loans to veterans, and financing of cooperatives should be taken up in a separate measure.

"We should face the public housing issue directly in one bill," Taft declared.

Both the Senate and House GOP versions call for a more modest public housing program than that asked by the Administration, whose bill calls for 1,050,000 public housing units in seven years.

The slum clearance provisions of all three measures are identical. Virtually identical provisions for housing research likewise are found in all three measures.

Estimated Cost of Bills

The Senate Republican bill would cost the Federal Government 240 million dollars a year after four years, when maximum construction is reached. The House GOP version would cost an annual 320 million dollars after four years and the Administration bill would cost 445 million dollars.

The Administration program would be amortized over 40 years compared with 45 years for the two GOP bills.

The Senate measure was made public at a news conference by Senator Raymond E. Baldwin (R., Conn.). Cosponsors include Senators Taft, Ralph Flanders (Vt.), Charles Tobey (N. H.), George Aiken (Vt.), Margaret Smith (Me.), Wayne Morse (Oreg.), Leverett Saltonstall (Mass.), Milton R. Young (N. Dak.), William Knowland (Calif.), Henry Cabot Lodge, jr. (Mass.), Edward J. Thye (Minn.) and Irving M. Ives (N. Y.)

The House Republicans provided for three billion dollars in Government loans to spur construction of 360,000 homes for rental to low-income families at about $50 a month.

Aim at $2000-3000 Income Bracket

Representative Jacob K. Javits (R., N. Y.) said the House group wanted to encourage private industry to build homes for people whose incomes range between $2000 and $3000 a year—too high to be eligible for public housing and too low to rent or buy adequate housing.

"This is our offering to the families overlooked by the Administration—families estimated to be about 20 per cent of the population, including many veterans," Javits said.

Catholics Charged With Drive To Get Parochial School Aid

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

Catholics yesterday were charged with exerting "aggressive, high-pressure demands" on Congress to obtain Federal aid for parochial schools by a Protestant group devoted to separation of church and state.

The organization called upon Congress "to defeat the declared intentions of the Roman Catholic church to secure public funds for sectarian schools, either directly or by subterfuge," but declined to name legislation it opposes.

(A Federal aid to education bill sponsored by Senators Taft (R., Ohio) and Thomas (D., Utah) was passed by the Senate last year but failed to pass the House. The same bill has been reintroduced in the 81st Congress, but no action has been taken yet. Under the legislation, which provides for expenditure of $260 million a year, each state would decide whether or not to aid private and parochial schools.—Editor's note)

The charges were made in a strongly worded "Address to All Americans" released by the board of trustees of Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State. The board met in executive session yesterday and public meetings will be held today.

It asserted that the "bold and unequivocal avowal of the intention of the Catholic hierarchy to break down the principle of separation of church and state" is a

Controlled Circulation

New Techniques Help Save Sumner Welles' Limbs; He Gives Account of Freezing

By N. S. Haseltine
Copyright, 1949, The Washington Post Co.

Sumner Welles was saved from probable amputations by postwar techniques of controlled-temperature treatment for severe frostbite, it was disclosed here yesterday.

An important adjunct of the treatment, however, was the use of heparin, a drug discovered in 1916 by a District cancer specialist, Dr. Jay McLean. Penicillin, too, played its miracle role in preventing infection.

The complete treatment was outlined yesterday by Welles' attending specialist, Dr. J. Ross Veal, Washington vascular surgeon, on direct authorization of the patient. The former Undersecretary of State said the treatment could be publicized as "a service to the general public."

Sumner Welles

The 56-year-old statesman also disclosed for the first time the circumstances of his accident.

Troubled for a number of years with insomnia, he said, he frequently took short walks along the highroads of the section on those nights when he worked late over his papers.

"I suddenly felt a pain in my heart, and started to take a shortcut to my home," he explained. "Somehow, in the semidarkness, I took a wrong turn, and found myself in the creek. I can't recall what followed."

He was found by a neighbor at 7 a. m., December 26, prostrate and partly coated with ice about 100 yards from the creek, and slightly less than a mile from his Oxon Hill, Md., estate.

Apparently, he agreed, he had climbed out of the creek bed, only to collapse a short distance away. There he lay, presumably since midnight, unconscious on the windswept field. His clothing, drenched to above the knees, was frozen stiff to his legs in the 15-degree cold.

Dr. Veal was called into the case by Welles' personal physician, Dr. George R. Huffman, within a few hours after Welles was admitted to Casualty Hospital that morning with frozen legs, feet and hands.

So dramatic has been his recovery that yesterday, one month after the near-fatal accident, the patient was reported free of major amputation danger and preparing to go home. Most uncomfortable after-effect, said his specialist, will be a sensitiveness to temperature changes, particularly cold.

The treatment consisted of hospitalization in a heatless room,

The Palestine Situation

Ben-Gurion's Party Leading; Commons Backs Bevin Policy

Laborites Round Up Members by Phone for Vote of 283 to 193

By R. H. Shackford

London, Jan. 26 (U.P.).—The Commons gave Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin a vote of confidence, 283 to 193, on his Palestine policy, after the Labor government frantically rounded up members by telephone tonight for fear it would be defeated.

Bevin told the Commons, in a full dress debate, that the government was now prepared to recognive Israel on the understanding that there would be no more fighting. He vigorously defended his actions and policy.

Winston Churchill, Conservative leader, scorchingly denounced Bevin, accusing him of bungling and of bias against Israel. Churchill said both the United States and Russia were now arrayed against Britain on the Palestine question.

Defending Bevin's sending British planes over the Palestine-Egypt frontier, Prime Minister Clement Attlee said of the Israel drive into Egypt:

"We might have had an incursion right down to the Suez Canal which might have involved us in war. I think we were perfectly

Pro-Western Group Assured of 43 of 120 Seats in Assembly

Tel Aviv, Israel, Jan. 26 (U.P.).—Premier David Ben-Gurion's moderate Socialist party Mapai, called pro-Western by its foes, took a commanding lead today in Israel's first general election.

With 60 per cent of the ballots counted, Ben-Gurion's Labor group was assured of 43 seats and may pick up seven to 10 others in the 120-member constituent assembly selected yesterday by almost 400,000 Jewish, Arab and Christian voters.

Ben-Gurion seemed assured of retaining the premiership in a coalition government which will replace the present provisional regime.

The United Relgious Group, a nonpolitical combination running second to Mapai, was surprisingly strong. It could count on 17 to 20 seats. The pro-Russian labor party Mapam seemed assured of 16 to 19.

Menahem Beigin's Heruth movement, political successor to Irgun Zvai Leumi, had won 12 seats.

Action on Dorsey Voided

Court Blasts 'Lynch Law' Use In Patent Office Disbarment

By Charles E. Davis, jr.
Post Reporter

The United States Court of Appeals yesterday ripped apart a Patent Office disbarment order in words as strong as the law allows.

Dorsey

In disbarring Attorney Vernon M. Dorsey, 79, from practice before the Patent Office on grounds of gross misconduct, the Patent Office acted "without process of law of any kind except bureaucratic lynch law," the Court of Appeals declared in a majority opinion.

Concurring in the majority opinion were Judges Bennett Champ Clark and Wilbur K. Miller. Judge Clark wrote the majority opinion. A dissenting opinion was written by Judge Henry W. Edgerton.

Thus, the Appeals Court reversed District Court James W. Morris in his denial of Dorsey's petition for annulment of the Patent Office disbarment order.

The Court of Appeals, noting that more than 18 years elapsed between the time of the alleged misconduct and fling of charges against the patent attorney, declared:

"The Patent Office in a desperate effort to alibi its confessed failure to perform its duty waited more than 18 years until the evidence had largely disappeared to bring stale charges against appellant (Dorsey), and then proceed to try and convict him before a 'kangaroo court.'"

The opinion said the Patent Office "so-called tribunal" that recommended Dorsey's disbarment to the Commissioner of Patents tried him "on charges most of which were not even included in the notice to show cause and on which there is not a shred of evidence to connect him," and convicted him.

"For a lawyer to be disbarred," said the Court of Appeals, "is the equivalent of a soldier receiving a dishonorable discharge on the field of battle."

Late in 1944, notices to show cause why they should not be disbarred from practice before the Patent Office were served on Dorsey and three men with whom he had dealings.

The Court of Appeals notes that while the four received identical

(See "People," Page 2.)

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Omaha, Nebr., Jan. 26.—All efforts to settle the bitter fight in the Republican Party collapsed here tonight.

The struggle, which involves control of the party machinery, will be fought out to a finish beginning Thursday morning at a full meeting of the Republican National Committee.

Representative Hugh D. Scott, jr., of Pennsylvania, storm center of the Omaha gathering, was battling furiously against those who were trying to oust him as chairman of the National Committee. He said they were trying to "bluff" him with their claims of strength.

The anti-Scott forces were made up largely of admirers of Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, reinforced by supporters of Harold E. Stassen.

At 2 o'clock this morning, they announced that they had settled on a man to pit against Scott—Roy E. Dunn, national committeeman for Minnesota, a dirt farmer from Pelican Rapids, who described himself as "a country politician."

Vote Totals a Guess

How many votes each side would have in Thursday's showdown was anybody's guess. Both were claiming a majority of the National Committee.

It was cold out here, with temperatures below zero and much of Nebraska suffering from blizzards, but the Battle of Omaha was reminiscent in many ways of what went on in Philadelphia last June.

The Taft people and the Stassenites, with recruits from other elements of the party, had some grievances against Scott, but their real target was Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, who whipped them at Philadelphia and then went out and lost to President Truman in the election.

Orators who rose at various sessions today spoke with scorn of Governor Dewey's "unity" campaign, his "pussyfooting", and what they called his "me too" attitude toward the New Deal. Even Chairman Scott took a crack at the 1948 campaign tactics and "me-tooism."

Despite all the disgust with "unity," efforts were made during the afternoon to recapture some of it.

Both the Scott and the Dunn forces agreed to the appointment of a seven-man committee that would try and work out a compromise.

Find No Way Out

This committee, meeting in the traditional smoke-filled room in the Fontenelle Hotel, wrestled with the problem well into the evening. The members finally emerged with the news that they could find no way out of the deadlock, and that both sides were determined to fight it out at a full meeting of the committee Thursday morning.

The anti-Scott forces were reported to be willing to turn away from Dunn, but they were described as adamant in their determination to make a finish fight on Scott.

They didn't appear to be agreed on how they would proceed Thursday. One suggestion was that they would simply introduce a resolution declaring the chairmanship vacant, and ask that it be voted up or down.

Scott said that he agreed to the appointment of a "settlement committee" after the Dunn people came to him and said they had 41 votes against him.

"This was not enough to throw me out," Scott told reporters, "but it was enough to be embarrassing. I agreed to the appointment of a

Md. Gag Rule Trial Opens

State Charges Press Freedom Invades Courts' Prerogatives

Baltimore, Jan. 26 (AP).—A Baltimore court rule which restricts publication of crime news was attacked and defended today as the contempt trial of four radio stations, charged with violating it, opened here.

Attorneys for the radio stations charged the rule is "a substantial abridgement of liberties" guaranteed by the Constitution.

Two assistant State's attorneys, on the other hand, charged freedom of the press infringed on prerogatives of the courts when the four Baltimore stations broadcast news accounts about an accused man's confession, in violation of "rule 904" of the Baltimore Supreme bench.

The contempt citations involve stations WFBR, WCBM, and WITH of Baltimore, WSID of suburban Essex, Md., and James P. Connolly, news editor of WITH.

A citation also was issued against station WBAL, Baltimore, but its case was deferred pending decision on petitions filed.

All are accused of violating "Rule 904," which among other things prohibits publication of anything about what an accused persons says or does, or any evidence uncovered, after he has been arrested. The rule also forbids police officers and attorneys from discussing a case for publication.

The citations are based on broadcasts about the arrest last July of Eugene H. James, handyman, accused of killing 11-year-old Marsha Brill. James subsequently was sentenced to die.

Argument began this afternoon after Judge John B. Gray of Calvert County had heard two witnesses and received a shower of

House Group Rejects Hook As Its Counsel

Labor Committee Defies Tradition by Vetoing Choice of Chairman

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The House Labor Committee yesterday broke with Capitol Hill tradition and rejected their chairman's selection of former Representative Frank Hook, of Michigan, to be committee counsel.

Seven Democrats joined with nine Republican members of the committee to give Hook the hook, 16-8.

Vote on the issue was taken by secret ballot—also an unusual action—at the request of the rebellious Democrats. The GOP members had already declared their intention to vote solidly against the selection of the five-time Democratic Congressman from Michigan.

Chairman John Lesinski (D., Mich.), Hook's sponsor, said the 54-year-old attorney, who tried unsuccessfully to unseat Senator Homer Ferguson in the last election, was rejected principally because of past controversies with other Congresses. Lesinski said that a file on Hook from the House Un-American Affairs Committee was read to the committee before the vote, but that Hook was not accused of being pro-Communist.

Representative Samuel K. McConnell (R., Pa.), senior minority member of the committee, said that the GOP group was opposed to Hook strictly on the grounds of temperament.

U. S. to Use Its 'Skills' To Develop Poor Nations

Acheson Explains Truman Program Does Not Envision Huge Expenditures

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Secretary of State Dean Acheson made it clear yesterday that the United States would use its "skills" rather than its Government funds to improve living standards of underdeveloped areas.

He said present efforts to send American technicians abroad, and presumably to bring foreigners here for technical training, would be intensified, but through existing American and United Nations agencies.

He predicted that as peoples in backward areas acquired new skills, they might create conditions under which private capital might flow into those areas.

And he recalled pointedly that, given such conditions, "the reservoirs of private capital are very great indeed."

All this, and much more, he put into an extemporaneous talk with which he started his first news conference as Secretary of State, and later in answers to questions. His audience included about 200 persons from the press and radio of many countries.

Meaning Clarified

Speaking with assurance, grace and skill, he first gave an authoritative explanation of President Truman's inaugural address, and especially of the now famous Point 4 on underdeveloped areas. Then, under questioning, he further clarified the President's meaning.

He said the President was not talking of special countries, and that at present, there was no emphasis on special regions that should have priority.

He thought every country had a nucleus of people with some skills and these in turn could be helped by people who could bring them skills from the outside. In some countries, he remarked, there was not enough engineering skill to know what dreams of development could be fulfilled.

He felt it was up to the government of each country involved to create the conditions that would attract private capital—a remark that recalled Secretary Marshall's tactics in 1947 of leaving the chief responsibility for economic recovery to the Europeans themselves.

No Blueprint Yet

He conceded that no blueprint of the program existed as yet, but he confirmed that the President already had asked the State Department to join with other Government agencies in producing suggestions.

Finally, he said the purpose of the President's idea was not to install modern plumbing all over the world, but to use "material means" to create conditions conducive to human freedom.

In his opening talk, he asked the press and radio to see the President's Point 4 in the context of the entire inaugural address. Rephrasing the President's contrasts between democracy and communism, Acheson did not mention communism at all, but called it "the other theory opposed to the American concept of the place of the individual in society."

The American system, he declared, had its roots in the Renaissance; "the other theory" went

Dunn Is at Home Running Tractor, Resort, Minnesota Legislature or GOP Convention

Special to The Washington Post

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 26.—Roy R. Dunn is a 220-pound, 6-foot Minnesotan who is just as much at home running a farm tractor, operating a swank summer resort, cracking the whip over his State Legislature, or helping manage a Republican National Convention.

* * * * * *

ROY E. DUNN
Minnesotan mentioned

He has been in Republican politics for 25 years, a member of the GOP national committee since 1936. In Minnesota he has served in the State House of Representatives since 1924. Except for a single two-year tearm he has been majority leader of the House since 1935.

Dunn at 62 is a self-made success in farming and business. In politics he has usually been on the conservative side in intra-party Republican feuds and has for years been a great admirer of Senator Robert A. Taft.

Nevertheless he backed Minnesota's former Harold Stassen to the limit in the 1948 presidential campaign, adjusting himself to the wishes of the Republican Party in his State. Dunn has had numerous controversies with Stassen in Minnesota politics, some of them full-scale battles, but he has the knack of accepting defeat or victory and making the best of it. He will compromise most intra-party disputes.

Rather than carry on to a permanently embittered situation in his home State, Dunn is credited with preventing the old Farmer-Labor Party from seizing control of the State Legislature in the thirties.

When the late Floyd B. Olson knocked the Republican Party out of the Minnesota governorship in 1930 and the "radical" Farmer-Laborites took over the executive branch of the government, businessmen were frightened.

As the political union of labor and farmers marched on to new victories, business interests looked for someone to save them from their dangers.

Here Roy Dunn saw an opportunity. Neither he nor any other Republican could produce a candidate to defeat Olson for Governor, but with an astute knowledge of rural sentiment in Minnesota Dunn decided he could prevent the Farmer-Laborites from carrying out their programs.

He went to Twin Cities business leaders, told them that with the proper financial backing he could elect conservative State Representatives. The Senate was safely Republican, with four-year office terms holding the membership fairly stable. Businessmen produced the finances, and Dunn went out over the farming areas in 1994.

His political sagacity combined with campaign funds, helped elect conservative legislative candidates and defeat Farmer-Laborites, while the Farmer-Labor Party held the governorship from 1930 until 1938 a conservative majority was maintained in the Legislature except for a single term.

Dunn's success made him undisputed leader of the House of Representatives from 1935 on and GOP national committeeman from 1936.

He has been frequently attacked by opponents as "a servant of big business," but his farm constituents continue to reelect him.

Dunn sincerely believes that businessmen and farmers are generally right in their political views. This makes him a conservative on business issues and a supporter of most of the New Deal farm policies. Union labor leaders consistently charge him with being antilabor and continually attack his operations in the Legislature.

Dunn's parents homesteaded a 240-acre farm in Otter Tail County, Minnesota in 1875. Roy was born on the farm May 1, 1886 near Pelican Rapids, which is still his legal residence.

Roy went to country school, paid his way through a business college by working as a lumberjack, engine wiper, coal heaver and on threshing crews. In 1909 he bought some lakeshore land near his home and started a small summer resort which is now big and successful. He also bought the family homestead and made money farming.

Now he operates 400 acres, has an ultra-modern dairyherd of registered Holsteins, raises Aberdeen Angus beef cattle, markets about 400 hogs a year and has produced up to 3500 turkeys a season. He makes profits on all his operations and can prove it.

Dunn has a big jutting jaw, a bald head and likes color in his tailored clothes. Sometimes his suits of reddish brown or near purple cause a real stir. He spends the winters in St. Paul during legislative sessions, and takes trips to Florida when politics permits. He is married, has one daughter and two grandsons.

GOP Urges Action To Curb Filibusters

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A call for prompt Senate action to curb filibusters came from the Senate Republican Policy Committee last night as Southern Senators closed ranks against any flat ceiling on Senate debate.

Two Southern feelers on "compromise" were put out, however—each designed to confine any new debate limit to "emergency" questions of national defense and foreign policy.

The Senate Rules Committee, meanwhile, recessed hearings until Friday after a lively set-to between Southern Democrats and Northern and Western Republicans on proposals to use the rules change as a civil-rights spearhead.

The committee tentatively plans to close hearings Friday and report out next week a resolution removing existing loopholes in the Senate's two-thirds majority cloture rule.

Timing Decision Delayed

With the rules change itself threatened with filibuster, Democratic leaders delayed a decision on timing.

The Senate Republican Policy Committee, however, reaffirmed its stand of last session that the rules reform must be made the first order of Senate business if any civil-rights measures are to be enacted this session.

Chairman Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) said the GOP steering group again indorsed the two-thirds across-the-board cloture proposal after hearing a report from Senator Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.).

"There is certainly nothing radical about it and some of our members would prefer to do more," said Taft.

"The responsibility for promptly calling up the resolution rests on the shoulders of the majority leadership."

Compromise Gestures

The compromise gestures came from Senators John C. Stennis (D., Miss.) and Russell B. Long (D., La.) as Southern Democrats opened their testimony before the Rules Committee.

1. Stennis said he would "gladly support" changes designed to "always insure a vote on emergency matters affecting the security of the Nation," but would vigorously oppose two-thirds cloture on domestic issues, including civil rights.

2. Long, himself a son of a filibuster champion, suggested a compromise along lines of a proposal once made by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), to impose cloture on "emergency" issues when some 90 per cent of the Senate agreed to a vote.

Taft said that in his opinion Republicans wouldn't accept either proposal as a substitute for an over-all debate limit, but they might be considered as amendments.

Another Southern Senator, John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.), urged the committee not to "rush" through a rules change just to meet one objective, the civil rights program.

Suggests Discussion

The Alabaman said he thought the civil rights program could be "worked out if we sit down around the table." He said a filibuster can be broken under present rules by the "force of public opinion."

Huey Long's 30-year-old son, Russell, however, hinted strongly that the President's entire program might be tied up by a filibuster on the rule.

Long asked Senator Henry Cabot Lodge (R., Mass.) if he would still favor a rules change if he thought "the whole first session of the Eighty-first Congress would be tied up by a filibuster."

Lodge drew a laugh when he said he couldn't believe Southern Senators would filibuster "so moderate" a rules change.

"I'll answer him flatly," Ives broke in. "Even if it ties up everything, I'm still in favor of trying. The danger to the American people of having a house that cannot be controlled transcends every other consideration."

Sparkman said he thought the "great objection to the Eightieth Congress was that we had one house that was controlled."

Long asked Lodge if he didn't think other things on the agenda, such as housing and welfare, were more important than the civil rights proposals.

"I don't think anything is fundamentally more important than civil rights," replied Lodge.

Sparkman said Lodge was "admitting" the rules change was being pushed to clear the way for civil rights.

"I'm not ashamed of it," said Lodge. "The civil rights question is fundamental, in the South and elsewhere."

Senator Ives, Knowland (R., Calif.) and Ferguson (R., Mich.) said they would still favor the rules change if every one of the civil rights measures were now on the books.

Tydings Orders Probe of Navy Rule Gagging Officers

Chairman Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee yesterday ordered an investigation of a Navy "gag" reportedly designed to keep officers from giving their views privately to Congress.

He acted after Senator Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) top-ranking committee Republican, read the Navy regulation which said that any communications or information from Navy men to Congress must go through Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan.

"I believe that's going quite a way," Gurney said. "I believe we ought to check to see if the Air Force and Army have similar regulations. When this committee or any other part of Congress wants information it is entitled to it."

Tydings said he thought the rule was aimed at stopping Navy officers from offering Congress information it doesn't want. The order does not bar officers from testifying on official business before congressional committees.

Eugene Black to Stay As World Bank Officer

The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development announced yesterday that Eugene R. Black will continue to serve as United States Executive Director until a successor is appointed. This temporary extension of his service had been requested by Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder who is a governor of the bank, and urged by John J. McCloy, president of the bank.

Lynch to Seek Nomination for Va. Delegate

Lynch

Edwin Lynch, Annandale, Va., businessman who lost the Democratic nomination to the House of Delegates in 1947 by one vote, yesterday declared his candidacy for the post in the 1949 party primary.

The 36-year-old real estate man served Fairfax County in the regular legislative session of 1946 and in the special 1947 session.

In August of 1947, he was renamed the Democratic nominee by one vote over his opponent, Robert J. McCandlish. When McCandlish asked for a recount, a special three-judge court ruled against Lynch by the same margin—one vote.

McCandlish recently announced he will not be a candidate for renomination. Fairfax Attorney W. Louis Leigh, however, has declared he will run.

Wholesale Food Prices Lowest Since OPA Exit

New York, Jan. 26 (U.P.).—Wholesale food prices dropped today to the lowest level since OPA price control ended.

Retail food merchants said the price cuts would be felt at the corner grocery within a week, and cautiously predicted prices might drop even more.

Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., announced that its index of wholesale food prices fell 11 cents in the last week to $5.91, the lowest level since October 8, 1946, when most foods still were price controlled. The Dun & Bradstreet index on that date was $5.40.

One week later, on October 15, 1946, after most OPA controls on food, including meat, had been lifted, the Dun & Bradstreet index had jumped almost $1 to $6.15.

Byrd Again Heads Economy Group

By The Associated Press

Senator Byrd (D., Va.) was reelected chairman of "the Byrd Economy" Committee yesterday after offering to step aside.

He has headed the group — a congressional Committee on Reduction of Nonessential Federal Expenditures—since its organization in 1941.

Byrd said the committee will seek enough money to enlarge its staff and to extend its program of recommending further cuts in Government spending.

House GOP 'Liberalizes' Setup by Creating Policy Committee to Replace Steering Unit

House Republicans yesterday "liberalized" their leadership setup by creating a new 22-member Policy Committee, chosen geographically and without seniority rights, to take over duties of the old House GOP Steering Committee.

But they rigidly followed seniority in naming Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) to party ranking position on the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Self-styled House "progressive" Republicans claimed the steering committee shake-up was a victory for them.

Both actions were taken by the House GOP Committee on Committees and are subject to approval by the full House Republican membership today.

Thomas, who headed the Un-American Activities unit until Democrats took over, is now under indictment on a charge of receiving kickbacks from the salaries of his office employes.

Other GOP appointments to the Red-hunting group were Representative Richard M. Nixon (Calif.), another former member, and two new committeemen, Representatives Francis Case (S. Dak.) and Harold H. Velde (Ill.).

In making the assignments, the GOP Committee on Committees ignored the "lawyers only" rule adopted by the Democrats in filling their own vacancies on the group.

Thomas is an insurance man and Case a former newspaper publisher. Nixon is a lawyer, however, and Velde, a freshman member, is a former FBI agent and Illinois county judge.

Announcing creation of the new House GOP Policy Committee, Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr. (Mass.), said it will make the steering group "more democratic than the way we have been operating." He said the decision was unanimous.

Representative Frank B. Keefe (R., Wis.), who urged the change, said: "This is a step in the direction of recognizing elements who want to see progress in legislation and not have the party policy made by those who are so tied to traditions of the past they can't see the need for such progress."

Martin will be chairman of the new policy group, and other House GOP leaders will serve with him as exofficio members.

They are Representatives Leslie C. Arends (Ill.), GOP whip; Roy O. Woodruff (Mich.), conference chairman; Francis Case, conference secretary, and Leonard W. Hall (N. Y.), chairman of the Republican Campaign Committee.

Three others will be chosen "at large" and the remaining members will be selected at a series of sectional caucuses.

For this purpose the Nation will be divided into nine geographical sections. Each section will have one to three members, depending on the number of Republican Congressmen in the area.

Martin's own resolution setting up the new group provides: "The traditions and privileges of seniority shall not apply to membership on the Republican Policy Committee."

Bomb Maims, Blinds Mailman

Bowling Green, Ky., Jan. 26 (U.P.).—A small package exploded violently in the postoffice here today, leaving a postal employe at the point of death with his hands blown off and his sight destroyed.

Three other mail clerks were injured less seriously in the blast, which came when substitute mail clerk William Harry Osborne, 29, loosed a string tied around a package about the size of a woman's compact.

Hospitals said Osborne would lose the sight of both eyes. Both his hands were blown off at the wrist. His stomach was pierced by metal fragments.

A small piece of metal was embedded in the arm of Paul Goodrum, 46, who also suffered powder burns. Ray Cossey, 27, received powder burns, and Elmer G. Denham was treated for an injured hand.

Postal Inspector A. B. Cleveland said "We have a few leads in the case."

Cleveland thought the bomb was intended for some person outside the postal service. He said force of the blast indicated TNT or something similar was used.

$500 Reward Asked For Sender of Bomb

Leo E. George, president of the National Federation of Post Office Clerks, will ask the organization's executive committee now in session here to offer a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of the sender of the bomb which injured several postal employes at Bowling Green, Ky., yesterday.

Truman Transfers D. C. Guard To Control of Defense Chief

President Truman yesterday issued an executive order transferring control and administration of the District National Guard from the White House to the Military Establishment.

The order directed Defense Secretary Forrestal to submit to the President "at such times as may be appropriate," recommendations for appointing a commanding general and an adjutant general for the District organization. Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox is now commanding general of the District Guard and Col. Peyton C. Nevitt is adjutant general.

Apparently, the main effect on the local guard is to make the Secretary of Defense rather than the President its administrative head. The Secretary of Defense is expected to delegate supervision to the National Guard Bureau.

As organized prior to yesterday's executive order, the President stood in the same relationship to the District Guard that Governors do to their State units. A result was that all differences within the Guard, many of them trivial, had to be taken to the White House for solution.

A case in point was the dispute last spring between Nevitt and Col. LeRoy S. Mann, commander of the 260th Coast Artillery Group, about who should command the Guard in Cox's absence. The White House bucked the quarrel back to Cox upon his return, and it was dropped.

Reports of the action taken yesterday have been current here for some time. Speculation included the probability of Cox's retirement, since he has passed the retirement age, and his likely successor.

Among those mentioned to succeed Cox have been Lieut. Col. Laidler B. Mackall, commander of the District air units; Colonel Mann, Col. W. H. Abendroth, member of the general staff committee on National Guard policy, and Col. Charles M. Myers, senior Regular Army instructor for District Guard units.

House Group Meets With Defense Officials

The House Armed Services Committee met with top-level defense officials yesterday to receive a briefing on the general national defense picture.

Defense Secretary Forrestal and the Secretaries of the three armed forces headed the delegation from the services in the session at the Pentagon.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, former Allied supreme commander and now president of Columbia University, attended as a special consultant to Forrestal.

Defense officials said the meeting with the House Committee and a similar conference today with the Senate Committee is merely an annual briefing given Congress at the start of each session.

U. S. Military Aides To China Depart

From Press Dispatches

Shanghai, Jan. 26.—The United States officially terminated its program of military training for Nationalist China today. At the same time high sources reported a stiffening of the Nationalist war spirit because of Communist demands for the arrest of Chiang Kai-shek and other "war criminals."

At Kiangwan airport here, United States Ambassador J. Leighton Stuart bade farewell to the head of the United States Army Advisory Group and the chief of the group's air division. Maj. Gen. David G. Barr, head of the group, which failed to revitalize Nationalist China's fighting forces in a three-year effort, and Brig. Gen. Charles E. Thomas of the Air Force leave Thursday for the United States.

Personnel Leaving

The rest of the United States military personnel in China will board the Army transport Sergeant Woodford Thursday. It will sail on Friday.

Ending of American military guidance removed one stumbling block to peace talks, but the Communist demand that Acting President Li Tsung-jen jail Chiang and all other "war criminals" to prove his desire for peace posed another.

Premier Sun Fo called an emergency meeting of the cabinet in Nanking to review the situation. Official Nationalist reaction was that if the broadcast represents Communist leader Mao Tse-tung's final attitude, the demand has "closed the door to peace."

Attempt Defense Line

Associated Press dispatches from Nanking said the Nationalists were trying frantically today to get together enough troops to establish a defense line somewhere in South China.

[The New York Herald Tribune correspondent in Nanking said the Red Radio warned that three areas in the city shortly would be under artillery fire.]

It was reported on high authority that Chiang Kai-shek would return to power should peace talks fail, and the civil war would go on. These sources are so high they can be considered unimpeachable.

They declared that if the "Red price for peace is too high," the government is ready to give up both Nanking and the great financial center of Shanghai, fighting on south of the Yangtze.

Military quarters said Communist army scouts, a hundred strong, sought to cross the Yangtze 32 miles northeast of Nanking in junks, but were driven back.

With Nanking in range of Communist artillery, the government announced its official removal to Canton, where it will start functioning February 5. All government organs and foreign embassies and legations were asked to be in Canton by that date. Only Acting President Li and the cabinet are to remain here to direct the peace effort.

U. S. Consul Says Russia Dominates China Reds

Shanghai, Jan. 26 (AP).—United States Consul General John M. Cabot told a Shanghai luncheon meeting today that Communist policy statements indicated the party in China was "blindly following orders from Moscow."

He cited as evidence the Chinese Reds' indorsement of the European Cominform statement on Marshal Tito.

Concerning a charge by the Chinese Red leader, Mao Tze-tung, that United States aid to China amounted to imperialism, Cabot said that, to the contrary, it had been given to prevent domination by "foreign capital."

He added, "If we have not furnished more aid this has been due to our doubts as to its effective use, rather than a lack of desire to help. We have not wanted to offend China's sovereignty by telling the Chinese government how it should run its own affairs."

The consul general asked that the Chinese Communists state their position on the occupation of Dairen and Port Arthur by a "foreign power." Russian troops control Dairen and Port Arthur.

Russia Joins 48 Nations in Wheat Talks

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Forty-nine nations met at the State Department yesterday to seek an international wheat agreement—the aim of world wheat conferences since 1927. Sessions are expected to last several weeks.

For the first time in recent years all the wheat-exporting nations — Australia, Argentina, Canada, Russia and the United States—are taking part. Russia, never before represented, has sent a party of four. Argentina, which had an observer at the 1948 conference, this time has a full-fledged delegate, Dr. Juan Scarpati, economic counselor at the Washington Embassy.

Forty-four importing countries have delegates; a year ago only 33 took part.

The Russians arrived late Tuesday. Sergei Alekseevich Borisov, bald, smooth-shaven, round-faced Deputy Minister of Foreign Trade for the Soviet Union, heads the mission. Others are Michail Vasilevich Lavrichenko, who attended the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization meeting at Quebec in 1945, and Pavel Ivanovich Shohegula, member of the foodstuffs division of the Soviet Purchasing Commission here during the war.

Borisov was a member of the Danube River Conference at Belgrade last summer. When asked if there was any significance in Russia's presence here, he replied through an interpreter: "We are always interested in any international agreement to help the prosperity of the world."

He said he would not have a statement to make to the conference until study of last year's wheat agreement which was turned down by the Eightieth Congress.

Yesterday's session was devoted to organization. Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan was chosen chairman, and J. C. Van Essche of Belgium and Timothy O'Connell of Ireland, vice chairmen. Neither Argentina nor Russia was represented in any offices or the Steering Committee. On the latter group the following were named: Australia, Brazil, Canada, Egypt, France, India, the Netherlands, United Kingdom and the United States. Because the chairman and vice chairmen are ex-officio members of the Steering Committee, the United States thus gets two places on that important group.

Brannan told the group that the United States "is particularly gratified by the large number of nations represented here. It reflects the growing realization of the need for international cooperation in solving specific economic problems. It augurs well for the success of our negotiations."

"Since the end of the war," he added, "the nations here represented have been struggling to build a firm basis for peace. If we can work out a plan . . . to stabilize world wheat trading it should give us experience and hope with which to tackle other problems which now haunt consumers and producers in this complex world of ours."

Brannan later told reporters that he did not believe that the presence of Argentina and Russia would cut down the amount or wheat that the United States may be enabled to export under any new argeement. He expressed the belief that the presence of Argntina and Russia might result in an agreement covering more than the 500 million bushels called for in 1948. The United States alone will export nearly 500 million bushels of wheat this year, he remarked.

Chambers Among Witnesses Before Spy Grand Jury

New York, Jan. 26 (AP).—Horace Alton Ingraham of Cartersville, Ga., was questioned for a half hour today before the special Federal grand jury investigating alleged subversive activities.

Ingraham refused to answer reporters' questions after he left the grand jury room. He said he did not know why he had been called.

Another witness was Whittaker Chambers, self-confessed former Soviet courier.

Hans Inslerman of Long Branch, N. J., who said he was a brother of Felix August Inslerman, on leave as an engineer of the General Electric Co., spent three hours in the grand jury anteroom but was not called to testify.

Felix Inslerman of Cambridge, N. Y., and his wife, Elizabeth, have appeared before the grand jury many times in recent weeks.

5 Snowbound States Given Haylift Help

Chicago, Jan. 26 (AP).—The Air Force spread its haylift to five Western range States today as a whirlwind blizzard in southern California threatened livestock there.

The Air Force, racing to save an estimated two million cattle and sheep faced with starvation, extended its haylift from Nevada to sections of Utah, Colorado, South Dakota and Nebraska.

Bitter cold still gripped these blizzard-swept States, and ranchers feared their losses might total 50 per cent of their herds despite all aid.

The emergency haylift mustered 28 planes, including 20 C-82's and eight C-47's.

It was 27 degrees below zero at Ely, Nev., this morning, and ranchers said stranded stock could not withstand the cold much longer.

The California blizzard choked the Lanfair Valley with snow, and helicopters were dispatched to guide the roundup of thousands of head of cattle.

Early morning temperatures in southern California were near freezing, and smudge pots were started again in the hard-hit citrus fruit belt. Indio, in the Coachella Valley had its heaviest snow in 17 years.

The Red Cross said Air Force planes today dropped 3000 pounds of food to some 200 person trapped by heavy snows and "nearly starving" 100 miles north of Sioux Falls, S. Dak.

$175,000 Storm Aid Allocated to 5 States

By The Associated Press

Federal Works Administrator Phillip B. Fleming last night divided $175,000 equally among five States—Nevada, Utah, Nebraska, South Dakota and Wyoming—for emergency storm relief.

Fleming, President Truman's Director of Disaster Relief, held out $25,000 from a new $200,000 relief allocation, announced yesterday, for further emergency use.

He said the total sum was so far short of the need that the immediate allocation was deemed advisable.

On Capitol Hill the House Deficiency Committee scheduled action today on a bill to provide funds to aid the snow-bound States.

Three Nebraska Republicans—Representatives Curtis, Stefan and A. L. Miller—announced they planned to introduce measures authorizing three million dollars extra for President Truman's disaster fund, and another 10 million dollars for use of Army Engineers in emergency flood control.

U. of W. Staff Member Quits Due to Firings

Chicago, Jan. 26 (AP). — Dr. Thomas I. Cook quit today as professor of political science at the University of Washington after the dismissal of three other faculty members in a controversy over asserted present or former Communist activity.

"I resigned," Professor Cook told a news conference, "because of the conspicuous violation of the proper processes for deciding issues of freedom and tenure . . . at the university.

Dr. Cook said a faculty committee had recommended that only one of six accused professors be dismissed, but that the committee's recommendations were ignored by the board of regents and the university's president, Raymond B. Allen.

Civil Liberties Union Is Probing Dismissals

The American Civil Liberties Union has begun an investigation into the firing of three professors from the University of Washington on charges of Communist affiliations or sympathies.

An official of the union said that the Seattle chapter was investigating the case in cooperation with the Seattle committee on academic freedom, which he described as "an independent committee of members of the university and private citizens set up to study this problem."

This official said that the union took the view that "an avowed Communist has the right to teach in a university, and admission of his party membership is not grounds for dismissal."

Vision Testing Session

Vision testing will be the main subject of the third session from 4 to 6 p. m. today of the Eye Health Institute. The session will be held in the auditorium of the National Museum, 10th st. and Constitution ave. nw.

Reds Call Up 8 Grand Jurors For 'Rich Man's Club' Test

New York, Jan 26 (U.P.).—Counsel for 11 United States Communist leaders called to the witness stand today members of the Federal grand jury that indicted them last July.

Trying to prove that grand jury was a prejudiced "rich man's club" that excluded minority groups and the poor, the defense lawyers questioned eight persons, including an investment counselor, a textile firm owner, a retail jeweler, a free-lance engineer and an elderly man now unemployed.

As the slow-moving trial resumed after a four-day recess, the defense attorneys ran into stern admonitions from presiding Judge Harold R. Medina, whom they again accused of being prejudiced.

Noting that two defense attorneys were absent and their clients complained of not being properly represented, Medina said:

"For the first time, the thought has come into my mind that defense counsel is deliberately and willfully maneuvering in an attempt to delay this trial."

Attorney Harry Sacher jumped to his feet, shouting his objections to the remark and denying there was any such intent.

The judge said he wanted to see the defense get on the witness stand the men who really are involved in the selection of jurors—the Federal jury commissioner, the jury clerk and his deputies.

But he permitted the calling of two prospective jurors and eight members of the grand jury that indicted the Communists. All denied they had been asked any questions about race, religion, financial status, social status or political affiliations when they qualified for jury service.

The grand jurors called were:

Thomas Hill Clyde, investment adviser and Princeton graduate who is in the New York Social Register.

Arthur S. Heiman, owner of a textile firm and member of the Federal Grand Jury Association, which cooperates in furnishing the court jury lists.

Henry J. Houck, retail jeweller.

C. Benjamin Brush, free-lance engineer and Princeton graduate.

Walter A. Cotman, who said he was in the air cargo business until his firm ran into financial troubles.

A. J. Coakley, baseball coach at Columbia University.

James C. Johnson, customs representative for a brokerage house.

Houck sought and obtained $3.70 for his appearance, a sum that the defense attorneys pooled. He asked the usual subpena fee of $2 plus $1.70 train fare to and from his home at New Rochelle.

Eisler Asks for Deportation

Communist Gerhart Eisler claimed yesterday he was being held in this country against his will by "diplomatic kidnaping" and again asked the Federal Government please to kick him out.

He wants to go back to his native Germany.

He proclaimed anew his membership in the Communist Party at a news conference following a hearing before the United States Court of Appeals on his plea to set aside his passport fraud conviction.

"I'm a Communist—not an alleged Communist—and I shout it from the housetops," he said.

He stated that his conviction on passport fraud charges grew out of "framed up" indictments—"hypocritical legal pretexts to keep me in this country."

Furthermore, he said, his detention here was in violation of the United Nation's human rights declaration, which would grant everyone "the right to leave any country to return to his own country."

Acheson Hopes

Atlantic Pact May Soon Be Revealed

Secretary of State Dean Acheson expressed the hope at his first press conference yesterday that the long silence over details of the North Atlantic defense pact could be broken "very soon."

Negotiations have been going on since last summer, but except for a general background statement the State Department has not published any details of what the present almost-completed draft contains.

Acheson did, however, read a formal statement repeating that the primary purpose of the new pact, like that of the Rio Treaty of inter-American defense, "is to provide unmistakable proof of the joint determination of the participating nations to resist armed attack from any country."

Within U. N. Framework

"We are convinced," he said, "that we can best contribute to the maintenance of peace by joining with other nations in making it absolutely clear in advance that any armed attack affecting our national security would be met with overwhelming force."

Emphasizing that the new treaty would be within the framework of the United Nations Charter, and in accord with last summer's Vandenberg resolution of the Senate, he said:

"Our national security is vitally affected by the security of the North Atlantic area. The peoples of the North Atlantic area have a common heritage and civilization. . . .

"We believe that these principles and this common heritage can best be fortified and preserved, and the general welfare of the people of the North Atlantic area advanced, by an arrangement for cooperation in matters affecting their peace and security and common interest. I hope to be able very soon to speak more specifically about it."

Answers Are Cautious

Years of training in the State Department showed in Acheson's cautious answers to questions that peppered him from all parts of the department auditorium. But there was nothing stuffy or solemn about his cautiousness.

"It has been reported in some Republican papers," a reporter began, "that there has been injury to the bipartisan foreign policy."

Are you looking at the "injury?" Acheson answered with a grin. He then announced that he would do everything possible to maintain the most bipartisan, nonpartisan, antipartisan foreign policy within his power.

Other Points Made

These were some of the other points he made in reply to questions:

(1) The new Soviet-satellite economic union in eastern Europe is a natural development; he does not regard it as competition with the Marshall Plan.

(2) The United States has no intention of building up western Germany at the expense of France.

(3) The Humphrey Committee report on the dismantling of German plants will not be published; it calls for no increase in German steel production, but for a relatively small increase in steel capacity.

(3) American policy toward China remains unchanged.

(4) He has not yet tackled administrative changes in the State Department, but will work very hard on them as soon as James E. Webb is sworn in as Undersecretary.

London, Jan. 26 (U.P.).—The Conference of Liberal Exiles met here today and refugees from 10 European countries joined forces in the fight against communism.

The delegates were laying the groundwork for what they hoped would be the day of their return but most feared that war alone could bring the downfall of communism in their homelands.

Representatives from Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Estonia, Hungary, Latvia, Lithuania, Poland, Romania, the Ukraine and Yugoslavia set to work in these objectives:

1. Formulation of a plan for uniting all central and eastern European nations and for their final integration into a democratic United States of Europe.

2. Preparation for the summoning of an assembly of eastern European exiles.

3. Solution of the displaced persons problem.

Spain was represented by Conference Chairman Salvador de Madariaga but all discussion centered on eastern Europe, an area dominated by Communists and the Soviet Union.

German Maid Faces Deportation

The Washington Post

HELGA KEUCK,

24-year-old German maid who was found with her wrists slashed in the home of a British air marshal here, was admitted to this country for a period not to exceed six months, provided she remained in the employ of Sir Charles and Lady Medhurst of 2701 31st st. nw. At a deportation hearing held in Gallinger Hospital, where Mrs. Keuck is under observation, her attorney received permission to file application for suspension of deportation. He was given until February 7. Police quoted Mrs. Keuck as saying she cut her wrists because she was despondent about her 8-year-old daughter, left in Germany. They listed "domestic trouble" as cause for her act. Her husband, Heinz, 31, cooks for the Medhursts

U. S. to Use 'Skills,' Not Funds

Here is the meaning of President Truman's inaugural address, as Secretary Dean Acheson explained it in an extemporaneous talk at his news conference yesterday:

First of all, I hope that you all understand the setting of Point 4 in the President's inaugural address. It was one of four major courses of action which the President said would be carried out by his Administration over the next four years, for the purpose of achieving the great objective which he talked about mainly in that address.

That objective was to make clear in our own country and to all the world the purpose of American life and the purpose of the American system. That purpose is to enable the individual to attain the freedom and dignity, the fullness of life, which should be the purpose of all government and of all life on this earth except insofar as it may be a preparation for some other life.

Other Theory Reactionary

The President went on to point out that the other theory—of the place of the individual in society—was not a modern theory, was not a radical or a new view, but was reactionary in the extreme. It is a view which goes back to the period before the Renaissance.

It is a view which is founded on the basic idea that status is the governing factor in life; that every person is born into the world in a position and that that person becomes a mere cog in a machine.

That is a basically reactionary attitude and philosophy. It is not, as I say, modern. It is an attempt to crawl back into the cocoon of history.

The American view of life is one which flows directly from the Renaissance and is one which says that the worth and dignity and freedom of the individual are the objectives of government.

Way Open to All

Then the President went on to point out courses of action which we were going to take over the next four years to try to bring about that purpose of life not only in this country, but in any other country which wished our help and association in that effort.

To me the essential thing about it is that it is the use of material means to a nonmaterial end.

It is not that we believe that other people need or wish things for their own purpose merely to have these material objects. It is not that material objects in and of themselves make a better or fuller life.

But they are the means by which people can obtain freedom—not only freedom from the pressure of those other human beings who would restrict their freedom, but help in the ancient struggle of man to earn his living and get his bread from the soil. That is the purpose; that is the objective of this program.

Long-Range Program

Now, the President was not announcing a project to be completed within a few weeks or months. He was announcing in this, as in the other three respects, a long program for his Administration. It was a program on which much has been done in the past and on which more can be done in the future.

The President pointed out that the United States has no monopoly of skills or techniques. Other countries have vast reservoirs of skill. In almost every country there is some nucleus of skill, some group of people whose technical abilities can be expanded with help from the outside.

With all of those people, the President stated, we wish to work. He particularly stated that we wished to work through the United Nations and all those affiliated organizations which are associated with it.

He pointed out that insofar as his program is successful and insofar as peoples in less developed areas acquire skills, they may also create the conditions under which capital may flow into those countries.

Private Capital Needed

He did not say this was to be governmental capital; indeed, if the proper conditions are created, the reservoirs of private capital are very great indeed. He pointed out that these must be two-way operations.

There is abroad in the world an idea that there is a magic in investment. There is an idea that if every country can only have a steel mill, then all is well. There is a failure to understand that it is a long and difficult process to develop the skills which are necessary to operate many of these plants.

There is sometimes failure to understand that plants should be located where the natural resources exist and not on purely nationalistic bases.

There is also in many places a failure to understand that unless the conditions are created by which investors may fairly put their money into that country, then there is a great impediment to development.

It is no solution to say, "Well, the private investors won't do it. Therefore, governments must." So he pointed out that it must be a two-way street.

Now, as I say, much has been done in the past to try to make technological skill and advice available from the United States and from other countries, through the United Nations and through many of its organizations. All of those efforts can be brought together and intensified.

The President pointed out that we are willing and anxious to work with every country that wishes to really enter into a cooperative system with the rest of the world to this end and with every country that wishes to help other countries to develop.

Now, that is the broad background of the inaugural address. I have talked at some length about this because it seems to me important that it be put in its setting of American foreign policy.

Children's Eyes Removed to Save Them From Death

New York, Jan. 25 (AP).—A father, half-blind since childhood, has chosen blindness for his two babies rather than almost certain death.

The father, Abe Goldstein, 30, Pacific war veteran, and his wife were told by doctors their two children were suffering from a cancerous eye condition that probably would cause death.

The only hope was removal of both eyes of the boy, Michael, 11 months, and one eye of their daughter, Karen, 2½ years.

The operations were performed yesterday and the children were reported doing "very nicely" today.

Police, Navy Seek 2 Sailors Who Robbed Cabbie

Police and naval officials were cooperating yesterday in a search for two sailors who beat and robbed Norman Binns, 37, a cab driver, of 3000 Lancer pl., Hyattsville.

Binns told police he picked up the two sailors at about 1 a.m. on 14th st. nw., between Pennsylvania ave. and F st.

On Overlook dr. sw., between S. Capitol and Chesapeake sts., one of the sailors struck him over the head, Binns related. He said they robbed him of his billfold containing $8 and fled on foot.

No Letup Seen By Gen. Clay In Cold War

Berlin, Jan. 26 (AP).—Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States military governor of Germany, said today he sees no evidence that Russia is easing off in the cold war.

Reporters had asked his reaction to recent comments by Communist leaders in France and Italy that were viewed in some circles as possibly denoting a Russian "peace offensive."

The German Socialist newspaper Social Democrat reported Russia has taken goods worth seven billion dollars from Germany as war reparations in the last three years.

United States military government officials, meanwhile, started a crackdown on Germans who work for the Russians, live in western Berlin, and fatten illegally off the airlift. They threatened to prosecute those who get ration cards on both sides.

The military government tightened its counterblockade by banning export of 19 additional manufactured items which are scarce in the Soviet zone.

Clay indicated that German manufactured goods now compete with American goods in the export market. Asked about complaints in the British press that German factories were underpricing the world market, he said he knew of no unfair pricing permitted by the joint export-import agency but that some instances of unfairness may exist.

"I know of no country that is exporting that isn't in competition with some other country," Clay said.

German exports exceeded 70 million dollars last month, Clay said, but still must rise another one billion dollars a year to balance the economy. The United States is pouring more money into western Germany to keep it going.

Court Frees Von Papen and Cuts His Fine

Frankfurt, Germany, Jan. 26 (AP). A German denazification court freed Franz von Papen from an eight-year sentence and slashed his fine to 30,000 marks ($9000) today.

The court ruled Von Papen, the "Gray Fox" of Hitler's diplomacy and a notorious international figure since he was kicked out of the United States in 1915, was only an offender, the second category of Nazism, reversing his conviction in 1947 as a major offender. It ruled that, aside from the 30,000-mark fine, his imprisonment since 1945 was enough punishment.

The new ruling barred Von Papen from politics.

Von Papen, now 69 and suffering from hardening of the arteries, said he hopes to take a long rest.

Von Papen was captured in the Ruhr by the United States Ninth Army April 11, 1945. He was acquitted by the International Military Tribunal at Nuernberg.

Canada Plans Final Court

Ottawa, Jan. 26 (AP).—Canada plans to sever another of its colonial day ties with Britain at the present session of Parliament.

Governor General Viscount Alexander told Parliament he would ask approval of a law to make Canada's Supreme Court the court of last resort.

Hitherto it has been possible to appeal Canadian Supreme Court decisions to Britain's Privy Council in London.

Parliament also was advised it would be asked to approve the following:

Terms for the union of Newfoundland with Canada; St. Lawrence seaway and project, subject to similar approval by the United States; continued steel controls and a few other price controls, including rent; extension of the act by which Canada limits imports to conserve dollars.

Senate Group Asks Webb's Confirmation

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday called for confirmation of James E. Webb's nomination as Undersecretary of State as a "real contribution to the effective conduct of our foreign relations."

The committee unanimously approved Webb's nomination Tuesday, and Chairman Tom Connally, (D., Tex.) foresees "no opposition" when he takes the appointment to the Senate floor today for confirmation.

$1000 Bond Set

Mother of 2 Held in GI Check Fraud

The Washington Post

MARGARET MANLY

A 20-year-old mother of two was held under $1000 bond for the grand jury yesterday on a charge of fraudulently accepting a serviceman's $50 family allotment check.

Margaret M. Manly, alias Margaret Frye, alias May Harwood, of 148 Quincy pl. ne., told United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence: "I did it. There's nothing I can do. I just did it, that's all." She waived a hearing.

According to the FBI, she married a sailor, Dodson Harwood, in Washington in December, 1945, and received allotment checks legally until August, 1948. Then the FBI said, without benefit of divorce, she married another sailor, Thomas M. Manley, in Elkton, Md., and has received $250 in allotments as a result of this marriage.

She is charged with fraudulently accepting one monthly allotment check.

Wearing a sailor's peacoat, a red bandanna, a short polka-dot dress, no stockings and moccasins, she walked jauntily into the hearing, but left sobbing in her handkerchief.

had won six seats, the General Zionists seven, Progressives six, Separdims five, the "Fighters" one, with the remainder divided among other minority groups.

In percentages the latest tabulations gave Mapai Party 34.4 per cent; United Religious Group 13.6 per cent; the Mapam, 12.6 per cent, and Heruth, 11.2 per cent.

The "Fighters" are the political successor to the outlawed Stern gang.

Final returns were not expected before Friday, when the last of the heavy soldier vote is tabulated.

right to carry out reconnaissance."

Referring to qualifications Bevin made in his announcement that Britain was ready to recognize Israel, Churchill said:

"I am quite sure he will have to recognize the Israel government . . . I regret he has not had the manliness to state that in plain and frank terms today. But he has preferred to retreat under a cloud of inky water and vapor like a cuttlefish to some obscured retreat."

Bevin said the government was now awaiting replies from British commonwealth governments on the recognition question and that if the replies came within the next few days "then final action can be taken."

He also said the United States intended to recognize Trans-Jordan, British-sponsored state.

Bevin said both Britain and the United States were determined to prevent the Middle East from becoming "a second Balkan area," an area of chaotic small states in constant turmoil.

But though he emphasized the extent of British-American agreement, Bevin accused the United States first of going back on its announcement that it would accept the Bernadotte partition plan and secondly of letting the presidential election influence its Palestine policy.

Recalling that former Secretary of State George C. Marshall announced on September 21 that the United States approved the Bernadotte plan in its entirety, Bevin said:

"I think, with a man of General Marshall's status and position, that when he tells me a thing I am entitled to take it as a fact."

Of the presidential campaign he said:

The whole question of who should be elected to certain offices in America entered this problem and there was very little free agency left the United Kingdom at that time.

Bevin said Britain had obligations to Arab countries and would stick by them. The Arabs, he said, fought with Britain against the Nazis.

"So did the Jews," interjected Churchill.

"After all, this is my speech," Bevin replied.

Bevin declared Czechoslovakia has been "pouring" arms into Israel in violation of the truce.

He defended the dispatch of British troops to the Trans-Jordan port of Aqaba on the Red Sea by saying Britain's whole position in the Middle East might have been endangered by Israel's invasion of Egypt, and he asserted that the dispatch of the troops as a caution to Israeli had a lot to do with starting Israel-Egypt armistice negotiations.

Regarding recognition of Israel, Bevin said:

"The State of Israel is now a fact and we have not tried to undo it or done anything to undo it."

It is absolutely untrue, he said, that Britain encouraged the Arabs to attack Israel.

Churchill said that when Palestine fighting started Bevin thought the Arabs would win. Churchill commented that he himself thought the Jews would win.

"Britain's plight is due not only to mental inertia and lack of grip on the part of the ministers concerned but also to a very strong direct streak of bias and prejudice on the part of the Foreign Secretary," Churchill said.

"I do not feel any great confidence that he has not got a prejudice against the Jews in Palestine."

Woods Opens Fight In Landlord Strike

Rent Director Tighe E. Woods last night threatened possible legal steps against landlords who would rather shutter up their houses and apartments than operate under proposed new rent laws.

Murphy

In a radio broadcast, Woods said it is "questionable whether landlords who order wholesale evictions are acting within the law. He said his office is studying the matter now and may decide to seek court injunctions to prevent such evictions.

The evictions, which threaten to reach epidemic stage, began Tuesday when members of the Tulsa (Okla.) Property Owners Association said they were withdrawing their properties from the rental market. Eviction notices were mailed to 600 Tulsa families.

More Action Promised

The movement at Tulsa was led by the Rev. Wallace J. Murphy, secretary of the Property Owners Association there, who said similar action was being taken by property owners in about 20 cities.

Owners in Oklahoma City began distributing eviction notices to 1000 other families, while owners in several other cities set early meetings to consider similar action.

When first informed of the action, Woods said he believed his office was powerless under the present rent law. But he said last night that a further study indicated the landlords may not be acting in "good faith" in ordering wholesale evictions.

The present rent law provides that landlords may withdraw their property from the rental market if they are acting "in good faith." Such property cannot be rented again while the law is in effect.

"If they (the landlords) are determined not to be in good faith," Woods said, "we will petition the courts to restrain any such wholesale evictions."

Warned of Boomerang

Democratic Congressmen warned the participating landlords earlier that a strike against rent controls may bomerang in the form of quick passage by Congress of antieviction laws.

Alarmed and upset by the movement, several Administration legislators suggested the possibility of rushing through a stiffer rent control measure before the present rent law runs out March 31.

Bills are pending in both House and Senate to restore Federal regulation of evictions as well as extend rent controls for two years or more.

Senator Francis J. Myers (D., Pa.), sponsor of the Senate bill, said the Tulsa movement "points up one of the glaring faults of the present act."

He branded the strike "a revolt against ordinary decency." But he predicted it would "help to guarantee passage of legislation restoring eviction controls to the Federal Government."

To Protect Value

Lieut. Cooper Explains Talk On Property

Lieut. George E. Cooper, No. 12 Precinct police officer, yesterday explained statements he made Monday night before a meeting of the North Capitol Citizens Association.

Lieutenant Cooper was quoted as having suggested that white residents of a neighborhood could sign surety bonds against selling their property to Negroes. He said yesterday that he attended the association meeting as an official representative of the Twelfth Precinct, and did not make a prepared speech to the group.

He said that several questions were put to him on what could be done to prevent the devaluation of residential property by sale of adjacent property.

Lieutenant Cooper said he told the group that the only suggestion he could make was one "any businessman would use"—the issuance of surety bonds for protection of the property. He said he used the word "undesirable" and did not make any racial references in his answers.

Lieutenant Cooper explained that any group—either of property owners in a given block or of members of a citizens association, could take out such bonds in common. He suggested a figure of $2000 as bond surety, and told association members he believed the courts would uphold legality of such a bond.

The precinct officer said that he attends most association meetings as a police representative, and is frequently asked for advice, sometimes on matters not within police jurisdiction.

Artists' Group Meets

The Artists' Equity Association will meet today at 2:30 p. m. in the auditorium of the Corcoran Gallery of Art.

McShain Co. Low Bid Takes $21 Million GAO Building Job

The John McShain Construction Co. of Philadelphia, Pa., will build the new General Accounting Office building in the block bounded by G and H sts. nw. at 4th and 5th, for $21,572,000, it was announced yesterday by the Public Buildings Administration.

Ten escalators and 12 elevators will be constructed by the Westinghouse Electric Corp., Jersey City, N. J., for $1,384,999.

Enough Workers Here

No workers will have to be imported from outside the District, a spokesman for the AFL Building Trades Council said yesterday. Frank J. O'Connor, council secretary, estimated that as many as 5000 men may be involved in the construction, but not at one time.

Announcement of the low bids yesterday brings to an end GAO's 18-year campaign for its own home. Excavation was started in 1941, but work was halted by the war.

The GAO building will be of limestone, seven stories high. Parking space for 800 cars, a cafeteria, and almost a million square feet of office space will be provided.

Other Bidders on Project

The Charles H. Thompkins Co. of Washington joined with three non-District firms in submitting a bid of $22,368,397 for construction of the office building. Acting with Thompkins was Peter Kiewit Sons. Co., Omaha, Nebr.; J. A. Jones Construction Co., Charlotte, N. C., and Johnson, Drake & Pieper, Inc. of New York City.

The George A. Fuller Co. of Washington submitted a bid of $27,707,000.

The Otis Elevator Co. of Washington, and the Haughton Elevator Co. of Washington submitted unsuccessful bids on installation of escalators and elevators.

Otis bid $639,626 on the escalators, and $807,846 on the elevators; Haughton bid $623,164 on the escalators, and $809,950 on the elevators.

Two Counties Soon to Need More Water

Rapid expansion of Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties will necessitate construction of a 10-million-gallon water plant in the next two years.

This was revealed last night by Dwight B. Galt, chairman of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission. He said existing water facilities for the two counties are "now close" to the peak of their production.

Speaking at the annual Legislative Night sponsored by Prince Georges Chamber of Commerce, Galt said the commission would ask the Maryland General Assembly to authorize a four-million-dollar bond issue to pay for needed expansion.

Besides paying for a 10-million-gallon plant at Willis School, near Laurel, the money would be used to set up a new water supply from the Patuxent River to the Willis School plant and a 42-inch water main from the school to Wheaton.

Galt told approximately 150 persons who attended the meeting at Prince Georges Country Club that the present water capacity is 20 million gallons daily. The counties' combined consumption now ranges from 17 million to 19 million gallons a day, he said.

He also stated that authorization for a million-dollar bond issue to provide additional storm drainage facilities would be asked, and another $75,000 bond issue will be sought, he said, to increase the capacity of the Montgomery County incinerator.

Cuba Asks Other Nations To Oppose Dictators

Havana, Cuba, Jan. 26 (AP).—Cuba has invited at least six other American republics to join her in a "spiritual" antidictator bloc by denying recognition to new regimes established by force, reliable sources reported tonight. Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Ecuador, Guatemala and Mexico were listed as the countries invited.

Va. Churches Vote Continued Classes

Richmond, Va., Jan. 26 (AP).—The Virginia Council of Churches voted today to continue its present program of "released time" weekday religious education in the public schools.

This action came at the council's annual meeting when it formally adopted a statement prepared on the subject.

In it, the council said it believed "many church leaders, educators and other citizens are not well informed regarding the principles which undergird this program or its plan of operation."

"The Virginia plan," the council said, "has been popular with church workers, educators and parents. Evidence of this fact is that for 20 years, parents have enrolled more than 95 per cent of the children who have been given an opportunity to enroll."

The council statement said that in many Virginia schools the curriculum emphasis "is given to the common principles of faith which are held by Jews, Protestants and Roman Catholics."

The purpose of this emphasis, it added, "is to promote understanding and good will—to help little children to understand and appreciate the vast contribution which each of these three major faiths has made to civilization."

In sponsoring the Virginia program, the council said it is following the advice of legal counsel.

Catholic Drive Is Charged

threat to religious liberty and violation of the first amendment.

The organization announced it would launch a three-year campaign for a million dollars to form a "resistance movement" to "cope with the aggressive program of the Roman Catholic Church backed by its vast campaign fund."

The announcement referred to a statement by the Catholic bishops of the United States last fall after their annual meeting. At that time the hierarchy challenged a Supreme Court ruling on religion in the schools and declared it would work "peacefully, patiently, and perseveringly" to revise the interpretation.

Yesterday's statement accused the hierarchy of a "novel interpretation" of the First Amendment.

The Supreme Court ruling in the McCollum case in Champaign, Ill., "constitutes a historical landmark in the interpretation of the religion clause of the First Amendment," according to the statement.

The high court decision outlawed religious classes in public schools in Champaign, upholding the claim of Mrs. Vashti McCollum that the "released-time" classes violated the Constitution by forcing religion on her son.

Public Opinion Held Aroused

Public opinion has been aroused "to the danger which threatens religious liberty" by the decision and "the revelation that in many other places there exist even more flagrant infractions of the Constitution," the POAU statement said.

Stating that the Catholic Church has "extensive facilities of propaganda and political pressure, implemented by huge financial resources," the document asserted that the church "removes itself from democratic criticism by its sacrosanctity."

The POAU declaration said the challenge to the First Amendment and the principle of separation of church and state has been "sharply defined" by the "delay in fulfillment of the President's assurance that the Ambassadorship of Myron C. Taylor to the Pope as head of the Roman Catholic Church would be discontinued."

(In June, 1946, a group of Protestant clergymen called on President Truman to protest Taylor's presence at the Vatican. A member of the group later said the President told them that Taylor's mission was a temporary one, and would end with the signing of the peace treaties. The President later told a press conference that he told the ministers the mission would end when there was peace in the world.—Editor's Note)

Officers of the organization who indorsed the statement were Edwin McNeill Poteat, minister of Pullen Memorial Baptist Church, Raleigh, N. C.; Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, Methodist Bishop of the New York area, John A. Mackay, president of Princeton Theological Seminary, Princeton, N. J., Charles Clayton Morrison, former editor of Christian Century; E. H. DeGroot, jr., formerly a lawyer with the Interstate Commerce Commission, and J. M. Dawson, executive secretary for public relations of the Baptists of the United States.

At 2 p. m. today the first general session of the organization will be held at National City Christian Church, Thomas Circle. Leaders in the organization will discuss the religion and the public schools at the session. At 8 tonight Bishop Oxnam will be the main speaker at a mass meeting in Constitution Hall.

Gala Program Set for Friday By Scottish Rite

Entertainment surprises are promised for members of the Scottish Rite and their ladies at a program designed especially for the ladies at Lisner Auditorium, 21st and H sts. nw., Friday at 8:30 p. m. The program is sponsored by the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry of the Valley of Washington.

The entire cast is composed of members of the Rite, many of whom have established reputations as professionals in the amusement world.

The committee consists of Raymond N. Babcock, chairman; Omer Clark, Richard E. Titlow and Evan Jones. The production is under the direction of Jones.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Heads Fund Drive

New York, Jan. 26 (AP).—John D. Rockefeller, jr., will serve as chairman of the national council of the United Negro College fund in 1949 for a second year.

Thomas A. Morgan, chairman of the board of the Sperry Corp. and also of the fund board, said the council raised $1,145,896 last year to help Negro colleges.

Winthrowp W. Aldrich, chairman of the board of the Chase National Bank, also has agreed to serve as treasurer for a second year.

J. R. Young, Jr., In New Business

John Russell Young, jr., only son of the president of the District Board of Commissioners, and Charles Stofberg, special assistant to the Commissioner, have opened an auto laundry at 62 H st. ne.

Stofberg said yesterday that Young, jr., and himself are partners with M. E. Edlavitch in the operation of the Capitol Auto Laundry, which began operations a month ago near the Government Printing Office.

The special assistant to Commissioner Young said his interest in the firm was as an investment and that the establishment has no business from the District government. He plans to retain his D. C. job.

Dame Myra's Performance Incomparable

By Paul Hume

It is a self-evident fact that there is only one Dame Myra Hess.

But the ramifications of this simple statement are many. There is no other pianist who plays with the same kind of authority or the same degree of controlled enthusiasm. Last night's concert by the great Englishwoman showed an artist enjoying herself more completely in her happy tasks than any artist has showed in years.

Bach's Italian Concerto, Chopin's F Minor Fantasy, Schumann's Symphonic Etudes and Mozart's early Concerto in E Flat are favorite scores to Dame Myra. She loves them and loves to play them. Her overflowing affection found its way into every phrase.

Increasing Interest

The slow movement of the Bach concerto unfolded from her hands as an unbroken golden ribbon. It wound through measure upon measure, never failing to increase the listener's interest and admiration.

Her phrasing in the rapid outer movements seemed a joyous dancing thing. The piano became again an instrument of color with many lights and shades. Chopin's dramatic and tragic fantasy moved the artist to great heights. Her handling of the repeated octaves at the beginning was matched by the rush of descending octaves later. The entire work took on new life as Dame Myra expounded its beauties.

Schumann's variations seemed long, through no fault of pianism or artistry, but because Schumann occasionally failed for inspiration. Four encores followed like heavenly manna.

Dazzling Treatment

The Mozart concerto was a dazzling thing, with its farsighted slow movement and its conception of the piano as a solo instrument presaging later concertos. If the whole concerto was perfectly conceived by the pianist, the last movement seemed especially starred. The splendor with which its initial theme was announced each time it occurred was rare indeed.

Members of the National Symphony Orchestra accompanied the soloist, under Hans Kindler. Dame Myra generously shared the ovation following the concerto with the conductor. The evening was a long sustained triumph for one of the great figures of our time. Dame Myra Hess is a person whose human qualities and great generosity surpass even her warmly personal art. She does music honor, even as musicians join in honoring her.

4 Noted Artists Booked Here For Symphony

Mitropoulas Beecham

Szell Ansermet

A brilliant cast of guest conductors, including Sir Thomas Beecham, George Szell, Dmitri Mitropoulos and Ernst Ansermet, has been announced by the National Symphony Orchestra for its 1949-50 season.

None of the four conductors has led the National Symphony before. Dates of their appearances have not yet been announced.

Sir Thomas Beecham, 69-year-old founder of the London Philharmonic Orchestra, has made hundreds of appearances in the United States since his first visit here in 1928 as guest conductor for the New York Philharmonic.

George Szell, pianist and composer as well as conductor, is a native of Czeckoslovakia. A child prodigy, he made his first appearance as a pianist at the age of 10 with the Vienna Symphony, and took his bow as a conductor at 17 with the Berlin Philharmonic. The 51-year-old Szell, who came to this country in 1939, has been musical director of the Cleveland Orchestra since 1946.

Dmitri Mitropoulos, virtuoso pianist as well as a dynamic conductor, has led the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra since 1937. The 52-year-old native of Greece first came to the United States in 1936.

Ernst Ansermet, 65, is the Swiss-born founder and conductor of the Orchestra de la Suisse Romande in Geneva. He conducted the Russian Ballet of Serge Diaghilev a quarter of a century ago, and has appeared this year as guest conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Mrs. Meyer Calls Health Plan Dangerous to Human Welfare

Special to The Washington Post

South Hadley, Mass., Jan. 26.—Compulsory health insurance represents "a dangerous short-cut to human welfare," Mrs. Eugene Meyer said here tonight.

Mrs. Meyer, wife of the chairman of the board of The Washington Post, spoke to the undergraduate student body of Mount Holyoke College on the subject, "The Community and Its Role in the Life of the Nation."

Democratic ends must be achieved by democratic means, she declared, warning that "security cannot be obtained for American citizens by slavish imitation of over-centralized European society."

Citing the need to protect not only the health of the individual but the health of society, Mrs. Meyer declared:

"Compulsory health insurance would give us a costly administrative bureaucracy, but not doctors, nurses and hospitals. In fact, the implementation of a preventive national health program, the establishment of local health departments throughout the country, the training of additional medical personnel and the construction of sufficient hospitals and clinics, would be delayed, if not made impossible, if we spend enormous sums of money on the administrative machinery of compulsory health insurance.

"Although I support wholeheartedly the rest of President Truman's welfare program," she said, "I am opposed to Senator Murray's bill for compulsory health insurance because our American democracy must resist the development of a vast, overroutinized, professional civil service as one of the worst forms of despotism which would destroy the cooperative, competitive, formative, democratic processes essential to the education of a democratic people and to the maintenance of a republic."

At the same time, the speaker emphasized, adequate health services must be accessible to all citizens.

"What we need to lift the fear of sickness and the high cost of modern medical care from the minds of our people," Mrs. Meyer said, "is the rapid development of voluntary insurance groups such as the Blue Shield and the Blue Cross."

She termed the community "the source and training ground of an ever-fresh supply of local, State and national leadership without which democracy cannot function."

"The real meaning of freedom," Mrs. Meyer stated, "is something far more important than the right to private property. It is the divine right to develop our native capacities to the utmost. But this right to self-development, the right to education, health and welfare is costly. It depends, therefore, on our per capita production.

"To the Communists, production is an end in itself and human beings are merely tools to serve that end. To the true democratic philosophy, production is not an end in itself but the means of preserving and expanding the freedom of people as a whole."

11 Indicted in Raid On Struck Plants

Kalamazoo, Mich., Jan. 26 (AP).—A grand jury hung criminal indictments on 11 CIO United Steelworkers today as the aftermath of a commando-type dawn raid on the struck Shakespeare Co. plants here.

The defendants were slated for arraignment Thursday on indictments returned by Circuit Judge John Simpson, one-man State grand juror. Conviction carries maximum penalties up to five years in prison.

Bricks were hurled, autos overturned, windows smashed, a truck burned, equipment damaged and seven workmen injured during the 300-man invasion last December 1.

At the time, Police Chief Howard Hoyt labeled the raiders "union goons."

Defendants Named

Judge Simpson's indictments named Thomas Shane, State director of the USW-CIO; Glen E. Sigman, the international union representative who led the Shakespeare strike, and nine others. Ten of the defendants are from the Detroit area and one from Kalamazoo.

There was no immediate comment from Shane or the others.

Shane, Sigman, Harry Stefanick, a Detroit steelworker, and five others were accused on 11 counts covering conspiracy to commit assault, incite a riot and break, enter and destroy property.

Stefanick and three other men were named in a second indictment charging actual breaking and entry into the plants.

With sharp precision, the raiders sped into the city about dawn, barricaded streets, invaded the plants and then drove away in their cars.

700 Members on Strike

About 700 members of the USW were on strike at the time in dispute over seniority and other contract provisions. Wages were not an issue. The walkout, which began September 7, is continuing.

Shortly after the raid, Shane described it as a union "rally" in support of the strikers. He said USW members from throughout Michigan took part.

The company's plants manufacture fishing tackle and auto parts. Shane accused the management of importing "strike breakers" and said the latter provoked the December 1 violence.

Representative Hoffman (R., Mich.) conducted a brief inquiry into the raid last month when he still was a member of the House Labor Committee. Representative Lesinski (D., Mich.) questioned his right to carry out such a one-man probe, however. Lesinski said he would conduct a separate investigation as chairman of the Labor Committee in the Eighty-first Congress.

Teacher Learns To 'Jimmy' Door

MRS. REBA H. MORRISSETTE, director of Happy Hollow Playground, shows how she pried open a storeroom door. Mrs. Morrissette swapped her baton for a screwdriver yesterday when "Farewell to Aprons" resembled a real-life drama more than a one-act play. After rehearsing the play, she dismissed her 35-member rhythm band at the playground, 18th and Kalorama rd. nw., and went to the storeroom to get her coat and apartment key. The door, she discovered, was firmly padlocked. When police arrived to lend a hand, Mrs. Morrissette had "jimmied" the door open

Pipe-Lifting Pair Seized

Two men were arrested early yesterday after a 4-mile chase through Southwest Washington.

Police Pvts. Robert A. Isaacs and J. W. Latimer were cruising in a patrol wagon at 3:20 a. m. when, at Minnesota ave. and C st. se., they surprised two men who were loading iron pipes from a construction job into a taxicab.

As the patrol wagon made a "U" turn, the men jumped into the cab and dashed off.

During the chase, the men in the cab tossed out the pipe at Minnesota ave. and Anacostia rd., then sped away from the slower patrol wagon.

The policemen had used the radio, and scout cars and motorcycle men in the area were alerted. A few minutes later, two motorcycle officers stopped a cab at 23d st. and Benning rd. se., and arrested two men.

House Group Rejects Hook

the Eightieth Congress, clashed with the House Committee on Un-American Affairs in 1945. He then charged that the committee was attempting to break down the labor movement in this country.

The same year he had a bit of fisticuffs with Representative John E. Rankin (D., Miss.) over the Mississippian's accusation that Hook was "mixed up with" Communists. A group of Rankin's Southern colleagues announced they would seek Hook's expulsion. The following day Hook apologized for the incident before the House.

Backed by labor, Hook ran against Senator Ferguson in November. Hook has protested the race to the Senate.

Veteran Capitol Hill officials said it was the first time within their memory that a committee chairman nomination for chief clerk or counsel had been turned down by his committee.

Chairman Lesinski was upheld in his choice of other staff members. He named a subcommittee of himself; the senior Democrat, Graham Braden (D., N. C., and the senior Republican, McConnell, to recommend another candidate for the counsel's post.

Having disposed the Hook dispute, Chairman Lesinski named Representative Augustine B. Kelley (R., Pa.) chairman of a subcommittee to deal with the Taft-Hartley Act. The committee will be made up of five Democrats and three Republicans.

Kelley said he hoped to organize the subcommittee by the week's end and begin hearings Tuesday.

The Pennsylvanian said he hoped to confine the hearings to repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act and restoration of the Wagner Act, and no more. He conceded, however, that the Administration leaders in the House and the committee itself might insist upon adding amendments. At any rate, Kelley added, he aimed to complete hearings within a week after they began.

It was agreed within the committee according to Senior Republican Member McConnell, that Kelley's subcommittee would not hold any Taft-Hartley hearings while the full committee was holding a session on legislation to raise the minimum wages from 40 to 75 cents an hour.

Minimum wage hearings start today at 10 a. m. in the committee chambers, with Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin and Wage and Hour Administrator William R. McComb scheduled to testify.

Meanwhile, a White House meeting last night reportedly went over the draft of an Administration "one-package" bill to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act, revive the Wagner Labor Relations Act and strengthen the Labor Department. The bill is expected to be sent to the Capitol today or Friday.

Senate Labor Committee hearings on repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act begin at 10 a. m. Friday in the Senate Building caucus room.

Virginia to Run Transit Lines If Tri-City Strike Occurs

Richmond, Va., Jan. 26 (AP).—A proclamation and executive order for State seizure of Virginia Transit Co. facilities in Richmond, Portsmouth and Norfolk in event of a strike February 3 were issued late today by Governor Tuck.

The proclamation announced that in accordance with provisions of the State's public utilities labor relations law the Governor, acting in behalf of the Commonwealth, would take possession of VTC facilities at 12:01 a. m. February 3 in the three cities.

In his executive order, the Governor designated the three members of the State Corporation Commission, W. Marshall King, H. Lester Hooker and L. McCarthy Downs, as his agents to operate the transit facilities to prevent interruption in service.

The order directed the SCC members to proceed to ascertain from company management in the three cities positions to be filled to operate the facilities efficiently, the names of employes holding these positions, their duties and whether they will accept employment by the State.

L. B. Edwards, president of the Richmond local of the union, said he was advising the SCC that so far as he knew union members would work for the Commonwealth. SCC members also said it was expected the union members would stay on the job for the State.

In yesterday's referendum, members of the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America voted down a company offer of 3½ cents an hour wage increase plus an additional 4 cents should the company get fare boosts in Richmond and Norfolk.

The Portsmouth group voted to accept the company offer.

A spokesman for the Portsmouth drivers, however, said tonight "we will have to follow the procedure of the Norfolk and Richmond locals," adding that "we work under one blanket contract."

Local Rule Bill Offered In Maryland

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 26.—The Maryland General Assembly today was asked to extend greater local authority to Maryland towns and cities in a move lending impetus to growing State-wide, home rule sentiment.

The new local rule bill was introduced in the State Senate by Senator Edward D. Storm (D., Frederick County).

The new bill is in addition to "home rule" legislation being prepared by the Maryland League of Municipalities.

The league's proposal, scheduled for early introduction, would call for a Maryland constitutional amendment on the subject and would be State-wide in scope.

Storm's bill, which would extend home rule through General Assembly action, would apply only to Montgomery, Frederick, Carroll, Garrett, Harford, Howard, Queen Annes and Talbot Counties.

Identical Goal

Both the league's proposal and Storm's bill, however, aim at the same goal—giving residents of incorporated municipalities greater powers of government and relieving the General Assembly of much of its present burden of legislating for these communities.

Storm recalled today that during the 1947 session, State legislators were asked to consider about 1700 bills, more than half of which, he said, concerned only local matters.

His bill would give town officials authority to pass local laws not conflicting with State statutes and to appropriate funds for any purpose believed necessary for safety, health, trade, commerce, recreation and general welfare.

Bonds under his bill could be issued by the localities up to 7 per cent of the town's assessable base, provided those sold in any one year would not exceed 1 per cent of the assessable base.

Powers Prescribed

Local officials could also establish fire departments, appoint health officers, set up a police force and a jail, fix salaries of municipal employes except their own, build sewers, construct sidewalks and street lights, and zone land.

The bill also sets up a model town charter and prescribes uniform election procedures for all towns.

Passage of the bill, the Senator declared, would result in an increase in the number of candidates for office in smaller communities, since present restrictions on the powers of mayors and councils, according to him, have discouraged many who otherwise would run for office.

Montgomery County last fall became the first Maryland county to adopt a "home rule" charter under the constitution and, according to observers here, the Montgomery move started a home-rule sentiment which is spreading throughout the State.

Maryland Senate Passes Bill to Help Alcoholics

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 26 (AP).—The Maryland Senate, with only two dissenters, passed a bill today to "help chronic alcoholics—sick men."

The measure, which was sent to the House for action, would create an unpaid commission on alcoholism and appropriate $100,000 every year to maintain four hospital clinics for chronic tipplers.

Senator Henry H. Balch (D., Talbot), who said he knew "how sick some drunks can be" but regarded State care as "paternalistic," and Senator Edward D. Storm (D., Frederick) were the only two to vote against the bill.

Senator W. C. Carter (D., Baltimore, 3d) voted for it after a floor agreement that the House would attach an amendment requiring financially able patients to pay for clinical treatment.

The Senate put off until tomorrow a decision on the administration-backed measure to keep the earned income tax rate at 2 per cent. Without a repealer, the charge would go up one-half of 1 per cent on 1948 income.

House District Committee in First Meeting . . .

Bill Requests Md. U. Report Fund Grants

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 26 (Spl.).—The University of Maryland may be forced to give a stricter accounting of funds.

A bill was introduced in the House of Delegates today which would require university officials to submit for the first time detailed budgets, which would show, among other things, grants from the Federal Government.

Introduced by Delegate Horace P. Whitworth (R., Alleghany), the bill's preamble charged that a request for such a budget by the House of Delegates in 1941 had been ignored.

The development followed by one day a recommendation by Governor Lane that 13 million dollars be granted the university for 1949-50 and a heated floor debate in the Senate on the quality of instruction at College Park.

The discussion was started by Senator Howard S. O'Neill (R., Harford), who stated that teaching standards at the university had been de-emphasized in favor of a huge building program.

He was supported by Senator Stanford Hoff (R., Carroll), who said, "Millions have been poured into the building program, but the university has failed to keep pace with many other institutions elsewhere in academic standards."

Defending Dr. H. C. Byrd, university president, for giving priority to the multi-million-dollar building program, Senator L. Harold Sothoron (D., Prince Georges) declared:

"When you get the proper physical plant, you can buy the finest professors in the world for a dime a dozen."

Additional support came from Senators Roy Tasco Davis (R., Montgomery), Louis L. Goldstein (D., Calvert) and J. Otis McAllister (R., Dorchester).

'Girl-Shy' Camel Runs a Mile to Escape New Mate

Los Angeles, Jan. 26 (U.P.).—Griffith Park zoo officials were puzzled today over what to do with Hal, a male camel who'd walk a mile to get away from a female camel.

Yesterday, they put a lady camel into Hal's cage, figuring they were doing him a favor as well as assuring themselves of some baby camels after a while.

But the 3-year-old Hal was girl-shy. The newcomer chased him all over the cage. When she trapped him in a corner, Hal just cowered and then ran some more.

The zookeepers, who spent $1500 to get the girl friend from a Ventura County zoo, were wondering what they could do to make Hal more amorous.

House Committee Setup Shifts Home Rule Hopes to Senate

(D., Tenn.). Members of the Senate group have indicated strong sympathy for the home-rule idea.

The House District group deferred adoption of procedural rules pending further study. One proposed rule said: "No announcement or publicity shall be given to the final action taken or to the recommendations made by any subcommittee until the matter has been reported and acted upon by the full committee or until the release of such information is authorized by the chairman.

Representative Miller, after hearing the proposed rule, said he felt that members of both parties on the District Committee should have the right to express their views on matters of interest here without being subject to a rule "that might gag us."

In another development, Representative James W. Wadsworth (R., N. Y.), veteran of many years service in both the Senate and House, was assigned to membership on the House District Committee. He served in the Senate from 1914 to 1926, and has been in the House since 1932. He is a member of the Key House Rules Committee. On the Democratic side, Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) serves on both the Rules and District Committees.

The District Committee approved McMillan's appointment of William N. McLeod, jr., to be clerk of the committee. He served in that job when McMillan was chairman before in 1946. Miss Mabel Goodwin Haller, clerk in the last Congress, and previously clerk when former Representative Jennings Randolph (D., W. Va.) was chairman, was assigned to the committee's professional staff.

Other Subcommittees Named

Other subcommittees named by McMillan were:

Health, Education and Recreation: Representative Abernethy, chairman; Representatives Smith, James C. Davis (D., Ga.) and Walter K. Granger (D., Utah), Miller (R., Nebr.), Auchincloss and Benjamin F. James (R., Pa.).

Public Service, Streets and Traffic: Chairman Davis and Representatives Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.), Smith, James H. Harrison D., La.), Redden, J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.), Sid Simpson (R., Ill.) and Allen.

Public Utilities, Insurance and Banking: Chairman John F. Kennedy (D., Mass.), Teague, Frank Buchanan (D., Pa.), George P. Miller (D., Calif.), Simpson and Henry O. Talle (R., Iowa).

Raffle 'Winner,' Blocked by Crowd, Loses Auto Prize

West Hartford, Conn., Jan. 26 (U.P.).—A brand new $1600 automobile was offered free to a Hartford man last night—but he couldn't take it.

The name of Joseph Elansky was drawn as 5000 persons with raffle chances jammed in and about a garage. Elansky was given five minutes in which to claim the car.

One hundred yards away, the first elated — then frantic man pushed and elbowed through the crowd.

Finally he wedged up to the platform—just in time to hear the auto being awarded to someone else.

Elansky said he'll sue.

Lobbyists' Misuse Of Privileges Hit

The privilege of free access to the floors of Congress now extended to former members of Congress may be challenged as a result of lobbying misuses of the privilege, Washington Correspondent Truman Felt said last night.

Felt was interviewed by John Herling on WCFM on the future of congressional lobbies.

The correspondent listed numerous former Congress members now engaged in lobbying and gave their present affiliations. He said the most that can be hoped for now, however, is to force those who represent pressure groups to operate in the open.

Hoover Sees Anguished Cries on Reorganization

New York, Jan. 26 (U.P.).—Former President Herbert Hoover said tonight there no doubt will be "cries of anguish" from Government bureaus which consider themselves indispensable when his commission presents its recommendations for the reorganization of the Federal Government.

But "If nobody is hurt, you can take it there is no reorganization of the Government, he said.

Mr. Hoover spoke to 2300 guests at a dinner of the Economic Club at the Hotel Astor.

Teachers Study Single Course On Sciences

A plan to incorporate all of the physical sciences into a single high school course currently is under study by a group of Washington teachers.

Keith Johnson, head of the science department of the white schools, said that the committee shortly will recommend to the Board of Education an integrated course to be tried out on an experimental basis next year.

Thephysical sciences, including physics, chemistry, astronomy, geology, aeronautics and meterology, will be coordinated to give student a total picture of the environment.

The new course, Johnson said, is designed primarily for the great mass of students who take only the one year of required science.

At present they have a choice between chemistry, physics or biology. Johnson said that eventually school officials hope to work biology into the integrated course.

The committee of 32 teachers is under the direction of Johnson and P. J. Rayford, head of the science department in the Negro schools.

Phone Boost 'Unwarranted,' Says Maryland Spokesman

Baltimore, Jan. 26 (AP).—A spokesman for Maryland's Attorney General Hall Hammond declared today the Chesapeake & Potomac Co.'s request for temporary telephone rate boosts was based on "an emergency of the firm's own making.

He added: "It is the feeling of the chief law enforcement officer that the State should voice its protest and do what it could to protect the people against what we think is an unwarranted request."

The spokesman, Richard Case, was one of three attorneys joining in a final onslaught on the proposed boost which the telephone company contends it needs because of critically reduced earnings.

Rate-Hike Hearing Ends

The hearing before the Public Service Commission on the temporary rate hike concluded today. The agency gave counsel for both sides 10 days to submit written briefs.

Case said he believed this was the first case where the attorney general actively participated in a temporary rate increase hearing.

A controversy developed in the closing arguments centered on the statute under which the telephone company is seeking the four-million-dollar temporary relief before presenting its case for a six-million-dollar permanent raise.

Holds PSC Is Obligated

Clarence W. Mills, attorney for the utility, contended the PSC was legally obligated to grant the emergency relief upon the company's showing it was not earning a reasonable return on its investment.

Case, and other foes of the increase, disputed this. They argued the statute intended temporary relief in exceptional emergency conditions and that the C. & P. has not shown that such a situation existed.

The proposed increase would add from 25 cents to $2 to monthly bills of Maryland subscribers.

Haylift

Over 100,000 cattle and over a million sheep are estimated to be prisoners of the snow on Western ranges. From North Dakota to Texas, from Nebraska to California, animals are suffering hunger and men are unable to feed them. Deep snow and bitter cold have made this winter one of the worst on record in the Western States, and the winter is not over yet nor the snow at an end. Nature's ugly mood threatens to take heavy toll of life on the hoof—and thereby cut deep into the future fresh-meat supply of the human animal.

The Federal Government and various State governments have already made or are contemplating emergency appropriations to help feed the starving critters. But cattle and sheep can't thrive on currency. "It ain't hay," though it may be green fodder for sustenance of life in the city. Since the cattle and sheep cannot come to the feed, it must be taken to them in their huddled isolation. And science, technology and the Air Force have again come to the rescue in the form of impromptu airlift operations carrying hay and concentrated feed to the ranges.

The difficulties are enormous—the weather is atrocious for flying, the airports must be cleared of snow, the herds are hard to find in the immense landscape, and pinpoint bombing with baled hay from a cargo plane is not yet a highly perfected technique. The final score in animals saved and lost is likely to be heavily on the loss side, we fear. But it won't be for lack of trying. And speaking, if we may, on behalf of both the starving cattle and the meat-hungry consumer, we give thanks again for the life-saving wonders of the Air Age.

Columbia Valley

President Truman feels that the election gave him a green light to go ahead with the development of the Columbia River Valley on a broad regional basis. Aside from the diehard opponents of public power in the Pacific Northwest, there seems to be considerable agreement on the general objective of regional development. There is a great deal of dispute, however, over techniques. Any Federal program must contrive to reconcile two fundamentally conflicting factors: the pronounced distrust of Federal control and the compelling need for some sort of top-level integration to eliminate duplications among the various agencies participating in the project.

It is fortunate, respecting the first point, that the President has avoided calling for a mere repetition of the Tennessee Valley Authority. TVA is a unique achievement which, despite certain defects in such matters as soil conservation, has contributed materially to the welfare of the people. There is a wealth of experience in TVA to guide similar developments elsewhere. But to advocate a Columbia project in the TVA image, as some planners have done, would be to say that all regions of the United States are the same, which is a patent absurdity.

Nowhere are individual and regional traits more pronounced than in the Pacific Northwest. This stems in part from the pioneering tradition of self-reliance. In some ways the ingrained fears of Government domination are irrational; for example, there seems to be little hesitation in the Northwest over accepting the benefits of Federally directed reclamation and flood control. At the same time there is no denying that to allow these fears to predominate would be to thwart any effective unified plan to make use of all the valley's resources.

Lack of coordination is reflected in the disparate and often wasteful efforts of the Federal agencies now in the field: the Army Engineers, the Bureau of Reclamation, and the Bonneville Power Administration. There is a very real danger that any program that does not include integration of these projects will result in a mere superficial alliance such as the boondoggle now going on in the Missouri Valley under the Pick-Sloan plan.

The same may be said for the various efforts now under way within the region itself. These contemplate local direction of the development through compact between the four principal States involved—Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana. Local direction has a great deal to commend it, but the question is whether any such program could be sufficiently insulated from political pressure groups to assure the extension of the project to all sections of the Columbia Valley. Moreover, Federal funds would still be required. It seems to us highly debatable whether the Federal Government should enter any such operation in which it did not have control over the objectives and efficiency of the operation on which money was to be spent.

What is necessary, in our opinion, is a reasonable compromise between the two extremes, retaining the principle of Federal responsibility for integration of the broad plan, but recognizing the importance of local representation and decentralized authority. Such a compromise could well make use of the device suggested by Representative Hugh Mitchell of an advisory council to be appointed by State Governors, as well as other means of bringing in the maximum of participation by residents of the valley. No sensible program can be evolved by yielding to the hyperthyroid cries of "socialism" that have already started. Neither can it come about through mere desk planning in Washington. This neglects the essential fact that for any project to succeed, it must be solidly grounded in support of the people it encompasses.

Bad Old Days

The present atmosphere in which the debate on the Atlantic Pact is being discussed is hardly conducive to an American signature. And no newspaper of record can ignore it. There is the matter, for instance, of the Dutch descent on Indonesia and the American attitude toward it. Police action was taken on December 19, just after the General Assembly had ended and the Security Council, which is supposed to be in constant session, had wound up its deliberations in Paris and was transferring itself back to New York. The timing looked suspiciously like an effort to take advantage of the U. N. recess.

Dutch police action is said to have been a surprise to everybody concerned. But, surely, the action did not surprise the man on the spot—that is to say, the American representatives in Indonesia and the U. N. Good Offices Committee, which includes an American member. Even a blitz requires preparations. Were these preparations reported to the State Department and, if so, what action was taken? It is said that the State Department was able to nip in the bud a Dutch effort to intervene last September when, unaided, the Republicans squelched a Communist outbreak at Madioen. By arrangement with ECA the Dutch were reminded that Marshall aid might be endangered by precipitate action. Was a similar effort undertaken prior to December 19?

We ask these questions because the report is persistent that the Dutch felt they got a go signal, either positively or negatively or acquiescently, from the State Department. That feeling, we are sure, has as flimsy a foundation as the British defense of RAF intervention over Palestine. The British allegation was scotched by both the White House and the State Department. We suggest that a similar dementi is needed in connection with Indonesia. It is just as important, in our opinion, to make the facts clear in regard to the Dutch, even though the reports to which we have reference have not come out in the open.

The atmosphere that needs to be dissipated for the approaching discussion of the Atlantic Pact is damaging to the United Nations. It is putting the United Nations in a sort of Ethiopian stage. In the middle '30s the time came when words in the League of Nations were one thing and acts outside another; when, bluntly, hypocrisy took hold of Geneva. At present the same Esau-and-Jacob situation is apparent in the proceedings of the United Nations. The Dutch have been making statements at Lake Success that are at variance with all the news coming out of Indonesia. The last discrepancy had to do with the status of the Republican leaders. Perhaps the disingenuousness is due to misinformation coming from the Dutchmen on the spot, so-called Batavia Dutch; but this does not exculpate Dutch spokesmen in the world's eyes.

Disillusion in these circumstances has a way of snowballing, especially where ideals are concerned. The danger must be faced of a reaction of American public opinion to naked power politics operating under cover of lip service to cooperative ideals. And it is bound to come if the present suspicious atmosphere is not cleared up. The issue is so important that the record on the State Department's relations to the Indonesian imbroglio should be made available to Congress and the public as a starter in the cleansing process.

Authority In Greece

Greek politicians have rallied in response to King Paul's ultimatum to compose their differences in a coalition of "national salvation" or step aside for some other more drastic solution. A measure of the scarcity of available leadership is the fact that the new cabinet is again headed by the aged and ailing Themistocles Sophoulis. It has, to be sure, a somewhat broadened base, but generally its composition is dismally similar to the predecessor governments which have witnessed inefficiency, scandal and mounting paralysis. Unless a new spirit has suddenly infused the leaders, it is scarcely conceivable that the bickering has been ended. The reshuffling will imply weakness both to the Greeks and to the outside world, and it points up the desperate need for new elections which the civil war now makes unfeasible.

The new element is the calling to duty of Gen. Alexander Papagos, hero of the campaign against the Italian invasion in 1940-41. There is little doubt that General Papagos will be the real power in Greece as he assumes direction of all military operations against the Communists. This consolidation is said to have been a longtime project of King Paul, and it has been supported by a large share of the press. Actually, the Papagos appointment will not amount precisely to dictatorship since he will still be responsible to Parliament—though the temptation will remain strong to resort to extralegal channels during the emergency. Doubtless the call for "authority" will invite more charges of "fascism" from Russia and her mouthpieces.

As a practical matter, the consolidated command and efforts to divorce military operations from politics may presage a more effective use of American aid. There will still remain, however, the broad question of internal economic and social reform. It is apparent by now that reform and the military campaign must go hand in hand if there is to be a regeneration of popular faith in Greece.

Acheson's Opener

When Secretary Acheson met the press at his first press conference yesterday, he no doubt was unaware that the newspaper corps has for some time been in a state of disgruntlement. It has had to put up with long silences, more and more off-the-record confidences, and, indeed, some dissembling. Some of the silences were enforced by Secretary Marshall's visits abroad, but even when the Secretary was in Washington his press conferences in the main were uninformative. In time of crisis, notably the failure of the Russo-Western talks over the blockade of Berlin, Secretary Marshall, to be sure, was very communicative, but the trouble then was that the public lacked an adequate background of knowledge. Moreover, at such times Secretary Marshall was apt to go "off the record."

In recent years this latter method of dealing with the press has been gravely abused. Perhaps the abuse is a wartime hangover. At any rate, when Mr. Marshall was Chief of Staff he made confidants of newspapermen, even on top secrets of strategy and tactics. But what was necessary in wartime is dangerous in peacetime. About this there is unanimous opinion by the men who have a secure title to statesmanship. "Publicity," said Disraeli, "is essential to public spirit." Elihu Root in his later years concluded that a successful foreign policy in a democracy demanded that the people be informed. Mr. Hughes echoed his great predecessor in both word and action, and no Secretary of State was more dutiful in this respect. It is almost totalitarian to expect a people to support a policy about which they know nothing or next to nothing. In Mr. Marshall's time many an off-the-record conference sewed up the newspapermen from writing half a dozen news stories they might have gathered from other sources. Before Mr. Marshall resigned, more than one newspaper, feeling a responsibility to its readers, was considering a boycott of such press conferences.

The press conference is useful nowadays for other purposes than to give the reporters news. A battle of ideas is in progress, and the Secretary has before him the microcosm of a truly global audience. How great the opportunity to state and restate the American philosophy! How unexampled the platform for dispelling foreign misconceptions! What a chance for propaganda! Evidently Secretary Acheson, judging from his initial press conference, intends to seize the occasion for these high purposes. The contrasts he drew between free and slave institutions were couched in vivid phrases that will echo and reecho around the earth. We trust the same statesmanship will guide him in keeping the newspapermen and the people abreast of the news. It was at the San Francisco Conference that the American newspaperman first discovered that he was less in the know than any of his foreign colleagues.

Plan Or Plot

The six-power bloc in eastern Europe is likely to cause as little enthusiasm within the satellite countries as trepidation elsewhere. Its purpose is transparent. The bloc is primarily aimed at strangling Yugoslavia under Marshal Tito which has had the temerity to declare its independence of the Cominform; in other words, to assert its sovereignty. Whether all the signatories will join wholeheartedly in the plot remains to be seen; we doubt, for instance, the goodwill of Poland. However, there can be no doubt that the knout will be used vigorously by the Soviet "partner."

It must have been with a rueful grimace that some of the signatories attached their names to the attack on the Marshall Plan which accompanied the declaration. The Marshall Plan is called an infringement of sovereignty. What sovereignty is left with Bulgaria, Hungary, Poland, Romania, and Czechoslovakia? Very little. What is their function? Clearly to serve as milch cows for the benefit of the Soviet Union. A case in point is Czechoslovakia, which, in a state of independence, enjoyed high living standards. Now its standards have slumped to starvation levels, yet the people are working harder and longer. The fruit of their labor, however, goes in the main to Soviet Russia. This is how the "system" works: leather of different quality is imported, and Czechoslovakia has to use the best material to make shoes for the Russians, leaving the worst grade for domestic consumption. No wonder the "system" can operate only in a police state operated by foreign supervisors, in Czechoslovakia's case, Germans.

In contrast to the servile colonialism imposed upon the five satellites, the Marshall Plan is aimed at building up national confidence and intra-European interdependence. It is encouragement that we are giving, not domination. As the participating countries grow in strength, they will have less and less need of Marshall aid, and should be given more and more responsibility for its allocation. For instance, the time is close at hand for a change in the handling of the counterpart funds which are set aside by the recipient countries in their own currencies. At present ECA holds the final decision on release and use. With the importance that OEEC (Organization of European Economic Cooperation) is taking on, ECA ought to rely more and more on this group, for it is the nucleus of an economically integrated Europe. There is no doubt as to which bloc the satellite peoples would prefer to belong.

Slaves Of Congress

Last Thursday I sat and watched the triumph of President Truman. I could not feel as glad as I should have, for I am a native Washingtonian. All we are for is to attend the celebrations and applaud. We are only extras who can be used to fill the crowds at every inaugural.

I have seen many Presidents promise to uphold the dignity of the office and to care for the welfare of the United States and the District of Columbia. The first President I saw and heard promise these things was U. S. Grant in 1873. As I was only 8 years old I don't remember about it. As the years rolled by and other men made these promises and we filled the chairs in the grandstands, there was always something missing. We were applauding for your President—not ours.

I was 20 years old in 1885 when Mr. Cleveland was made President. At that inaugural some relatives from the West were visiting us. They were all excited about being in Washington, the Capital of their country. One of these visitors was a small cousin, then about 10 years old. She told me that her daddy voted for Mr. Cleveland and asked for whom my daddy voted. (Of course, the women didn't vote then.) I explained that no one living in Washington was permitted to vote for the President. She was horrified and said, "Why can't you vote? Didn't Mr. Lincoln free you when he freed the slaves?"

I only hope that I may be blessed with enough more years so that I may be freed and be able to vote just once for our President of all the United States.

Twisted Words

How twisted can words get and still resemble what Webster says they mean?

Phillip Marshall Brown (letter published January 15) demands "decency and fair play against the unjust and ill-mannered treatment the Dutch people are receiving at the hands of the Security Council."

In his adulation of the honest, industrious (white) Dutch colonists, he chooses to overlook that the Indonesians, no matter how clumsily expressed, yearn for independence and the right of self-determination. He overlooks that Dr. Jessup, the American representative, brought a breath of fresh air to diplomacy by saying what he meant and meaning what he said without equivocation, based on established fact—the fact that the Dutch were the aggressors and that the Dutch used the same tactics as did the Japanese at Pearl Harbor, i. e., using "negotiations" as a facade to conceal pre-planned and long-organized operations.

May I suggest that H. G. Meyer (letter published January 15), who sheds tears for Chiang Kai-shek, read all of The Washington Post so that the honest scholarship and measured judgments of such observers as Marquis Childs, the Alsops, and Drew Pearson should be properly appreciated?

For example, Pearson rightly pointed out that the $175,000 that Mme. Chiang is spending for that estate in Virginia would feed quite a number of Chinese coolies.

The Chinese people are making up their own minds about the corruption of the Chiang regime and are expressing their dissatisfaction by apathetic resistance to the advance of the Communist armies and indifference to the entreaties of Chiang himself. Isn't it about time that we realize that being anti-Communist does not mean being pro-democratic.

Actedron

I read in The Washington Post of January 24 that on information in the London Tablet about Cardinal Mindszenty being given a drug named actedron has puzzled Washington scientists.

Aktedron is a well-known Hungarian product which corresponds almost exactly to the once famous German pervitiu. It is designed to remove inhibitions and fatigue and probably not suited to the ends of breaking the will of a prisoner. An abuse of Aktedron is supposed to be dangerous.

Oleo Tax

If there were ever a discriminatory and unjust tax, the tax on oleo most certainly qualifies. It doesn't discriminate against the Cubans or the Argentinians either, but strikes at the millions of American consumers who use it daily and at the thousands of American farmers who produce the ingredients.

The strange thing about the oleo tax is that there really isn't any one State or section which actually benefits from the tariff barrier which the tax was designed to establish, because the sections which produce butter are in general the very same farm sections which produce the essential ingredients of oleo.

Food has never been considered the proper source of tax revenue by the American people, so why single out this one food and stick a nuisance tax on it, and why add insult to injury and punish all of those who use this valuable and relatively inexpensive food by making us either color it ourselves or pay a further exasperating tax of 10 cents a pound for the privilege of buying it already colored? The dairies are permitted to use artificial coloring in butter.

Strategic Air Power

In your edition of January 23, is an article by Marshall Andrews, entitled "'Strategic' Air Plan Called Dangerous." In my opinion this article not only contains notable distortions of fact, but betrays an amazing lack of either interest in or comprehension of the facts of the last war.

To be of any value at all, an air force must guarantee quick and effective action against an enemy. The only force now in existence which can deliver such an attack is the Strategic Air Command of the USAF. Forced to maintain itself on an inadequate budget, the Air Force is obliged to reduce its other components in order to preserve this vital striking force at effective strength.

However the burden of Mr. Andrews' diatribe is that the entire theory of strategic air power is half-baked anyway, since it interfered with the prosecution of the last war as visualized by the ground and naval commanders. Mr. Andrews has presented two main points:

(a) Under "powerful and sustained strategic bombing," German war production continued to rise until tactical aircraft, which were otherwise rather a nuisance managed to destroy German internal transportation.

(b) It was necessary to use sea power to take the B-29 within range of Japan, hence the B-29 contributed nothing to the Pacific war.

Before we dissect these gems of speciousness, it would be best to define our terms. The strategic theory holds that, (1), modern nations are dependent on an exceedingly complex and interlocking industrial structure to maintain a war potential; (2), by sustained and powerful attacks on certain carefully selected "target systems" it is possible to disrupt the structure and destroy the effective war potential.

American strategic theory has never advocated the wholesale destruction of cities, rather considering this a useless dispersion of effort. The whole point of the theory is not to get something for nothing, but to concentrate maximum effective strength on an enemy's most vital point.

Tactical air power, on the other hand, exists only to support ground armies. It was "decisive in all theaters" of the last war only insofar as it permitted our great mass armies to exist at all.

As far as it goes, Mr. Andrews' statement that German war production rose under air bombardment is true—but it was neither "sustained" nor "powerful" air attack. Bombers were committed piecemeal until late in 1943, either with insufficient strength to damage vital target systems, or under the guidance of an unsound theory, as in the case of the RAF, which believed in the magical efficacy of area bombardment of cities.

German war production was never totalitarian in concept, as was ours, until Albert Speer started his great campaign to expand it. That plan came to fruition late in 1944, just as the first strategic attacks in strength began to hit it. Once this attack had commenced however, its effect was immediate. From December, 1944, onward, German production declined drastically, before Americans held any more of Germany than Aachen, and before the transportation targets had been given a high priority.

As for the Pacific war, it is best summed up by General Doolittle's remark to the effect that sea power made invasion of Japan possible, but the B-29 made it unnecessary. For strategic purposes, the ground war in the Pacific could have ended with the capture of the Marianas, since after that it was only a question of time before Japan's ramshackle economy collapsed under air attack.

Now in the interests of symmetrical organization charts and "interservice harmony," we are told to scrap the lessons of the last war, and prepare to organize our armed forces along the lines of the same obsolete theories of warfare. Does Mr. Andrews or his informant seriously believe that we could successfully prosecute a ground war against a power which raised an army of 550 divisions in the last war? Has he never heard of the atomic bomb? If so, he does not consider it worthy of mention in an article allegedly dealing with modern warfare.

Marching Cadets

I regretted to see in your issue of January 21 a full page picture of midshipmen marching in the inaugural parade, whereas you had only a small picture of the West Point cadets, whose marching precision is far superior to that of the "web feet." In addition, the picture of the Kaydets was taken in such a manner that it showed only their backs—but even so they are still superior in marching. I have to assume that The Washington Post is Navy.

In addition, another picture of the dance at the armory shows all males leading their partners with their right hands. This is an error both in boxing and dancing. Never lead with your right.

Modern Trek To Nature

By Malvina Lindsay

Childbirth Change

ON THE SURFACE it might seem as if back to nature exponents were having their day on the motherhood front.

Yale University's program for testing "natural" childbirth has just been reported to the Maternity Center Association of New York, which cooperated in the year-old experiment, as highly successful.

Almost simultaneously a leading obstetrician, Dr. James P. Greenhill of Chicago, has advocated to his highly trained modern colleagues that mothers get out of bed for ambulation the same day they have babies. And the swing back to breast feeding is reported gaining so much ground that bottles are becoming old fashioned.

Nevertheless the "good old days" when Mother Nature largely handled childbearing and baby tending—and when maternal and infant deaths helped materially to fill cemeteries—are not returning. For the hard-won gain over the years in saving the lives of mothers and infants in childbirth is to be held. This Congress will be asked to expand the Federal grants-in-aid program for maternal and child health services.

A BUTTRESS to these requests is the recent report of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. that in 1948 hazards of childbearing reached their lowest point on record—15 deaths per 10,000 live births. Yet as recently as 1942 this death rate was 25.9. And much of the gain in maternal safety has been made since 1930, before which the death rate was 70 per 10,000 births. Better prenatal care, advance in obstetrical practices, and public health services have brought this about.

Moreover the experimental "return" to natural childbirth is really an advance along the lines of psychosomatic medicine. It is an obstetrical attack on mankind's old enemy, fear—an enemy abetted through the centuries by old wives' horror tales of bornings.

In a report on the Yale experiment, Dr. Frederick W. Goodrich, jr., of the Yale University School of Medicine, said that the project was based on the concept that pain in a normal childbirth was largely caused by the tensions resulting from fear. The method followed at Yale, which was introduced in this country by Dr. Grantly Dick Read, British obstetrician, emphasizes relaxation of muscles, and confidence and serenity of mind. Prenatal instructions and exercise for expectant mothers, also counseling during labor, are a part of its regime.

This program calls for even more personal attendance from physicians, as well as the usual medical precautions, than do so-called artificial methods. In fact the chief charge against it is that it is time-consuming. Yet its adherents maintain that with more nurses and physicians trained for such service, the end result will be easier on everyone.

THIS RAISES the question as to whether "natural" childbirth was as easy in the past as is commonly believed, since in primitive times taboos, superstitions and fears of all kinds held sway. These were particularly directed toward women and the process of childbirth. Fear, barbaric practices and medical ignorance still make tragic the lot of many tribal women during their periods of pregnancy and childbearing, as Rebecca Reyher has shown so poignantly in her recent book "Zulu Woman" the story of one of the 65 wives of a Zulu king.

Yet even primitive people, supposedly children of nature, seek by their concoctions and incantations to allay pain and to meet other physical problems that develop in childbearing. How helpless they are in dealing with the more subtle problems of childbirth fear can well be imagined.

For that matter, national maternal aid programs can as yet only tackle the more material aspects of childbearing. These are still great, especially in regions remote from medical aid. The aim of these programs is primarily to save the lives of mothers and of infants—to prevent the infections, toxemias, hemorrhages and shock that have cost so many mothers' lives. Eventually they may be able to take on the psychological aspects of the problem. But as yet it requires time, money and other resources of civilization to provide "natural" childbirth.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

On Peace Offensives

THE COMMUNIST peace offensive was launched a few weeks ago by M. Cachin in an address to the French Parliament, and was then taken up vigorously by Signor Togliatti in Italy. It has coincided with the economic conference held in Moscow this month by Russia and her satellites, minus Yugoslavia and Finland. It has coincided also with the collapse of the Nationalists in China and the victory of the Communists.

Lippmann

The peace offensive in western Europe is, I believe, connected with the economic conference of eastern Europe and with the events in China. The connection, which was explained to me emphatically last November by certain highly influential Western Communists, is the realization that the Soviet orbit is as compared with the United States and western Europe, a much underdeveloped region of the earth. There is no doubt that it is: if we take the capacity to produce steel as a rough measure of industrial power, the whole Soviet orbit, vast as it is, is not within sight of being the equal even of western Europe—leaving out entirely the enormously greater industrial power of the United States.

These facts are not new. But what is almost certainly new is that the Communists in western and in eastern Europe—and almost certainly in the Kremlin—have realized and recognized these facts. The Soviet orbit is a big place, bigger than ever if it is to include China. The problem of supplying it with what it needs is a formidable undertaking, and Mr. Mikoyan who is, so to speak, the Paul Hoffman of the Soviet orbit, is probably very much aware that the satellites are also clients who want a lot more than he is able to give them.

A COMMUNIST who stands very high in the hierarchy told me that in his opinion it would take Russia 30 years to catch up with the United States, that the past two years had proved that Russia could not supply the eastern European countries with the capital goods that were essential if they were to raise their standard of life. And he went on to forecast not only the present agitation for peace but added the prediction that Moscow would relax her veto on collaboration with the Marshall Plan.

When I first heard it, I did not know what to make of this prediction: why if it was sincere, he made it to me; why, if it was not, he should tell a lie that events would soon expose. That was before Cachin and Togliatti had begun their agitation for peace.

THE CHARACTER of their campaign is such that I, for one, do not think it can be dismissed as mere psychological warfare. The notable thing about the Cachin-Togliatti campaign is that they are preaching peace and collaboration to their own followers—not merely to their opponents, as is always the case in a mere peace offensive.

Would they dare, I wonder, to do that if they intended to call upon their followers to launch more insurrectionary strikes like that which was attempted, and failed so miserably, in Italy last summer after Togliatti was shot, and in France last autumn in the coal mines? Cachin and Togliatti are intelligent men, and I find it hard to believe that they would soften up the French and Italian working classes if they were preparing for a new campaign of insurrectionary strikes.

KNOWING, as they do, how profoundly and widely they are suspected and distrusted, they must know that the practical test of their campaign for peace and collaboration will not be in the high diplomacy of Soviet-Western relations. The practical test will be immediate and continuous. It will be whether they use their influence among the trade unions to encourage or obstruct French and Italian production. If they obstruct, their campaign will collapse and they will have accomplished nothing except to prove in a very spectacular way to the working class of western Europe that they were lying. If they encourage production, their peace campaign will begin to accomplish what they say it is intended to accomplish.

There is, therefore, no reason why we should not wait and see, standing on the cool and sensible position taken by Mr. Lovett last week. If this is a mere peace offensive, a trick of psychological warfare, the behavior of the Communist dominated trade unions in France and Italy will expose the deceit far more convincingly than all the nervous warnings printed over here.

IF, MOREOVER, it is a mere peace offensive, another incident in the propaganda war, the one most obviously foolish way to answer it is to make the people of the world who yearn for peace think that we are afraid of peace and do not want it. Anyone who has studied the peace offensives of the two World Wars—and there were many from both sides—knows that the object of a peace offensive, one might say the mechanism of the booby-trap, is to get the other side to reject the idea of peace.

That rejection makes the peace offensive a success. It weakens the government which rejected peace because its own war-weary people wish it were not so warlike. It strengthens the government which offered the peace that was rejected by convincing its own war-weary people that they are confronted with an implacable enemy.

So let us not, in an excess of zeal, walk into a booby-trap.

Average Case Against Trusts Cost $200,000

New York, Jan. 26 (AP).—Attorney General Clark said today it costs the Government "upward of $200,000" to fight the average antitrust case, and he urged this solution: catch monopolies before they start.

In a speech prepared for the antitrust section of the New York State Bar Association, Clark said it takes from three to four years to get a final judgment on many such cases.

He invited attorneys dealing with mergers to bring their proposals to the Justice Department's special merger unit, which supplies advice on prospective consolidations which "might result in violations of the antitrust laws."

In that field, Clark said, "the constant trend toward concentration is the most dangerous enemy we have to fear." He added:

"I am proud to say that through the cooperation we have received from the bar, our merger unit has met with some success. Continued cooperation and understanding of the merger problem by the bar will be of considerable aid in the greater success of our program."

Clark described monopoly as "a tool of totalitarianism which handcuffs the individual and enchains democracy."

The President's Calling List

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday had the following White House callers:

11—Edwin L. Davis and William A. Ayres of FTC.

11:15—Senator Kilgore (D., W. Va.).

11:30—Amateur radio operators representing American Radio Relay League and Washington Area Radio Club.

11:45—Dr. Francis P. Gaines, president, W. and L. University.

12 noon—Edward S. Crocker, new Ambassador to Iraq.

12:45—Edward T. Ebersole, Twenty-first Judicial District judge.

1—Lunch.

3:15—Frank Pace, acting Budget director.

3:45—Frank Walker, former Postmaster General.

4—Senator Thomas (D., Utah), chairman Senate Labor Committee.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Who Makes Republican Policy?

OMAHA, Nebr.—The members of the Republican National Committee meeting here are not quite sure, for the most part, what they are meant to do.

Childs

Their uncertainty grows out of the split perspnality which the party presents to the country in this sad aftermath of a defeat so total and so totally unexpected

It is inaccurate, it seems to me, to present the split in ideological terms. This meeting, at any rate, is concerned with something far more practical. That is, who shall hold the reins of power in the coming months?

The present chairman of the committee, Representative Hugh D. Scott, jr., of Philadelphia, was put in that office by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, after Governor Dewey's nomination. Many of the committee members had never seen him, or for that matter even heard of him before he walked into the room as the anointed designate of the Dewey managers. Mr. Scott's position was not an easy one, since the day-to-day direction of the Dewey campaign was done by Herbert Brownell, jr.

Even before the members assembled here Mr. Scott proceeded to name an executive committee of preponderantly Dewey men. This has riled many of the old-timers and it may produce more fireworks than anyone had bargained for.

ONE OF the executive group is McIntyre Faries, member from California. Inspired stories in San Francisco newspapers declared that Faries was coming to the Omaha meeting with the express purpose of curbing the power of Senator Robert A. Taft and other Senate leaders. When Senator Taft in Washington saw these stories he attributed the intention to California's Gov. Earl Warren, since he felt that Faries was personally friendly to him.

Senator Taft and many others in Congress, including some who disagree with the Taft point of view, argue that the National Committee has no right to try to set policy. That is not, they insist, the function of the committee, which is, in essence, housekeeper and treasurer for the party.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan is another leader strongly opposed to giving power to make policy to the committee or to a Republican conference called by the committee. Senator Vandenberg believes that such conferences, with occasional rare exceptions, tend either to go off into meaningless vaporizing or to accentuate instead of reconciling party differences.

Republicans in 1950 must run on the record of Congress. That is the argument of these responsible leaders and it seems to make sense.

When Senator Taft went to visit Governor Dewey shortly after the Philadelphia convention of last June, the nominee told him he was going to conduct a campaign of sweetness and light. He used just those words, adding that he had always won on sweetness and light and had lost when he got into controversy.

NEVER conspicuous as an apostle of sweetness and light, Senator Taft did not argue. But he felt strongly that it would be impossible to ignore the record of the Eightieth Congress as Governor Dewey intended to do. In some way or other it had to be faced up to. What happened on November 2 seems to have proved this correct.

Looking ahead to 1950, Senator Taft and those who think like him would steer a cautious course in the Eighty-first Congress. As he has done before, the Ohio Senator will support education, housing and a limited form of medical aid.

He recognizes that these and similar reforms long advocated will cost additional money. But he believes that with economies elsewhere it will be possible to avoid a tax increase. Senator Taft will stoutly oppose any additional levy on business or on individuals.

This cautious wait-and-go-slow approach implies a belief that there will be a strong reaction to the extremes of the Truman program. Thanks in considerable part to that anticipated reaction the Republicans believe they will capture control of the Senate in 1950. They believe their chances are good for taking Democratic seats in California, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Kentucky, Maryland, Nevada, New York, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Utah and Washington.

No matter how fine or brave or angry the words spoken here, the balance of power is likely to rest with the Republicans in Congress. It is their bacon that is at stake.

Another defeat in '50 would make the chances for the presidential year of 1952 look slim. And a party out of power 20 years is not a lame duck, it is a dead duck.

Group Would Keep Industry Self-Rationing

Voting to extend industry's self-rationing system seven months, the Senate Banking Committee yesterday paved the way for early consideration of President Truman's request for standby control powers.

By an 8-to-2 vote, the Democrats turned back a Republican move to continue voluntary agreements for 13 months beyond the February 28 expiration date.

Chairman Burnet Maybank (D., S. C.) said the final committee action "left the door wide open for any Administration anti-inflation proposals." He noted, however, that the vote did not commit the committee or any member of it to mandatory controls.

Meanwhile the joint Senate-House Economic Committee held an organization meeting in preparation for a full-scale study of President Truman's general economic program, which he outlined in broad detail in his State of the Union message, and his economic report.

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), who was named chairman of a subcommittee, said hearing probably would start February 8, with Secretary of Agriculture Brannan as the first witness. Brannan has been designated legislative director of the Administration's general anti-inflation plan.

O'Mahoney told reporters that the President's three-man council of economic advisers, headed by Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, also will testify at the opening sessions.

Businessmen Urge Renewal Of Trade Act

In a double-barreled assist to the Administration, an organization of American businessmen yesterday called for a five-year extension of the old reciprocal trade law and urged administrative changes in the customs provisions of the Smoot-Hawley Tariff Act.

The trade reforms were proposed by the United States Associates of the International Chamber of Commerce. Though not allied with the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, many of the businessmen involved in international trade are members of both groups.

The U. S. Associates called for five-year extension—as opposed to the Administration's request for a two-year renewal of the trade agreements program in its pre-Eightieth Congress form

Alvin D. Dodd, managing director, said a two-year extension is "inadequate," pointing out that the Marshall Plan is scheduled to last more than three years.

In support of a 5-year Trade Act renewal, W. J. Heinz 2d, chairman of U. S. Associates, said: "The world now needs more than ever the assurance of a continuing and resolute foreign economic policy and strong leadership in the United States."

The present law in its restricted form, said Heinz, would weaken the position of the United States at the Geneva Trade Conference April 11.

Manwhile, party politics broke into the open in the House Ways and Means Committee, now holding public hearings on the trade agreements program.

Representative Daniel A. Reed (R., N. Y.), senior minority member of the committee, charged in a GOP statement that some American businessmen are hesitant to appear against the President's foreign trade program for fear of "retaliation" from the Administration.

He also said that "steamroller" tactics are being employed to "rush Mr. Truman's proposals through congressional committees without adequate hearings."

"I don't know what the man is talking about," retorted Representative Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.), chairman of Ways and Means. "He must not understand what is going on. I'm surprised."

Meanwhile representatives of the wool manufacturing, dairy and oil industries testified before the House Ways and Means Committee in opposition to extending the reciprocal program. A group of AFL unions also urged that the present Republican-drafted trade act be retained. The last Congress had restricted the President's powers to cut tariffs and gave the program only a one year extension.

Man Wanted In '47 Killing Surrenders

A man sought in connection with the 1947 slaying of his mother-in-law gave himself up early yesterday to Montgomery County Police.

Police identified him as Jerry Brewster Kimble, 37, of Good Hope, Md.

Corpl. Joe Ward, Montgomery County Police, said that Kimble walked into the Silver Spring police station at 1:30 a. m. stating he wanted to give himself up.

He was charged with the fatal shooting on August 23, 1947, of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Maggie Davenport. Police said the killing took place during a family argument.

committee, with each side to name three men, but I insisted that the committee would not have authority to compromise on the chairmanship."

Werner Schroeder, committeeman for Illinois, was agreed on as chairman. He is a Taft man from away back, but he said he would remain impartial.

Those named to the committee were G. Mason Owlett of Pennsylvania, a leader of the Grundy-Mason organization in the Keystone State, which is fighting hard for Scott; Harry Darby of Kansas; Ezra Whitla of Idaho; Guy George Gabrielson of New Jersey; Ralph Cake of Oregon, who once was a hot supporter of Wendell Willkie; and former Governor Ralph Gates of Indiana.

At a meeting of the full national committee this afternoon, Schroeder announced that the committee had reached a point where it thought that it could work out something "in the Republican way." He didn't explain what this meant.

At Schroeder's suggestion, the committee took a recess after a brief get-together in the Fontenelle's Black Mirror room. There was to have been some oratory, including a rip-snorting speech aimed at Governor Dewey's "unity" campaign. However, they were so absorbed in the battle over the chairmanship that they agreed to call the meeting off.

Scott expressed his defiance openly at a luncheon meeting just before this. Abe Shotwell, national committeeman for Nebraska, introduced Scott and recalled that he had fought with the United States Navy in World War II.

Scott, laughing, said that being shot at in the war was nothing compared with what has been happening to him here in Omaha.

He then warned members of the committee against doing anything that would give comfort to the enemies of the Republican Party.

"Now, let's go forward," he said. "Let's not divide ourselves here in an attempt to pick a candidate for 1952 through an attempt to secure control of the national committee in 1949.

"I give you this solemn pledge—that my sole allegiance is to the national committee of the Republican Party, not to any candidate, past or future."

He said he was convinced that Governor Dewey, who tapped him for the chairmanship last June, will not and can't be the presidential nominee of the GOP in 1952. A good many here have been fearful that the New Yorker would try for a third nomination.

Taking Pictures

If and When the Snow Comes, Here's How to Get Some Snaps

This study of the Korean man is one of a collection of 500 Rolleiflex pictures J. L. Kaukonen, 3312 Northampton st. nw., made in his nearly three years service in the Far Eastern country as a labor adviser to the National Economic Board of the United States Military Government there

By Ollie Atkins

SNOW, bane of the motorist, is the delight of the photographer. Its blanket of white hides winter's bare ground and decorates drab trees, transforming the usual seasonal look into a dramatic wonderland full of opportunities for your camera.

You don't have to wait until the snowfall has stopped to get out with the camera. Pictures made during the storm on fast films will show short, straight lines traced on your film by the falling snow if you are careful to shoot the white stuff against a background of a dark building. Your average exposure for an ordinary daytime snowstorm will be 1/25th second at F/4.5 on fast films.

Snow is easy and beautiful to picture at night. By using regular street lights you may get well-illuminated scenes on your own street with exposures of 40 seconds at F/4.5 on fast films. Have the lens shaded from the glare of light bulbs so flare will not fog your negatives. If the lights are not very close together be sure to place the general illumination afforded by the nearest light in the most important section of your picture. You may add automobile headlights if not pointed directly at your camera for additional lighting.

Most of us will make our snow pictures after the storm has passed. The swell snowman the kids erected in the front yard and a few posed shots of Mother garbed in her earmuffs and the kids piled onto the Christmas sled will be among the most popular camera attractions.

If the sun is out, any snapshot camera will make good pictures. For those who are more expert, I suggest they use a K-2 (yellow filter) to produce more texture in the snow. In brilliant sunlight the snow will be very white, whereas shaded faces and dark clothing will be on the opposite end of the exposure scale. Notice this and try to light up faces by pushing caps back or turning them into the sun. To avoid this brilliance, make your pictures in the morning and late afternoon when the red illumination cuts down contrast between light and dark objects.

Try back-lighting your general scenes of snow once in a while. When doing this be very careful to have the lens itself well in the shade, though.

Of course, after each snow storm the sun doesn't always come out and dreary skies greet your efforts. Because of its excellent light-reflecting qualities, you can still get pictures. Then, too, you have no worries about excess contrast now. Use fast films. I figure my average exposure on cloudy snow scenes is 1/25th second at F/11 or F/8.

There is no point in making snow scene pictures against a blue sky without a filter. The snow and the sky have just about the same light-giving qualities and the white stuff just disappears in your picture if you will not darken the sky. A K-2 filter not only cuts the blue light out of the sky, but puts an added texture in your snow surface.

It is always a temptation to walk around in the newly fallen snow, but please remember that your tracks will show up in the picture so try to keep clear of your picture area.

We suggest that you have a roll of fast film on hand earmarked for snow pictures. With a single roll you can get several good pictures, any of which will be mighty handy to have when you are searching for wintry scenes for next year's Yuletide greetings.

notices, they were not jointly noticed, nor was there any allegation of conspiracy.

The cases were consolidated, but "just how that was accomplished is left in considerable doubt," stated the Court of Appeals.

"The result was simply a record of mob procedure," added the opinion.

In the words of the Court of Appeals, the Patent Office committee that convicted Dorsey "apparently found Dorsey guilty on five counts, although both the charges and the findings are so confused that it is difficult to determine just what any of the defendants were charged with or convicted of."

In substance, Dorsey and the others were accused of misleading or attempting to mislead the Patent Office by submitting a trade journal article to the Patent Office. The article was submitted for insertion in the file of a patent application.

The Court of Appeals observed two of the charges with scorn, one that Dorsey misled or attempted to mislead the Patent Office with the article, and two, that he misled or attempted to mislead the Third Circuit Court of Appeals in the same respect.

The latter reference is to patent litigation in the Federal Courts.

"So far as we have been able to find," observed the Court of Appeals tartly, "never before in the history of the country has a subordinate committee of a mere bureau of the Government had the arrogance to assume to set itself up as the protector of the dignity and intelligence of a United States Court of Appeals."

The majority opinion found either not enough or no evidence against Dorsey on all the charges.

Dissenting Opinion

In his dissent, Judge Edgerton said it is "immaterial" that Dorsey did not write the article and that the article did not contain false statements.

"I think the proceedings were properly conducted," he added. "I think appellant's fraud was fairly charged, proved and found. I think the proof conclusive and the result just."

Baltimore 'Gag Rule' Contempt Case Opens

briefs for and against the court rule. Gray is sitting at the direction of the Supreme Court of Appeals.

J. Harold Grady, assistant State's attorney for Baltimore, said the case at hand is a contest between freedom of the press or freedom of speech and the rights of an accused person.

"The right of freedom of the press is not absolute," Grady said. "When the exercise of civil liberties constitutes a clear and present danger to the functions of the government and the courts, they can be restricted."

He argued that the James case was a specific instance of freedom of the press infringing on functions of the court.

Anselm Sodaro, another assistant State's attorney, declared that the broadcasts had "injured" the defendant, particularly in dissemination of his confession and facts about his previous criminal record.

Confessions are difficult to introduce as evidence in many cases, Sodaro argued, and are often thrown out as incompetent.

He added:

"If our courts take these precautions for the protection of a defendant, how much more he should be protected against publication of a confession or his criminal record in such a way as it might influence a jury."

Sodaro also made the point that the fact the stations broadcast the news in good faith as given to them by public officials or news services does not protect them from punishment.

As the case opened, the National Association of Broadcaste.s was granted permission to intervene.

The association filed an 18-page brief attacking the constitutionality of the Baltimore rule.

The Maryland Bar Association also was granted permission to intervene, and filed a 61-page brief upholding the right of the courts to impose restrictions on the publication of crime news.

Other intervenors are the American Newspaper Publishers Association, the American Civil Liberties Union and the Maryland

The first skirmish in the case today came after Hilary W. Gans, attorney for the Baltimore Broadcasting Company (WITH) offered clippings from Washington and Philadelphia newspapers. The clippings were of stories about the James case.

He also submitted a copy of a telegram sent by Maryland Governor William Preston Lane, jr., to Police Commissioner Hamilton Atkinson of Baltimore. The telegram congratulated police upon the "successful conclusion" of the Brill investigation.

Gans said he would make the point in argument that if it was contemptuous for radio stations to broadcast matter about James' statements, it also was contemptuous for the Governor to release his statement for publication.

In connection with the newspaper clippings, Gans said he intended to argue that contempt is not something to be determined by the borders of a city, county or State. He contended that Rule 904 manifestly involves Baltimore City only and that he would argue it is unconstitutional.

The first witness was William H. Murphy, attorney, who was one of James' defense counsel.

One on the Aisle—

Mr. Chips Would Hate Banfields

By Richard L. Coe

"MR. PERRIN AND MR. TRAILL," at the Playhouse, examines the microscopic world of a boarding school faculty with dry, mordant humor. The new British arrival is a good film in its unpretentious way.

The story is from a novel by Hugh Walpole and is the opposite end of the pole from the affectionately sentimental "Goodbye Mr. Chips."

Mr. Chips, for instance, wouldn't have stayed for a moment in the school conducted by the chilly, cruel headmaster Walpole has given his central characters. Banfields, as the novelist calls it, is no credit to the public school system (which we call private), a tradition that boasts such names as Eton, Winchester and Repton. This is one of the lesser schools which may well abound but which would never have permitted so gracious a figure as Mr. Hilton's Chips.

For the headmaster is a forbidding dictator, etched with icy emphasis by an able actor, Raymond Huntley. His personality has so poisoned his faculty that the little group is a bundle of hate, jealousy and intrigue. One of the most pathetic is Mr. Perrin, an old maid of a man, petted by his mother, scorned by his fellows and only vaguely understood, with the intelligence of the very young, by his boys.

Into this group comes a war veteran with a fine Cambridge athletic record, Mr. Traill. Tackling his job with idealism and enthusiasm, he's assigned several tasks previously performed by Perrin. He brushes aside fusty traditions but, worst of all in Perrin's eyes, he also captures the heart of a junior school nurse, a bright lass who has been unconsciously exciting Perrin's wan libido.

"MR. PERRIN AND MR. TRAILL," a Two Cities Film produced by J. Arthur Rank, directed by Lawrence Huntington, screen play by L. A. G. Strong, based on the novel by Hugh Walpole. At the Playhouse.

Unlikely Twists

This gives rise to some rather unlikely derring-do—sleep-walking, a knife, murder in the heart and death in the sea. Back of it all, of course, is the sadistic headmaster, whose waspish personality so tainted his staff. The story's on the unconvincing side in its final developments, but, then, Walpole was always the one for whooping things up a bit.

There are some nice touches, though: the arrival of the new boys at the beginning of the term, surely the loneliest time in the life of a boarding school kid, faced with the petty cruelties that only his immediate superiors know how to inflict; the visit of a stuffy trustee, amusingly played by that fine actor, Finlay Currie; the eternal conflict between assignments and athletics; the minute bickering of the faculty wives; the tender farewell to a master's room by one of the lads.

As usual in British films, the affection for leisure and detail beguiles Director Lawrence Huntington, his script writer and his cast. Life in the mild always has a way of being interesting.

THE ICE-CAPADES open tonight at the Uline Arena with an astonishing advance sale; tonight, Friday and Saturday are already complete sell-outs . . . The colorful revue on ice might well be benefiting from our lack of live professional entertainers . . . Since folks can't spend their money on plays at the National, could be they're shooting the wad on refrigerated actors . . . Anyhoo, it looks as though the "Ice-Capades of 1949" are getting a big welcome.

SUNDAY NIGHT'S gala benefit for the March of Dimes at the Playhouse is attracting other "live" performers . . . Opera's Nino Martini will sing, his final appearance before a European tour and those wondrous comic Companions of Song (okay, Les Compagnons de la Chanson) also will make their final fun before sailing home to France . . . The satirical chorus gave in to the Shoreham's Blue Room pleas and stayed another week; the indefatigable Mme. Lanham, Md., Fire Ousts Family of 4 From Bungalow

A family of four was burned out of its home near Lanham, Md., yesterday when fire, caused by an overheated wood stove, gutted the interior.

The blaze, noticed about 10:30 a. m., was extinguished in half an hour by volunteer firemen from three nearby communities. H. J. Appelt, owner of the home, and his wife and their two small children were not in the house when the fire broke out.

Damage to the three-room frame bungalow, built by Appelt two years ago, was estimated at $1000 by Assistant Chief B. C. Koenig of the West Lanham Hills Fire Department. The Appelt family has found temporary shelter with neighbors.

Communications Rate Increases Authorized

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday authorized new "emergency" increases in international communications rates to numerous points throughout the world. They range from 2 to 10 cents a word.

It also approved increases in ordinary press rates, ranging from ½ cent to 2 cents a word, in proportion to the increase in commercial rates.

Operating Net Of N. S. & T. at 82-Year Peak

By S. Oliver Goodman

Net operating income of National Savings & Trust Co. totaled $441,496 in 1948, highest in Washington institution's 82-year history. This was a gain of $109,691 or 33 per cent over the previous year.

Baird

President Bruce Baird, in his annual report to stockholders, pointed out that $102,007 was added to undivided profits. This was after provision of $120,000 for Federal income taxes, deduction of $74,457 for reserve for bad debts, charge-offs and losses of $43,031 and payment of $100,000 in dividends.

In 1947 the trust company added $71,111 to undivided profits.

Other highlights of Baird's statement included:

Total loans as of December 31, 1948, amounted to $14,233,769 as compared with $14,000,449 at the end of 1947.

Aggregate deposits of $80,322,389 were $13,849,066 higher for the year. Demand deposits advanced $14,875,345, but time deposits dipped $1,026,278.

Investment in Government securities totaled $38,784,903 at year-end, an increase of $12,040,621.

Commenting on the general business situation, Baird emphasized signs that "the year just ended may have marked the inflationary apex." He added that "deflationary elements may be taking over, not as a result of any artificially imposed restraints but by the operation of basic laws of supply and demand."

He expressed hopefulness "that the effects of this change . . . will be more gradual and less provocative of severe dislocations in our national economy than have been experienced in the past in similar situations."

CONVENTION BID: An invitation to hold its 1950 convention in Washington will be sent to the United States Savings and Loan League, members of the local league decided at a meeting chairman of the 1950 convention Tuesday night. The national convention, usually held in November, attracts more than 2000 delegates. Edward L. McAleer, president of the local league, appointed Fred A. Smith to serve as committee.

NEW TWA HEAD: Ralph S. Damon will assume the presidency of Trans World Airline on February 10. Damon, who resigned last week as president of American Airlines, was formally elected by TWA's board late Tuesday. TWA has been without a president since LaMotte T. Cohu resigned last June. Since Damon then, affairs of the airline have been administered by an executive committee of which Warren Lee Pierson of Washington has been chairman. Damon quit American Airlines because of the latter's announced plan to sell its overseas affiliate to Pan American Airways.

PHILANTHROPY: Publicly announced gifts and bequests showed a 55 per cent increase last year over 1947. The total reached $362,194,204 in 1948, compared with $232,191,062 in 1947, according to an eight-city survey by the John Price Jones Corp. The 1947 figure was 15.8 per cent under 1946. The survey covered Washington, New York City, Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Los Angeles, Philadelphia and St. Louis. It has been conducted annually for 18 years by the publicity firm.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Eugene P. Warner, former Washington newspaperman, will return from London to devote full time to his duties as vice president and general manager of the McGraw-Hill International Corp. He will be succeeded by Arie Van Goor as managing director of the publishing firm in London . . . Lynne L. White has been elevated to president of the Nickel Plate and Wheeling & Lake Erie railroads . . . Walter S. Gifford, board chairman of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., has been elected a director of U. S. Steel Corp . . . Gerald D. Grosner of Washington has been reelected treasurer of the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers . . . R. E. Joyce, vice president of National Distillers Products Corp., has been reelected as president of the Distilled Spirits Institute, national trade organization.

REVERSE OF SUBSIDY: An airline executive said yesterday the Government has collected at least 54 million dollars more fore air mail than it has cost to handle the mail, including payments to airlines. Carleton Putnam, chairman of Chicago and Southern Air Lines, writing for the magazine Air Affairs, said that in 20 years the airlines "have accomplished in earnbacks what it took the railroads over a century to achieve, and what the water carriers have never achieved."

ELECTIONS: Prudential Building Association reelected Luther C. Steward as president and all other officers at the annual meeting. Assets were reported at $6,809,940 at yearend . . . District Building & Loan Association renamed Georgge F. Baker as president and all other officers. Resources were listed at $6,336,698.

Three Identify Miss Gillars

plained why she took a job with the German government.

"I realized I needed food—clothes. I had to have a ration card." She explained that in Nazi Germany those who did not work received no rations.

Recordings Identified

At one point Miss Doman identified 25 recordings of German broadcasts intercepted at a Government station in Silver Hill, Md.

The recordings which had previously been played to Miss Doman and other Government witnesses at grand jury proceedings here last August, bore her initials and those of the other witnesses.

They included the programs "Midge at the Mike," "Medical Report," "Home Sweet Home," "Visions of Invasion" and "Survivors of the Invasion Front." All, according to the Governmtnt, calculated to fill the hearts of American troops with homesickness, fear and dispair or sow the seeds of dissension.

"Did you recognize any voices in these recordings?" Kelley asked.

"Yes, several."

"Was there one common to each and every one?"

"Miss Gillars," was the answer (These recordings together with seven original programs recorded in Germany and secured by United States Intelligence agents will be played in court beginning today. Headsets will be installed for members of the jury, the press and other interested parties to the case.)

Identified by Others

The witness said she last saw Miss Gillars in 1944 before she (Mrs. Doman) left to broadcast from a station situated in the Black Forest as the Allies drew near.

Two other Government witnesses, Hans Von Richter, former German radio official who said he was expelled from the Nazi Party in 1942, and Frank X. Green, head of the U. S. Silver Hill project also identified the recordings.

"Did you recognize any one voice in each record? "Kelley asked Von Richter.

"Yes, the voice of Miss Gillars," Von Richter answered calmly peering at the defendant through highly-polished eyeglasses.

Another who identified Miss Gillars as having broadcast for the German radio was Paul Noback, former sound engineer for the Reich overseas broadcasting system.

"Yes, I know her very well," he said smiling broadly. He said the defendant used to come to his office several times a week to make recordings.

Gum Chewing Arouses Judge

Von Richter, thin-lipped, soft-spoken former Reich consular employe and later radio official preceded Noback to the witness stand.

His jaws worked briskly on a wad of gum as he settled himself in the chair.

Federal Judge Edward M. Curran, his face flushing, leaned over and queried in amazement at the breach of courtroom etiquette:

"Are you chewing gum?"

Von Richter's face crimsoned as he broke into an embarrassed laugh. "I am sorry," he apologized spitting the wad into the palm of his hand.

He told the court he was born in Berlin 38 years ago, then became a citizen of Austria, regaining German citizenship in 1929. While in the consular serice he said, he was stationed in Cleveland, Ohio, from 1935 to 1940.

The witness said he worked for the German radio from 1942 until 1944 as assistant to the head of the section for broadcast to America.

"Were you a member of the Nazi Party?" Kelley asked.

"I was a Nazi for nine years until expelled in 1942," Von Richter replied. He did not elaborate on his expulsion.

Expelled by Nazi

He said a "Mr. Schotte" had been head of the section until he was sent to a concentration camp in 1943 and Dr. Koischwitz took over.

"I've seen Mrs. Gillars regularly on such broadcasts as 'Home, Sweet Home,' at the zone offices and I've seen her privately a few times on a social basis," the witness testified, explaining she had come to his home "twice," on one occasion with Koischwitz.

The defendant's fingers twitched about her throat as Von Richter identified the stack of recordings and said they contained her voice.

The witness testified that Miss Gillars was usually known as "Midge" on the broadcasts. He said he thought "Sally" was also used as a nickname but not on many occasions.

Noback a Party Member

Noback, the last witness of the day, strode to the stand and directed a beaming smile at Miss Gillars. She stared at him, her mouth a straight line.

He said he was born at Porz-on-the-Rhine in 1903, had been a Nazi Party member and had served the German radio as a sound engineer from 1933 until "the end of the war."

"Do you know the defendant?" he was asked.

"Yes, I know her very well," Noback replied with a guttural accent and a broad smile.

After the witness told of Miss Gillar's coming to his office to arrange for recordings, he was questioned at length by Kelley on methods of tape recording whereby programs could be cut at any point, other matter inserted, then spliced together.

Noback finally drew a smile from the defendant when he described an altercation with her about recordings and jokingly said they'd "embrace" and make up.

Today the jury of six men and six women will hear testimony from Hans P. Winzer of Detroit, former United States counter intelligence corps captain, who will relate how the Government secured the seven original German recordings.

Feller Rejects Veeck's Bonus Offer

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

AS JOBS GO, Bill Veeck has a nice one. He's president of the Cleveland Indians, the best team in baseball, takes down a salary of $50,000 a year, has authority to spend the stockholders' money in large amounts and okays his own unchallenged expense accounts. But now you hear he isn't wedded to the job.

POVICH

Del Webb, who is the heaviest investor in the New York Yankees, has tipped off the fact that Veeck is now New York-minded. "He asked me if the club was for sale, and I told him no," said Webb. Veeck didn't make any concrete offer, but even his casual inquiry as to the availability of the Yankee ownership indicates that Veeck may now be viewing Cleveland as too small to contain his promotional genius.

Veeck likes to talk in terms of population areas and that he covets New York's 10 million is understandable. In Cleveland he operates in a limited sphere, and what he could achieve in New York with his sure touch for getting out the crowds obviously is intriguing to him. He's more showman than baseball man, anyway, and not immune to the itch to get on Broadway.

VEECK IS IN DEMAND now as a baseball promoter and would have little difficulty in raising the capital to buy out or buy into the Yankees if their stock was for sale. The way he took over Cleveland and took it out of the baseball doldrums attests to his genius, and it was no accident, in fact, that he landed in Cleveland when he found himself with enough financial backing to buy into a ball club.

He surveyed the available big league franchises before he advised his group to plunge. "We could have bought the Pittsburgh club when it was up for sale before Frank McKinney took over," said Veeck, "but there was an important factor that made Cleveland look more attractive. I didn't like the idea of a one-industry town like Pittsburgh. If anything happened to the steel business there, a club could go broke. Cleveland, with its diversified industry, looked like a better bet."

In the first two years of his Cleveland operation, Veeck showed the stockholders enough profit to return them their full investments. Last season the Indians smashed all big league attendance records with 2,621,000 fans at home games. Veeck made a nice deal for the stockholders but he confesses that he, himself, is not getting wealthy on the job.

WHEN VEECK WENT into the Cleveland club, he was long on the investors' confidence but slightly short on cash and his own chunk of stock was not large. As a consequence he has not taken a lot of money out of the profits, though his salary and expense accounts are impressive. But if he could sell out his interest on a capital-gains basis, he'd have a nice hunk.

Veeck is the complete boss of the Indians, though. One of his conditions which the investors approved was Veeck's demand for that effective gadget known as a voting trust. With it he may look down the stockholders' throats and defy them to quarrel with his stewardship.

He's the hottest thing in baseball since Larry MacPhail who parlayed an idea of buying the Yankees, with Webb's and Dan Topping's cash, into a two-million-dollar haul for himself at the end of four years. Veeck hasn't made any money near that amount for Veeck but he has surpassed even MacPhail's promotional stunts and the moment the Yanks set a price on their franchise he could easily rally the money to buy it.

THE BIG LEAGUE baseball business never did enjoy such a boom as since the war. Even the worst drawing club in the American League, the Browns, showed a rather fat profit. They played to crowds as big as 70,000 in Cleveland and feasted off the road-game receipts. It's all in sharp contrast to what has been happening in pro football. Only yesterday the Detroit Lions' new owners reported their National League football losses for last season topped $93,000.

The Yankees were the best buy in baseball. The Frank McKinney group paid almost as much for the Pittsburgh Pirates as the Webb group paid for the Yankees, which they bought for $2,850,000. With the Yankees' buy went valuable real estate in Kansas City and Newark. A few weeks after the Yankees were bought, they sold 10 acres of land adjoining their Newark park to the Pennsylvania Railroad for $20,000 an acre.

Webb delivered one of the finest tributes to the big league baseball business when he announced himself as a purchaser of the Yankees after earning millions in his war-time construction business. "Baseball is so stable, I bought into it as a hedge against inflation," he said.

Over Terps

GW Coasts, Then Spurts To Win, 66-54

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

George Washington University worked up just enough steam, and no more, to give University of Maryland basketers a 66-54 going-over in a dull Southern Conference game last night at Ritchie Coliseum.

The thirteenth meeting of the local rivals saw the Colonials, expected to do just about what they did, take their eleventh triumph by coasting for 30 minutes and then putting on the pressure in the closing minutes.

Only 4400 fans turned out, many leaving before the end and the remainder allowing the teams to finish out in gravelike silence. It was GW's fifth victory in eight conference starts, earning a 7-5 record for the season. In losing its eighth straight game, Maryland was left with a 2-11 mark for the season, 2-4 in the conference.

Adler Leads Spree

As far as the score was concerned Maryland was in the ball game as late as 4:32 of the second half. It trailed by a mere four points at two stages, 37-33 and 38-34. But even Maryland's rooters seemed to think it was a futile effort and showed little vocal enthusiasm.

Big Ace Adler and Johnny Moffatt spoiled everything for the Terps with a scoring spree that stretched the difference to 11 points midway of the final half and from there in it was no contest. The Colonials' Lenny Small paced a closing attack that effectively voided the hot hand of the Terps' Bernie Smith.

GW was without the services of its veteran floorman Phil McNiff, out with a broken nose, but he wasn't missed too much. Four Colonials split up the scoring fairly evenly, Moffatt winding up with 15 points and game honors while 11 points each were being credited to Bill Cantwell, Adler and Small.

Maryland scoring, too, was split up. Ron Seigrist finished with 13 points and Charley Mack, who fouled out in the last half, amassed 10 before leaving.

Start Slowly

It took two minutes of the game for either team to acquire a field goal. Maryland's Bob Murray got that one, but all it did was tie the count at 2-2. In quick succession, however, Moffatt, Adler and Cantwell chalked up 2-pointers for the Colonials, and Maryland was behind for good.

Murray's second field goal a little later cut the Terps' deficit to 2 points, but that was the nearest they could get.

The entire GW line-up had a hand in giving the invaders their widest first-half margin, at 27-12. Five straight points by little Ed Crescenze, plus a foul shot by Mack and Seigrist's long shot left the score at 30-22 at halftime.

A preliminary went to the Maryland Frosh, 48-44, as Dick Kuffenberger rang up 17 points against Colonial yearlings.

Warriors Lose

Fort Wayne, Ind., Jan. 26 (AP).—The Fort Wayne Pistons made it four straight over Philadelphia in the Basketball Association of America with an 88-80 victory over the Warriors tonight.

Joe Fulks of Philadelphia, challenging Minneapolis' George Mikan in the individual scoring race, caged 30 points and Ed Sadowski got 23 for the Warriors.

Bullet Jinx Again Halts Caps—This Time, 96-86

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Baltimore, Jan. 26.—The first-place Washington Caps came out second against the third-place Baltimore Bullets again tonight.

To the howling delight of 4100 Coliseum partisans, the ball-hawking Baltimoreans became the first team in the three-year history of thes Basketball Association of America to defeat the Caps three times in a row.

The score of tonight's history-making event was 96-86 and the 10-point margin represented the true difference in the two teams this evening.

The Caps were in the ball game only until shortly after intermission. At that stage, the Bullets took command and maintained the upper hand the rest of the way despite several determined Cap rallies.

Connie Simons, the six-foot eight-inch hotshot from Flushing, L. I.; Walter Budko, an All-America at Columbia last year, and Player-Coach Buddy Jeannette were the men who put the hooks into the Caps.

Simmons Bags 28

Simmons, brother of John Simmons, the new Nat outfielder, swished in 28 points, spacing out his scoring against Kleggie Hermsen, Bones McKinney and John Nichols.

Budko played only briefly, but long enough to toss in seven of his 12 points in the last period when the Bullets really broke the backs of the visitors.

And Jeannette was a fourth-quarter hero also. It was he who directed the Bullet floor game and it was he who stemmed two Cap counterattacks with a pair of nifty layups when the Bullet lead was only five points.

The Caps played the last nine minutes without McKinney, but it was just as well because the Bullets' Simmons, Pelkington and Budko did a man-sized job of handcuffing him. Big Bones was held to four field goals, two in each half.

Scolari Leads Caps

Freddie Scolari, whose 18 points were high for the Caps, Feerick and Sonny Hertzberg tried to spark a fourth period Cap rally, but time and the Bullets were against them.

The Washingtonians climbed to within four points of the Bullets with six minutes to go, but then the Simmons-Jeannettee-Budko trio went into the deep freeze.

Only once were the Caps able to mount a concentrated offense in the last period and this died almost as quickly as it was born. Hertzberg lopped in a long set shot and Feerick followed with a distant one-hander to make it 86-82, Baltimore.

But Jeanette drove in for a lay-up. Budko followed with a set shot and Simmons hooked in his twenty-eighth point to offset the Cap surge.

PLAYS HARD TO GET—Bob Feller, prosperous businessman on the right, leaves Cleveland President Bill Veeck yesterday after failing to sign his 1949 contract yesterday. Rapid Robert didn't find the attendance bonus clause as satisfactory as the one last year that enabled him to be baseball's highest-priced player at a reported $82,500. Although Feller has removed his foot from the above door, the boys say they'll meet again soon in New York

Bob Thinks Crowd Drop Will Cause Deep Slash

Cleveland, Jan. 26 (AP).—Bobby Feller spoiled the joyful mood around the world champion Cleveland Indians' teepee today by balking on terms of his fat 1949 contract.

Only a day after his manager, Lou Boudreau, cheerfully signed a two-year contract calling for an annual salary of $65,000 or more, the gray-suited fast-ball pitcher announced unsmilingly after a conference with President Bill Veeck:

"It's simply a disagreement over the number of fans the Indians will draw this year. That's all."

But that number is important. The gravy in Feller's contract after a guaranteed starter of $40,000-odd, has been in those attendance bonuses.

And it's there the expected pay cut will come. Feller estimated the slash — before today — at $10,000.

In 1947 and 1948 his salary is believed to have hovered above $80,000.

Crowds Concern Bob

Veeck took the position today the Tribe would draw approximately as many fans as last year's record-breaking 2,600,000.

Feller, discussing his dissatisfaction, stated that he was alarmed over the prospect of decreased attendance.

"I think there will be fewer people because I don't believe we'll have the breaks with the weather we had last year when we weren't rained out of a single home game," he said.

"And also don't forget the race won't be as close."

Feller isn't the only member of the world champs showing a tendency toward displeasure at his 1949 salary. For example:

Gene Bearden, the star pitcher of the World Series, wants to see Veeck about the figure in his proffered contract.

Bearden, the brilliant young lefty, who won 20 games for the Indians last season including the pennant playoff contest with the Red Sox, was in town. He said he wanted to earn about $20,000 next season and that he would like to have a bonus clause if he couldn't earn it otherwise.

Lemon's Unhappy

Bob Lemon, also a 20-game winner, who picked up two more victories in the World Series against the Braves, returned his contract unsigned.

Veeck promptly returned the document to Lemon—without alteration—at his home in Long Beach, Calif.

And Kenny Keltner, the Indian's third baseman, telephoned Veeck today to say there were a few contract clauses he wanted to talk to him about. They will meet in Milwaukee February 14.

In fact, only four contracts have been returned to the Indians' office, outside of Boudreau's. They have come from less important players and rookies.

After Talks With Collins . . .

Luckman Reported Retiring To Coach Transplanted Yanks

New York, Jan 26 (AP).—Sid Luckman, quarterback of the Chicago Bears, will be the new coach of the transplanted Boston Yanks in the National Football League next fall, the New York Star reported tonight.

The Star, in a copyright story by Clay Felker, said the former Columbia University star would sign for the post within the next two weeks.

He has been in conference with Ted Collins, owner of the Boston team which recently transferred its base of operations to New York, the paper added.

The move would be made with the approval of George Halas, owner of the Bears, the Star said.

In Chicago, Halas said:

"I haven't seen Sid for a while and I understand he is now in New York. When he decides to coach, he'll make a great head coach.

"When he leaves the Bears it will be a serious blow. Personally, I think he'll want to be in there pitching passes for us next fall.

Sid's In Dark

From Chicago by phone, Luckman told The Washington Post: "I'm highly honored even to be mentioned for such a post but must admit I'm really in the dark. I haven't talked with Mr. Collins or any of the Boston Yank People.

Luckman is 34 years old and his retirement from active play has been expected for the last several years.

Luckman and Collins were unavailable for comment at a late hour tonight.

In nine years with the Chicago Bears Luckman came to be known as the greatest T-formation quarterback of all time. He was named most valuable player in the National Football League in 1943 and six times he was selected as the all-league quarterback.

Luckman, an All-America at Columbia during his collegiate days, ranked just under the Washington Redskins' Sammy Baugh as pro football's greatest passer.

Trouble for Hoyas . . .

Villanova's Arizin Made a Late —But Brilliant—Court Debut

Post Reporter
By Jack Walsh

He didn't even play basketball in high school and wasn't out for the freshman squad at Villanova, but Paul Arizin is one of the main reasons the Main Liners occupy a lofty perch as one of the four major unbeaten teams in the country.

The phenomenal development of Arizin, 6-foot-3 center, has made him eighth leading scorer in the Nation with 207 points in Villanova's 11-game victory string.

Villanova will be out to stretch it to an even dozen against Georgetown at the Armory Saturday night. That's the first game of the big double-header with GW opposing strong North Carolina State in the nightcap.

Advance sale for the twin bill has been brisk and indications point to a capacity crowd turning out for the appearance of the best college quintets here in years. Villanova ranks eighth nationally; North Carolina State, despite seven losses, fifteenth.

But let's get back to the high-scoring Mr. Arizin. Paul, a junior as are the others on the starting five, attended Philadelphia's La Salle High but didn't play basketball there.

After graduation, he enrolled at Villanova, just outside the city. The 20-year-old honor student who may wind up as the East's ranking star, didn't go out for the freshman team. He explained, "I didn't think I could make the squad."

Unheralded as a soph—he wasn't included in the preseason brochure—Arizin did more than make the team. With 267 points, he led a Villanova club that averaged 66 points in winning 16 and losing eight.

Right now, he's only 60 points away from that impressive first-year total. Brook Ricca, Tommy Sabol and Johnny Crossin all were within four points of Arizin last year. Leo Wolf is the other starter.

Where Tickets Can Be Bought

Tickets for Saturday night's attractive collegiate double-header at the Armory in which Georgetown meets unbeaten Villanova and George Washington plays classy North Carolina State may be purchased at either of the local schools or at Fairway Sports Store, 1328 G st. nw.

If any seats are left by Saturday, they will go on sale at the Armory.

Howard Beats Delaware State

Dover, Del., Jan. 26.—Howard University preserved a narrow lead all the way to beat Delaware State, 58-55, and record its fourth C. I. A. A. basketball victory in six conference games.

The win also sent the Bisons' over-all record over the .500 mark with six wins, five losses. Frank Booth with 17 points, and George Jett, with 15 points, provided the heaviest scoring punch for the Washington quintet.

Cilinski, Grant Win Titles In Gloves Finals

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Two champions were unseated as the Golden Gloves boxing tournament came to a close last night before 4200 spectators at the National Guard Armory.

The two title usurpers were Pete Cilinski of St. Mary's, 135-pounder, and Eddie Grant of Apollo AC, a heavyweight.

The strong-armed Cilinski shook off a bad wound over his left eye to carve out a decision over rangy Harry Rogers, unsuccessful title defender from Quantico.

Another Quantico Marine, Keith King, was the other champ to lose. Unbeaten in almost three years of local tournament fighting, King was outpointed in the first two rounds and floored for a nine count in the last round by Grant.

Most arousing bout of the evening was waged by Merrick's Pat Thomas, youthful veteran of seven years' amateur boxing experience, who came back to decision Sammy Kelsey.

NOVICE DIVISION FINALS

But Not for Reynard

This Fox Hunting's Unspeakably Cruel

By Red Smith
Copyright, 1949, N. Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, JAN. 26.—Lee Hulver Savold, part Norwegian, part cowboy, part barkeep and part fist fighter, is in Merrie Englande keeping in shape for a possible bout with Joe Louis by riding to the hounds. Swaddled in pinks and round, hard hat, he goes galloping through the furze and bracken of Sussex's picture-postcard countryside shouting "Yoicks!" and pursuing Reynard as ardently as ever another heavyweight ran Lee Hulver to earth in Madison Square Garden.

Now there comes word that fox hunting has fallen so deeply into disrepute in old blighty that it may be forbidden by act of Parliament.

Dispatches do not explain whether this is or is not a case of cause and effect. But it could be. After all, something did kill vaudeville.

Details of the great vulpine schism which has split the right little, tight little isle from Land's End to Northumberland are disclosed by the London correspondent of Pathfinder. Seems that a friend of the fox named E. G. Barlow, a whisker-bearing artist, is pushing an antihunting campaign with the backing of the National Society for the Abolition of Cruel Sports and the League Against Cruel Sports, with the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals sitting in the game but drawing no cards.

(The royal S. P. C. A. wants stag hunting and coursing banished by law but thus far has taken no positive stand against fox hunting, fishing, shooting, beagling, English sausage, English railroad trains, brewing bitter beer or belting the little woman with a sashweight, all of which are to be found in England and involve an element of cruelty.)

The bearded pal of the furry carnivore is pushing a private members bill which provides that anybody who hunts a fox or courses a hare is guilty of cruelty and that if 10 or more kibitzers gather to watch a hunt or a course, they're also guilty and can get three months in choky and a $100 fine.

Mr. Barlow's voice is not, of course, the first ever raised against fox hunting in England. A good many years ago, Mr. Oscar Wilde described this pastime of the leisure classes as "the unspeakable pusuing the uneatable." However, Mr. Wilde was not at the time on speaking terms with Parliament, and nothing was done about it. Political authorities figure that if this bill gets to the floor of the House the Socialists will vote for it en bloc and it will pass.

The notion here is that chasing the fox, as practiced by the English and by executives of the duPont gunpowder-and-nylon factory, is an amusement of appalling cruelty, although it is not Reynard who suffers. Ingenious though they were in use of the rack and wheel, the leaders of the Spanish Inquisition never assaulted a victim with a stirrup-cup, plied him with a hunt breakfast and, placing him astride a spirited steed, catapulted him through the frosty dawn point-blank at a stone wall.

For centuries the fox has enjoyed a reputation for wily cunning. This is because it is his custom, the very first time the M. F. H. winds his horn, to run into a hole and pull it in after him. The intellectual contrast thus displayed between him and his human pursuers has been apparent to all students since the days of Aesop.

Obviously, if you are driven by some irresistible compulsion to catch foxes, the thing to do is poison, trap or shoot them. If it's just a swatch of fur you're after to wrap baby bunting against the drafts in the Stork, why, the fox you want to hunt is I. J.

There is another type of fox hunting practiced in this country which couldn't be considered cruel by the most compassionate artist, bearded or mowed. This is the pedestrian chase, or Kentucky-style hunt. It is practiced at night by sportsmen who cart their hounds into the woods by Ford truck, turn 'em loose by themselves and then sit around (a) a fire and (b) a demijohn.

The pack dashes off, baying like crazy, and the sportsmen settle back to listen. "That's old Belle," one of 'em says, cupping an ear. "She's right on the sucker's trail." "That's Spot's voice," another announces, "over to Higback Ridge." The final gurgle is the signal for everybody to go home.

A faintly reformed fox hunter, Kentucky-style, claims patent rights on a refinement of the sport, known as the Joe H. Palmer horizental hunt. Instead of sitting by the fire, the huntsman of this school retires to a "creep" with a friend named Old Fitzgerald or Grand Dad or Yellowstone.

A "creep" is a sort of bin where a farmer stores loose oats. Burrowing into the oats with his companion, the huntsman is safe from the nippy night air. This method eliminates the necessity of sitting upright, a posture which the founder of the Joe H. Palmer hunt abominates.

Perhaps there are other methods, too, but in any event all are identical in one respect. You don't get to catch any foxes.

Eastern High Greats, Guyon Meet Again

Chief Charlie Guyon, the old-time Carlisle Indian football great, who retired as an active Eastern High School coach 10 years ago, will have another crack at his old job tonight.

It's "alumni night" at Eastern, and coming back to help celebrate will be some of the school's all-time basketball greats. Guyon, still a member of the faculty after 30 years, will coach them against a team of faculty members.

Back in Eastern livery will be Tommy Nolan, Harry Bassin, Buddy Shaner, Dopey Dean and Tom Davis from the 1934 Eastern States championship team, and Ben Zola, Russ Lombardi, Bozie Matera, Bob Custer and Bones Courtney.

More recently, Bassin and Nolan gained stardom at Georgetown. Zola coached basketball at Catholic University. And Shaner is the featured vocalist at the Lotus Club.

Playing for the faculty in the 7:30 p. m. game will be Bobby Hart, present Eastern basketball coach, and Sherman Rees, Dick Mentzer, Frank Klye and Frank August of the school's athletic department.

Eastern's varsity will cap the night's activity by facing a team of recent alumni, including Johnny Brown of Maryland, Spike Bauroth of George Washington, Al Giuffreda and Kenny Burns of Wilson Teachers College, and Wimpy Gilroy, Sonny Wesley, Billy Kallas and Joe Graves.

Tulloch Night

The blare of pomp and ceremony will be roused for the Alexandria Gazette's Jack Tulloch tomorrow night. Celebrating this month his 31st year with the Gazette, the likable managing editor will get the full treatment: first, a dinner at the George Mason Hotel and later, a "mammoth testimonial" at the new Alexandria Arena. Any of the host of Jack's friends who want to join in the celebration can obtain reservations from Ralph Canary at TEmple 6167.

Turner Twin Bill

A Turner's Arena semi-pro basketball doubleheader tonight features the undefeated Cortez Peters Business School five against the Washington Vets, defending champions in the city-wide Independent League.

The opener brings together Alexandria Rex aand the Georgetown Vikings for the fourth time. Rex has won two of its three previous meetings. Both teams depend on former District high school stars. Parker-Gray grads Sherman McGuire, Razier Ware and Bumbo Rice grace the Alexandrians' line-up while products of Phelps and Armstrong operate for the Vikings.

Armstrong Has Smug

Smuggy Hursey, in training for his 10-round bout with Ken Stribling at Turner's Arena Monday night, has hitched his wagon to an old and brilliant star, according to Arena boxing circles. Henceforth, Hursey will be managed by the great Henry Armstrong, one-time holder of three world's championships. At the same time, all Smuggy's relations with his former manager, Mighty Mel Stevenson, have been severed.

Knicks Defeat Rollers, 89-77

New York, N. Y., Jan. 26 (AP).—Despite the scoring of Providence's Kenny Sailors, high man with 26 points, the New York Knickerbockers thrashed the Steamrollers, 89-77, in a BAA contest tonight in the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory.

The Knicks, with former player and now scout Ray Kuka subbing for the ailing Coach Joe Lapchick, snapped a five-game losing streak.

Stags Miss Badly

Minneapolis, Jan. 26 (AP).—The Minneapolis Lakers moved back into a tie for first place in the Western Division of the BAA tonight by trouncing Chicago, 84-49, before 5730 fans.

The 49 points garnered by the Stags was the lowest total recorded by a BAA team this year, and the Lakers' 35-point victory margin was their largest of the season.

Hornets Win Seventh on Foul Shots

Wilson's Green Tigers, current Interhigh League pacemakers, were stung, 42-39, yesterday by Hyattsville High's unsung Hornets in a basketball game at the Prince Georges County school.

The two teams were evenly matched, each scoring 17 field goals. However, it was the foul-line shooting of Warren Lytle and Walter Heeley which paid off for the Hornets. Lytle made two out of four, and Heeley sank five out of eight. The entire Wilson team could convert only five out of 16, and lost.

Hyattsville hopped into a 12-6 lead at the end of the first quarter, but the Tigers began to creep up. At the half, they trailed, 22-19, and at the three-quarters mark, 29-28.

New Techniques Save Welles' Limbs

constant applications of cold packs to the frostbitten members, use of heparin to avoid internal blood clotting, penicillin injections to prevent infections in blisterings that follow severe frostbite and whirlpool baths for therapeutic massage of muscles and joints affected by the freeze.

First measure used, even while the patient was being treated for shock, was intravenous injection of heparin, blood anticoagulant discovered by Dr. McLean, District surgeon and cancer expert, while a medical student at Johns Hopkins University.

Control Necessary

To understand the treatment that followed, said Dr. Veal, physicians must be familiar with the physiology of blood circulation during frostbite. This circulation must be controlled and balanced to meet the delicate state of the tissue cells affected.

Tissue cells that are almost frozen can be brought back by careful regulation of their fuel supply, blood circulation. Heat is the greatest danger, since heat dilates the blood vessels to a maximum degree, flooding the crippled cells beyond their capacity. The cells are killed, and gangrene, death of the tissues, follows.

"You can see," said the specialist, "that the old-time measure of rubbing snow on frostbites is scientifically beneficial."

Postwar studies of circulation problems, he continued, have put the temperature-control treatment on a more exacting scientific basis. This temperature base for maximum recuperation of affected tissues is set at between 68 and 70 degrees Fahrenheit, the basal metabolism level.

The basal metabolism level is that minimum point where just enough energy is supplied the cells to maintain activity.

Temperature Checks

In Welles' case, the temperature of the affected hands, feet and legs was controlled by maintaining low room temperature and applying Turkish towels soaked in cool solution of water and boric acid. Electric skin thermometers were used to check the affected areas.

Blisters that formed on the skin surface were aspirated (the fluid drawn out and the skin preserved). These, as in burn blisters, present the hazard of infection. Penicillin injections administered twice daily at a dosage strength of 300,000 units prevented any infection, Dr. Veal said.

The role of heparin in frostbite is not too generally known, it was explained. A blood constituent extracted by complicated procedures from livers, lungs and other organs of slaughtered cattle, it helps prevent clotting or clumping of red blood cells during periods of impaired circulation.

In the Welles' treatment, the drug was injected periodically as circulation needs warranted, for about 10 days, until circulation showed a continued normal rate. He emphasized, however, that neither the drug, the penicillin, or the temperature control alone could be credited for the recovery. Nor would the recovery have been as complete with any one of the factors missing, he said.

Heparin has a varied medical history. Records show that it was found by Dr. McLean during studies of another, opposing blood constituent, cephalin, the blood clotting factor within the circulatory system. It was reported out, but clinical usage lagged until the late 30's, largely because of the difficulty of extracting it in pure form.

Recognized early as a therapeutic agent in conditions due to blood clotting, it fell into some disfavor when it failed as an aid to bacterial endocarditis, bacteria-caused inflammation of the heart valves.

Since World War II, heparin has assumed a new role of importance in its successes in treatment of coronary thrombosis, or internal clogging of the arteries that feed the heart itself.

Dr. McLean, who gave the drug to the profession through publication of his discovery, has advocated that all physicians carry an emergency vial for on-the-spot injections in heart attacks due to coronary thrombosis.

Heparin was used extensively in frostbite cases during World War II, but often with disappointing results. Most of the failures, Dr. Veal said, could be traced to the fact that it was not given till several days after the frostbite occurred.

"I am convinced that the drug is extremely valuable when administered during the acute stages of the injury," declared Dr. Veal.

Dr. Veal said he did not use dicumoral, the newest anti-coagulant extracted from spoiled clover, because it is "less easily controlled" than heparin.

Cases Not Uncommon

Dr. Veal, one time chief surgeon at Gallinger Hospital, said he became interested in special studies on the treatment of frostbite at the municipal institution. Though Washington is not a cold city, some 15 cases of severe frostbite are admitted to Gallinger annually, he said.

Most damaging and difficult to treat are cases of "wet" frostbite, such as experienced by Welles, he explained. Water and dampness increase the freezing hazard by penetration into the protective layers of fat and deeper tissues.

He further emphasized that though his most famous patient was exposed to a night of temperature below 15 degrees, a person can be frostbitten at temperatures as high as 38 degrees.

Physiotherapy is employed in frostbite cases after resumption of normal circulation in the affected areas. It is an aid in the recovery transition period required before a patient can resume normal activities.

In the Welles treatment, this consisted of immersing the patient's legs, feet and hands in temperature controlled whirlpool baths of water. The scientifically agitated water flowed about and around the member, gently massaging the area. The patient, during the process, was encouraged to flex the affected joints to gradually bring them back to normal functioning.

Dr. Veal has already been honored by the American Medical Association for his pioneering work in the new techniques for treating frostbite. At the association's convention in Atlantic City in 1942, he was awarded the organization's "Certificate of Merit" in recognition of that work.

Finally Agrees

Mother, 21, Almost Bars Sterilization

Los Angeles, Jan. 26 (U.P.)—Mrs. Georgette Brucks, convicted of beating her son to death with her fists, changed her mind twice today about sterilization.

Ambrose

The 21-year-old mother, expecting the birth of her fifth child next month, had suggested and accepted a court order that she undergo an operation to prevent her from having any more children.

She finally agreed to be sterilized after first accepting and then rejecting the proposal, protesting that she did not want to lose permanently the ability to have children.

But today she said she didn't mean she was willing to give up the right of motherhood forever.

"I thought at the time the judge meant I could have children later," she wailed in her county jail cell.

"I'm willing to do without children for the duration of my probation period, but I don't want to become permanently sterile."

Attorney Anderson visited Mrs. Brucks late in the afternoon, explained the operation and said the decision was up to her. But he said if she refused the operation, he would be forced to tell the court, which had put her on probation for six years on condition she go through with it.

"I intend to go through with the operation," she told the attorney.

Judge Thomas L. Ambrose had no comment on the late developments.

Aureomycin 'Miracle Drug'

Chicago, Jan. 26 (AP).—The new miracle drug, aureomycin, was hailed today as one of 1948's greatest medical discoveries.

Aureomycin is a golden-colored, well-tolerated drug that takes up where some other mold antibiotics leave off. Many doctors view it as a clew to the possible solution to such virus diseases as the common cold, mumps, infantile paralysis, measles and influenza.

Heads of the Nation's medical colleges and medical institutions were polled by the National Society for Medical research to determine the top 1948 discovery.

The doctors picked the discovery of aureomycin.

Aureomycin has proved effective against bacteria, viruses and rickettsia.

It has cured virus pneumonia, spotted fever, typhus, Q fever, parrot fever, and various infections.

Rector Child Will Get New Graft of Skin

A new skin graft of 100-square inches will be given Saturday to little Michael Rector, who suffered such severe chest to toe burns on November 12 that he was given no chance to live.

The skin will be donated by Marine Sergt. John T. Rapp, 26, of the Anacostia Naval Air Station, who volunteered to help through admiration for the plucky boy.

Michael has a 50-50 chance of survival today although his condition is still "serious."

In previous skin grafts from his father and a friend, he has received 224 square inches, but less than one third of this skin remains on his frail body. He is receiving between a half pint and a pint of plasma three or four times a week, his physician said yesterday. He is unable to take whole blood.

Doctors expected the earlier skin grafts to dissolve. They are used primarily as a sealing mechanism to prevent the loss of high-protein body fluids, Dr. Joseph Rogers Young said. His diet consists mainly of high-protein meat and eggs to replace lost fluids.

Dr. Young inspected the boy yesterday in the operating room and placed new bandages on the 70 per cent of his body which was burned.

Decree Suspended

Guatemala City, Jan. 26 (U.P.)—The constitutional right of free assembly was suspended today by the government in political subdivisions where operations of the United Fruit Co.'s banana plantations were threatened by labor disputes.

District Woman's Brother to Go On Air in Polio Broadcast

The 26-year-old brother of a Washington woman will take part in Cornell University's "Operation Polio" this Friday, when infantile paralysis patients take over complete operation of the university's radio stations, WHCU and WHCU-FM.

Hertzberg

He is Abraham Hertzberg, brother of Mrs. Lewis Jacobs, 1360 Peabody st. nw., and a polio patient at the Ithaca Reconstruction Home, run by the National Infantile Paralysis Foundation.

Hertzberg is one of 33 patients at the home, many of them former "hopeless" cripples, who will take part in the living report on the work of the March of Dimes in reconstructing lives touched by polio.

Hertzberg, who takes over three newscasts on Friday, was stricken with polio in September, 1948, two weeks before he was to receive his master's degree from Cornell University Graduate Aeronautical School. Suffering "complete involvement" of both arms and legs, he is now able to walk with crutches, and is expected to recover complete use of all but his right leg.

Radio Amateurs Felicitate Truman

Seventy-five congratulatory messages were delivered to President Truman yesterday by a committee representing the city's amateur radio operators, who received them via shortwave from 40 State Governors and most of the Territories.

The Sixth Governors-to-President Relay, sponsored by Washington Radio Club and the American Radio Relay League was held from 5 p. m. January 19 to 5 p. m. January 20.

With Little Worry

Eat, talk, laugh or sneeze without fear of insecure false teeth dropping, slipping or wobbling. FASTEETH holds plates firmer and more comfortably. This pleasant powder has no gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. Doesn't cause nausea. It's alkaline (non-acid). Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

What To Do For That Sluggish, Down-and-Out Feeling

Remember the time when you could eat like a horse, bubbled-over with energy, felt happy as a lark? Was it not because you liked to eat—didn't know what indigestion was, felt strong as an ox? As age advances the "old stomach and the ever-changing blood" need help. Now you may again release vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

LIGHTLY spur that Buick thoroughbred of yours. Feel it surge ahead with a sure-footed stride, stepping out in front to set the pace — with never a murmur or complaint.

Yes, you can have quiet, lively horsepower like this, and a chassis that's free of stiffness and winter squeaks — if you let us keep your Buick in tiptop shape.

Take lubrication, for example. For the price of a routine "grease job" elsewhere, we turn our Buick-trained men loose on a complete, tailor-made lubrication service from hood latch to trunk handle. They make a regular habit of extra care, such as dropping a spot of graphite on the carburetor heat-control shaft, or using a special non-sleeve-soiling lubricating stick on your door strikers. They even check your tires and battery!

The point is, these mechanics are Buick specialists of long and patient experience — they know your Buick and its needs better than anyone else—and they take pains to keep you happy with it.

Yet you don't pay a penny more. Why not drop in this week?

Cold Wave Coming?

Let us set a date for checking over your cooling system sometime this week. Here's our prescription for protection:

Drain radiator, engine block and car heater — flush out summer sludge. Inspect radiator core for leaks. Check hoses for deterioration or loose connections. Examine thermostat control. Adjust fan belt tension. Tighten cylinder head. Put in genuine Buick antifreeze.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

Interior Department's Reorganization Puts Planners in Quandary

INTERIOR: What to recommend for this department has the Hoover Commission at sixes and sevens.

The so-called "task forces" not only have submitted conflicting reports on how the department should be reorganized, but the commissior members are in dispute over what should be done. One suggestion before the commission would remake Interior into a—

NATURAL RESOURCES DEPARTMENT: Under it would be a water resources development division which would be made up of the flood control and navigation activities of the Army Engineers and the Reclamation Bureau.

A division of forest and range management would be created to be made up of Agriculture's Forest Service, the Bureau of Land Management, the old Grazing Service and perhaps some activities of the Soil Conservation Service.

A five-man board will be set up in the department to keep the President advised on soil-water developments and their economic possibilities. Other Interior bureaus wouldn't be changed to any extent. In general, this plan envisions Interior as the Government's conservation department.

PUBLIC WORKS: Plan No. 2 would recast Interior as a Department of Public Works—a plan that would put it in charge of most Government construction. Under it, the department would lose Fish and Wildlife and the Bureau of Land Management to Agriculture, but it would take over much of the Federal Works Agency and some of the construction activities of the Army Engineers. FWA, as it's now constituted, would go out of existence.

POWER: A third suggestion, which hasn't received serious study, would centralize the Government's public power agencies in Interior.

REMINGTON CASE: Elizabeth Bentley, the self-styled Communist spy queen, has only a short time to decide whether to appear before the Civil Service Loyalty Review Board on the loyalty case against William W. Remington, the suspended Commerce official.

Her deadline to make an appearance will be up this week. If she again refuses to appear, the board will hand down a decision in the Remington case.

Miss Bentley is the only person who has accused Remington, and he denies her charges. She's reported to have turned down four different invitations to appear before the board to press her charges and to allow herself to be cross-examined on her charges.

FSA: G. Lyle Belsley is the new commissioner of special services for the Federal Security Agency. He succeeds Mrs. Jewel Swofford, who will go to Phoenix, Ariz., to study FSA programs as they affect Indians on Federal reservations.

Under Belsley's administration will be the Food and Drug Administration, Office of Vocational Rehabilitation, Bureau of Employes Compensation and Employes Compensation Appeals Board. He has held several top Federal posts, the most recent as secretary of the National Security Resources Board.

ARMY: AFL's American Federation of Government Employes has sent a stiff protest to Army on its civilian personnel practices.

President James G. Yaden charged that ceilings have been placed on the number of employes in grades CAF-9, P-3 and above in the department, a condition, he says, that's working a definite hardship on both the Army and its civilians.

The union leader says employes have had to be downgraded arbitarily and others frozen in their jobs to keep the department within its ceilings.

"This restriction is, in many instances," Yaden said, "forcing the agencies to violate the Classification Act by compelling them to use employes on work determined by the Civil Service Commission to be of a higher grade than the grade in which they are now working."

Yaden explained that neither the Navy nor the Air Force had placed restrictions on its middle and upper bracket jobs, and he charged that the Army was discriminating against its employes.

APPROVED: The House yesterday acted to give relief to some of its former employes. It voted to amend the Congressional Reorganization Act to permit congressional staff members to take jobs in the executive agencies at any time.

The law now forbids staff members from taking jobs in the executive branch for two years after they leave Capitol Hill. But with the ax falling on staff members now that the Democrats are back in control, the amendment will make it easier for them to land jobs.

SLUMP: Federal employment here in December slumped about 1000, according to a Civil Service Commission estimate. In the executive branch as of January 1, the commission counted 210,600. However, the decline in the executive branch was more than offset by an expansion in the legislative branch.

PAY STRATEGY: Swift action on the District-Foreign Service-executive pay raise bill was being planned last night. This is the strategy: to get the bill reported out of the O'Conor subcommittee tomorrow; to get it approved by the full Civil Service Committee next Tuesday, and to get it up on the Senate floor a week from today. The bill would give $330 raises retroactive to last July to Foreign Service and classified District employes and raise the salaries of Federal executives.

House Units To Expedite D. C. Budget

Subcommittee Calls Fowler to Meeting; Early Action Sought On Revenue Measure

House District Committee leaders drove on two fronts yesterday for an early solution of the District's financial troubles.

A newly formed subcommittee headed by Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) summoned District Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler to a Capitol conference set for 2 p. m. today to discuss the problem of finding more money to run the city.

Smith's group met yesterday immediately after its membership was announced at the first meeting of the House District Committee. Smith made it clear he would seek early action on revenue legislation in which a sales tax for the District is slated to have high priority.

Meanwhile, the House District Appropriations Subcommittee, headed by Representative Joe B. Bates (D., Ky.) launched a program of all-day hearings to expedite early adoption of the District budget for the fiscal year starting July 1.

District Commissioners and their fiscal aides testified to Bates' group in closed session about their proposed 103-million-dollar city budget. The city officials, it was understood, reemphasized their belief that 2 per cent general retail sales tax would be the first necessary step toward solving the District's revenue needs.

Their budget total now exceeds available expected revenue from existing law by some eight million dollars. They want the sales tax to fill that gap. Bates told reporters the revenue question was one for Representative Smith's group to handle; adding his own aim, is to wind up work on the budget by February 12.

Smith told his subcommittee he plans to confer with Bates to seek closer liaison between their two groups, and Bates said he would welcome such a conference.

Smith commented it was a "terrible thing in our system that there is no relation between the committee that raises the money and the committee that spends it."

Serving with Smith and Bates on the Fiscal Affairs Subcommittee will be Representatives Oren Harris (D., Ark.), Robert E. Jones, jr. (D., Ala.), Paul C. Jones (D., Mo.), Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.), and Henry O. Talle (R., Iowa).

Meanwhile, three Republicans were assigned to serve with the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee in charge of the District budget. They are Senators Milton R. Young (R., N. Dak.), Clyde M. Reed (R., Kans.) and Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.).

District Sales Tax Backed With Reservation

The Citizens Association of River Terrace last night approved a District sales tax with three reservations. The association met in the River Terrace Church, Clay st. and Anacostia ave. ne.

Approval was voted only if personal property and income taxes be repealed and if the Federal Government increases its contribution to the District to a "proper proportion."

The group also opposed the seating of former presidents of the Federation of Citizens Associations, no longer delegates from member units, as delegates at large; indorsed Mrs. E. M. Nelson for the Board of Education, and recommended immediate razing of a frame building at 36th st. and Benning rd. ne., which has been condemned to allow for 36th st. to be cut through the area.

Congressman's Widow Wins Zoning Appeal

The District Board of Zoning Appeals yesterday approved an appeal by Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, widow of New York's late Congressman, to permit conversion of an apartment building at 1813 F st. nw. to a garden-type apartment structure.

Mrs. Bacon appeared before the board at a public hearing in the District Building to ask for permission for a variance from the open court and division walls provisions of the zoning regulations on the building, which is owned by her.

Furrier Wins In Fight for Citizenship

A 59-year-old furrier knelt yesterday and kissed the floor of District Court when he won a 40-year fight to be recognized as an American-born citizen.

Courtroom spectators sat silently as Olivio Kovary of New York City muttered a prayer of thanksgiving.

It meant Kovary had proven his claim that on November 4, 1890, he was born in Baltimore, Md., although there were no official records at the time to prove it.

At the age of 1, Kovary was taken by his parents to Bratislava, now Czechoslovakia, but then part of the Austro-Hungarian Empire.

In 1909, after his parents died, Kovary began his long struggle to be called an American. He had officials here search for his birth

In 1913, Kovary said, he protested going into the Austrian army, but two gendarmes took him bodily. Self-induced illnesses resulted in his discharge four months after induction.

In 1939, Kovary, a Jew, filed through Romania and to this country as a Czech quota immigrant. He could have become naturalized, he said, but he felt he was entitled to be known as a native American.

His two sons served in the American Army during World War II, he testified.

He finally obtained sufficient proof of his Baltimore birth, and Judge Alexander Holtzoff ruled he had proved if there was any oath of allegiance to Austro-Hungary, it was invalid because of force and duress.

Group Favors Liquor Sale to 2 A. M. Sunday

The Federation of Business Men's Associations last night proposed that "on sale" liquor establishments be allowed to serve liquor until 2 a. m. Sunday mornings as a method of combatting "after-hours clubs."

Acting on a recommendation of Jerome Theodore, chairman of a committee set up to investigate the after-hours clubs, the association directed its legislation committee to take appropriate action to encourage amendment of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act to extend the hours.

Under the present law, Theodore said, the District commissioners can adjust the hours that beer can be sold, but congressional legislation is required in the case of liquor.

In making his recommendation, Theodore, who is a member of the Washington Liquor Retailers Association, said the after-hours clubs are an outright attempt to circumvent the present liquor laws and provide no revenue for the city. The investigation by his committee shows, he said, that most of the business done by after-hours clubs occurs after midnight Saturday.

The association also appointed a committee to determine whether the Federation approves home rule for the District, if so, under what plan.

President Benjamin Striner told the meeting the federation had been ignored by Corporation Counsel Vernon West in its request for a conference on sales tax plans but would pursue the subject with the Commissioners and members of Congress.

Taft Swimming Pool Project To Be Investigated

The Burroughs Citizens Association last night appointed a committee to investigate proposed construction of a swimming pool at the Taft Junior High School and to report at the March meeting.

Heated opposition to the pool was expressed at the meeting held in the Taft School, 18th and Perry sts. ne.

The discussion arose as a result of action at an executive meeting in which the association approved a site for the pool. In answer to opponents of the pool, Mrs. Henry A. Bartlett, who attended the executive meeting, explained that the group was given only the choice of approving one of two sites by a representative of the Board of Education, who told of plans for the pool. The group was not given the privilege of disapproval of the project, she said.

Opposition centered on the segregation question. Frederick G. Long, spokesman for the opponents, contended it would be impossible to keep Negroes from using the pool as the indicated site "is partially on Federal property." Long was named to head the investigating committee by President Robert M. Burrows.

Herman Riley, regional director for the Recreation Department, said the pool is only in the planning stage.

E. Cleveland Giddings, vice-president of the Capital Transit Co., explained the bus schedule on the F-2 line which serves the area.

Court Orders Trial in Sale Of Mayflower

Court of Appeals Reverses Decision Against Minority Stockholders Group

The United States Court of Appeals yesterday ordered a trial to determine if fraud was involved in the sale of the Mayflower Hotel to the Hilton hotel chain in 1946.

In a unanimous decision, the Appeals Court sharply reversed a District Court ruling in October, 1947, which dismissed complaints brought by a group of minority stockholders.

These minority stockholders had been similarly rebuffed once before, when their suit was thrown out of District Court the previous May.

The suit was brought by the Mayflower Hotel Stockholders Protective Committee, on behalf of owners of more than 6500 shares of stock in the hotel corporation.

They charge there was a conspiracy to defraud them in the sale of the hotel's controlling stock by Donner Estates, Inc., to the Hilton Hotel Corporation; that there were efforts to induce them to sell their stock at a "manipulated price," and that the conspiracy involved operating the 1039-room Mayflower for the primary benefit of the Hilton corporation.

Defendants in the suit are the Mayflower Hotel Corporation and the Hilton Corporation, certain of their officers, and the Donner Estates.

The Court of Appeals, in an opinion written by Judge Bennett Champ Clark and concurred in by Judges Henry W. Edgerton and Wilbur K. Miller, declared:

"We are of the opinion that the management contract, considering all the circumstances, particularly the majority ownership of Hilton, raises a presumption of fraud, rebuttal to be sure, but which requires the appellees to go forward with proof.

Large Fees Cited

"On its face, it would seem, through the provisions that a very large fee based on the gross receipts of the business would be taken whether the corporation actually made profit or not, that it would be possible for the majority stockholder, that is to say, the Hilton corporation, to completely milk the (hotel) corporation by the simple device of paying itself enormous management fees and refusing to pay dividends on common stock of the corporation."

Justice Alexander Holtzoff dismissed the suit in October, 1947, and it was his order which the Appeals Court reversed yesterday. The previous dismissal in District Court was ordered by Justice Richmond B. Keech.

While both lower court judges acted because they said the complaint failed to state grounds on which relief could be granted, the higher court said yesterday that the complaint stated "several causes of action."

The minority stockholder group charges that as a result of the alleged conspiracy, the Hilton chain which operates 14 hotels across the country, secured control of the Mayflower involving property and good will valued at 12 million dollars for an investment of some $2,600,000 when it purchased the Donner stock.

Principal Defendants

Principal defendants named in the charge are C. N. Hilton, president of the Hilton firm, J. Clifford Folger, former president of the Mayflower corporation and a member of its board of directors; Joseph P. Binns, executive vice president of the hotel corporation for Hilton; John Stewart, head of Donner Estates and a former official of the Mayflower corporation, and C. Kenneth Baxter, of the Donner Estates, who is now a member of the hotel's board of directors.

The Court of Appeals, in its opinion, found nothing in the allegations upon which three of the 18 defendants "should be held to answer," and said dismissal of action against them was "entirely proper."

Three Defendants Named

Those three named are Harold Baxter, Raymond McGrath, and William L. Beale, all formerly on the board of the Mayflower Corp.

The petitioners charge that in 1945, an offer to purchase the Mayflower for nine million dollars was withheld from the stockholders, and this would have brought about $18 a share of stock, they said. When Hilton gained control he tried to buy up outstanding stock at $13 a common share, asserting he would pay the same price he paid for his controlling interest.

At the time the original suit was brought, an attorney for the defendants, Nelson T. Hartson, termed the charges "baseless and unwarranted," and "simply the expression of the disappointment of a few disgruntled stockholders . . ."

High School Seniors' Graduation Day

THE AWAITED DAY—Two of the 743 District high school seniors who graduated yesterday, pretty Joan Archambault, 18, of 4713 Chesapeake st. nw., and Harold Williams, 17, of 6538 Maple ave., Chevy Chase Md., receive their diplomas at Woodrow Wilson High School from Principal Thomas J. Holmes (left) and Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education. Graduation exercises were held for 1691 public school students at 19 junior and senior high schools. The high schools were Anacostia, Coolidge, Central, Eastern, McKinley, Wilson and Dunbar. Junior highs were Central, Gordon, Hine, Jefferson, Kramer, Langley, Macfarland, Paul Stuart, Banneker, Browne and Garnet-Patterson

Woman Juror Says She Erred On Conviction

Beautician Says She Misunderstood Rules in Pro-Wallace Dance Case

A 26-year-old beautician described a change of heart to Municipal Court Judge Aubrey B. Fennell yesterday, one week after she had served on a jury which convicted five men of illegally selling whiskey.

Mrs. Anne P. Mallory, 1245 Irving st. nw., told the judge she had not understood the alternative verdicts available to her in the case of five men arrested at a Pro-Henry Wallace dance in October.

Judge Fennell took under advisement until Monday a motion for a new trial for Sidney Goldreich, 25, 3812 Florence dr., Alexandria, Va., Winston C. Edwards, 30, 2914 Sherman ave. nw., Walter E. White, 23, 1333 49th st. ne., Winfield Shirley, 23, 2327 Virginia ave. nw., and Bernard C. Campbell, 26, 1007 15th st. se.

Mrs. Mallory said that she came to Municipal Court Tuesday intending to see whether the defendants had been sentenced. She said she met there Julius A. Lee, a student in the office of defense attorney Leon A. Ransom. She said she told Lee the story, and it was then that she gave an affidavit.

In her affidavit, Mrs. Mallory said she had understood she could either find all the defendants guilty or all of them not guilty. She said she did not know she could find some guilty and some not guilty. She said two other jurors had the same misunderstanding.

While she was wavering in the jury room, she stated another juror had said "the good defendants must suffer with the bad."

Mrs. Mallory said "I feel badly about convicting two people I feel should not have been convicted.

Goldrich, Edwards and two others were previously convicted on January 5 and fined $50 for holding a whisky raffle in Laborer's Hall, 523-525 New Jersey ave. nw. on October 10, when 35 policemen raided a dance sponsored by the United Negro and Allied Veterans and Veterans for Wallace.

Trial Set Feb. 9

New Delay In Patterson Case Ordered

Another postponement in the trial of the Patterson will contest was ordered yesterday, with the trial date advanced from February 2 to February 9.

District Court Judge Alexander Holtzoff signed the postponement order, which also changed the pretrial hearing date in the case, from January 28 to February 4.

Yesterday's change in dates was made with the consent of all parties concerned, according to the order, and grants additional time for trial preparation in the challenge of the will of the late Eleanor M. Patterson, owner-publisher of the Washington Times-Herald.

Pretrial questioning of several witnesses, previously scheduled for yesterday by attorneys for Mrs. Felicia Gizycka, daughter of Mrs. Patterson, who instituted the suit to break her mother's will, was postponed to an unannounced date.

Liquor Permit Hearings Open

Hearings opened yesterday on the application of the Dunbar House, 2007 15th st. nw., for a Class C liquor license.

Witnesses favoring issuance of the license by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board said they felt "the largest Negro hotel in Washington" should be permitted to serve drinks with meals.

Capt. Albert I. Bullock, of Thirteenth Precinct, said conditions in the hotel neighborhood have "improved greatly" since last August.

At that time, it was brought out, the ABC board refused to transfer a Class D liquor license from the Tavern, Inc., near the U st. entrance to the hotel, to the lunchroom of the Dunbar House. Although the Tavern had been closed since the previous April, the request was denied on the ground it might have created unnecessary noise in the vicinity.

Lawrence S. Larry, president of the Midway Civic Association, appeared yesterday to protest issuance of the license. His group opposed it, he said, because it "might cause more disturbance and noise in the neighborhood."

Several neighborhood property owners said they opposed the request because "the noise might depreciate the value" of their property.

Hearings will be resumed at 10 a. m. today.

Snow-Clearing Dispatch Unit To Be Set Up

Radio System Located In Municipal Center Will Speed Removal

Plans for a city-wide radio system for dispatching sanitation, sewer, water and highway department trucks to snow-clogged arteries were made yesterday in the District Building.

Assistant Engineer Commissioner L. E. Cox said officials of the District's Department of Vehicles and Traffic, Police and Sanitation have agreed to set up a snow-removal dispatch center in Room 1115 of the Municipal Center.

The center will have three purposes:

1. A radio receiver tuned to the police radio frequency will advise officials on trouble spots uncovered by police vehicles.

2. Press and radio will be informed by telephone of impassable and blocked-off streets.

3. Trucks of the cooperating departments will be dispatched by radio to needed areas.

As part of this program, Communications Supt. Herbert A. Friede is equipping four large, new sanding trucks of the Sanitation Department with radio sending and receiving equipment, and is adding radio and telephone equipment at the Municipal Center dispatch headquarters.

Among those present at the planning meeting yesterday were Inspector Arthur Miller of the Police traffic division, Traffic Director George E. Keneipp, Sanitation Director William A. Xanten, Cox and Friede.

Woman, 23, Dies Of Burns in Fire At Rooming House

Mrs. Grace Eicher, 23, critically burned in a rooming-house fire at 200 E st. nw. Tuesday night, died in Casualty Hospital at noon yesterday. Her husband's condition was listed as "serious."

The fire marshal's office reported the fire apparently started from a short circuit in a fuse box in a hallway closet on the second floor, directly adjoining the room occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Eicher.

Little fire damage but "considerable water damage to the building was reported.

A fire marshal inspector said the Eichers had received such severe burns because they apparently attempted to leave the building through the burning hallway rather than use the fire escape, which passed by the rear window of their room.

Hopes Voiced For Start On D.C. Slum Clearance

Marshall Heights Plan May Reach Congress in 6 Weeks, NCPPC Officials Say

High hopes that the first section of Washington's slum clearance plan may get under way in late spring or early summer were voiced yesterday by officials of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

In a conference following yesterday's session — first of the monthly two-day meeting—officials announced that if plans go according to schedule, the Marshall Heights redevelopment plan, which has No. 1 priority with city planners, should reach Congress within about six weeks.

The NCPPC will hold another public hearing on the plan next week, when leaders in Marshall Heights and other interested agencies may discuss its aspects.

Plans Are Outlined

Then, within two or three more weeks, the District Commissioners will reconvene their public hearing on the slum clearance plan. As soon as District and NCPP commissioners can correlate their thinking after these hearings, the plan will go to the D. C. Urban Redevelopment Land Agency for a final check, and then to Congress for action.

President Truman, in his budget message to Congress, said he would submit a budget item to cover the slum-clearance work as soon as the first section of the plan arrived in Congress.

Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), who introduced the bill authorizing creation of the land agency, said yesterday he thought the chances "should be very good" for early congressional authorization of funds for the work.

Support Is Promised

"I have looked forward for a long time to definite action on the part of the commission," he said. "There definitely should be something done in this field. We need the slum clearance. I will support this appropriation just as far as I can."

In other actions, the NCPPC yesterday announced it would oppose a rezoning to permit erection of 90-feet-high apartments on the Washington Gas Light Co. property in "Foggy Bottom."

Gen. U. S. Grant 3d (Ret.), commission chairman, said that when the 90-C zoning proposal is studied by the District Zoning Commission next week, NCPPC will propose instead that a 60-C classification be given the property. This would limit apartment building erection to a 60-foot height, or between five and six floors high.

Alternative Pointed Out

General Grant pointed out, however, that developers of the property could still build apartments to a 90-foot height under the NCPPC proposal, provided they comply with provisions of the zoning code which permit additional footage with corresponding building line offsets.

General Grant said the Commission yesterday also voted to "recommend against" a zoning proposal to ease restrictions on parking lots within restricted residential areas. The proposal would permit a parking lot within such areas if it is within 500 feet of a commercial area.

The Commission also voted against approval of a rezoning from A-40 (residential restricted) to C-90 of property on Wisconsin ave. in the Observatory Circle area. General Grant explained the commission action was based on fear that the proposed Whitehaven Parkway, running within this area, would be greatly increased in cost under the proposed rezoning.

Boy, 9, Shoots Lad Of 12 in Quarrel Over Comic Books

A 9-year-old boy shot his 12-year-old playmate in the abdomen yesterday with a semi-automatic pistol during an argument over comic books, police reported.

The victim, Joe Louis Pickard of 1521 5th st. nw., was rushed to Freedmen's Hospital, where his condition was undetermined last night.

Police said Eugene Copening of 1529 6th st. nw. and young Pickard got in a fight in front of 1601 5th st. nw. When Pickard refused to surrender some comic books to Copening, the latter ran home, returned with a Belgian-made Browning pistol with which he had "terrorized the neighborhood" and shot Pickard police reported.

Copening was sent to the Receiving Home, charged with assault with a dangerous weapon. Police said the gun belonged to the boy's stepbrother, Dennis Evans.

Irvine L. Lenroot, Ex-Senator, Dies

Irvine L. Lenroot, former Senator and former judge of the United States Court of Customs and Patent Appeals, died last night at his home, 2230 California st. nw., after an illness of two months. He would have been 80 next Monday.

Judge Lenroot served nine years in the House of Representatives as Republican member from the Eleventh Congressional District of Wisconsin from 1909 to 1918, and nine more years, from 1918 to 1927, in the Senate.

He was appointed by President Coolidge to the Anglo-American Conciliation Commission in 1927, serving until 1935. After leaving the Senate he practiced law in Washington until 1929 when he received his appointment to the bench. He retired in 1944.

A native of Superior, Wis., he attended George Washington, Temple and Ohio Northern Universities.

Judge Lenroot began his long political career in the Wisconsin Assembly, where he served three terms, beginning in 1901. He was speaker for two terms.

During his colorful political life, he broke with the late Senator Robert M. La Follette to support the Bull Moose Party of Theodore Roosevelt and reportedly spurned the vice presidency on the Warren G. Harding ticket, a move which ultimately cost him the opportunity to become president.

The final break with Senator La Follette came when Judge Lenroot supported United States entry into World War I. Subsequently he backed the World Court, a move which may have cost him his Senate seat in 1926 when he was defeated by Gov. John J. Blaine.

Judge Lenroot is survived by his wife, Mrs. Eleanore von Eltz Lenroot, whom he wed in 1943, and a daughter, Miss Katherine F. Lenroot, chief of the Children's Bureau of the Social Security Administration.

Funeral services are tentatively set for Friday at the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church.

Dr. Marshall's Rites Set Today At His Church

Funeral services for the Rev. Dr. Peter Marshall, Senate chaplain and pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, who died unexpectedly Tuesday at George Washington University Hospital, will be held at 11 a. m. today in his church. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

The funeral will be conducted by the Rev. Harry Bryan, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Bessemer, Ala., and the Rev. Dr. John S. Land, pastor of the St. Charles Avenue Presbyterian Church, New Orleans, La.

The family has asked that no flowers be sent in keeping with Dr. Marshall's desire for "simplicity," but added that any who wished to pay tribute to him might send contributions to a special fund to educate candidates for the ministry.

Tributes to Dr. Marshall continued to be received last night by the family from ministerial and other national figures.

In a letter of sympathy to Mrs. Marshall President Truman wrote:

"A great spiritual force is lost to the Senate and to our national life in the sudden passing of Dr. Marshall. May I offer you and all who mourn with you this assurance of heartfelt sympathy?"

Honorary pallbearers at the funeral today will include members of the Session of the Church. Pallbearers are: Lieut. Comdr. J. F. Davis, Samuel D. Daniels, Robert K. Dean, Walter Hildebrand, S. Jack Ingram, Erik Jensen, Lieut. Comdr. Harry Vincent, jr., and Thomas P. Wharton.

The Senate, the Columbia Historical Society, St. Andrews' Society and the Theta Sigma fraternity will be represented at the funeral.

F. D. Cronin, Wool Division Chief, 51, Dies

Francis Daniel Cronin, 51, chief of the wool division of the Department of Agriculture since 1945, died yesterday at his home, 8310 Connecticut ave., Chevy Chase, Md.

A native of Boston he attended public schools in Dedham, Mass., and Boston College, where he was awarded a bachelor degree of business administration in 1923. He received his Ph.D. in international trade and economics from Georgetown University in 1928.

After serving as an instructor and purchasing agent at Georgetown, Mr. Cronin joined the Resettlement Administration in October, 1935. He became research supervisor with the WPA in 1937 and joined the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in 1942 as field representative in Lincoln, Nebr.

Mr. Cronin worked as regional administrator with the Food Distribution Administration from April to November, 1943, at Des Moines, Iowa. He was regional director in New York City until October, 1945, when he was appointed chief of the wool division, Production and Marketing Administration, United States Department of Agriculture.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Frances G. Cronin, and two daughters, Joy and Natalie Cronin, of the Chevy Chase address, and a sister, Miss Ella Cronin, Dedham, Mass.

Lieut. Ereza

An infantryman in the 157th Infantry Battalion, Forty-fifth Division, Lieutenant Ereza was killed January 18, 1944, during a German attack in the Reipertsweiler Forest. He had been previously wounded in October, 1943.

A graduate of McKinley High School and George Washington University, he was employed as a business analyst by the Office of Price Administration before entering the service in October 1940.

He also is survived by a sister, Mrs. Luna Diamond, secretary to Senator Clinton P. Anderson (D., N. Mex.).

Reburial services also will be held Friday at 2 p. m. in Arlington Cemetery for Capt. Roy E. Baze, 34, Oklahoma doctor killed in France.

Capt. Baze was serving as a surgeon in the 509th Parachute Battalion in the southern France invasion at the time of his death. He served as staff surgeon of the Sixty-fourth Station Hospital at Oran, Africa, for one year before joining the paratroopers.

He is survived by his wife and son who live in Quincy, Ill., and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Baze, Oklahoma City.

Services Are Held For Pfc. Drehmel

Pfc. Melven F. Drehmel, 32, World War II casualty and son of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Drehmel, 4214 34th st., Mount Rainier, Md., was reburied yesterday in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Private Drehmel died June 5, 1945, in Garmisch Partenkirchen, Germany, as a result of burns suffered when he touched live wires along a railroad. At the time of his death he was assigned to the Headquarters of the 534th Coast Artillery Battery of the Seventh Army.

Besides his parents, he is survived by a sister, Mrs. Lillian Carey of the Mount Rainier address, and a brother, Eldon C. Drehmel, 3721 Perry st., Brentwood, Md.

Mrs. Mary Cain Baden

Requiem mass will be sung today for Mrs. Mary Cain Baden, 87, at 9 a. m. in St. Martin's Catholic Church North Capitol and T sts. Mrs. Baden died Tuesday at her home, 12 Seaton pl. ne.

The mass will follow prayers at Chambers funeral home, 1400 Chapin st. nw. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mrs. Baden was a Washington native and a retired Government employe with 30 years' service as a Treasury Department clerk. She retired 17 years ago. Her husband, the late William Baden, was an employe of Woodward & Lothrop.

Mrs. Baden, who was twice married, is survived by two sons and a daughter, E. Beverly Fauntleroy of Cincinnati, Ohio; Robert Fauntleroy, 3418 24th st. se., and Mrs. Anna M. Bocock, of Elgin, Ill.

She also leaves two brothers, Bernard Cain, 3540 Chesapeake st. nw., and Paul Cain, University Park, Md., and a sisters, Mrs. Anna Curtis of the Seaton pl. address.

Henry A. Brawner

Henry A. Brawner, 66, retired accountant for the Army-Navy Club, died Tuesday at his home, 3600 Macomb st. nw., of coronary thrombosis.

A native of the District, Mr. Brawner was educated in Washington public schools. He worked in the offices of the Parker-Brawner Lithographing Co. until about 1928.

At that time he joined the accounting staff of the Army-Navy Club, remaining there for 20 years, until his retirement in January, 1948. He was a member of the Washington chapter of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics.

He is survived by his daughter, Mrs. Henry Latterner of the Macomb st. address; three grandchildren, and two sisters, Mrs. John B. Smoot of McLean, Va., and Mrs. Ralph E. Daniels of Swampscott, Mass.

Funeral services will be held today at 2 p. m. in the Pumphrey funeral home, 7557 Wisconsin ave., Bethesda. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Refined Girl Loves Devoted Young Man Who Grew Up in Tough Environment That Marred His Manners; Her Friends Disapprove of Him

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am in love with a young man who also loves me devotedly, but he had the misfortune to grow up in a poor, tough neighborhood and he carries the marks of his rough environment—in appearance, speech and certain mannerisms.

And yet he is extremely intelligent, witty, enthusiastic and vital; also talented and sensitive, tender and understanding. We are much attracted physically and very compatible mentally, when we are alone. But when we mingle with my friends, there is a problem. And much as I love Bill, I don't think I could stand his family and many of his friends, who are just plain crude, without his wonderful qualities.

Close friends tell me, "You can do better than Bill." They say this sincerely, not maliciously; and they regard him as socially "impossible." Always before I dated college men and associated with persons of so-called refinement and it hurts when my friends treat Bill as inferior, and look askance at me for going with him.

Is it Possible to Polish Man?

THEY WONDER what I see in him, and I can sense the question even when nothing is said. I am becoming more and more defensive. Will I always have to put up with this? Or is there a way of helping Bill? I know we could be supremely happy if only he could be "polished" a bit.

He doesn't dress well and is practically penniless at present, but I honestly feel he has the ability to make something of himself. He says he wants to improve, but college is out of the question, as the work he likes doesn't call for it, and as I say, he has no money. Also, he didn't finish high school, as he had to support his parents.

I should hate to be always nagging at him about superficial things, and yet I am actually ashamed to tell people I am in love with him "as is." I am attractive and have always had lots of beaux, so it's not a case of snatching at a straw; but is there a chance for us to find happiness in marriage? Am I being weak, petty, and unworthy of his love? Please advise. L. B.

Why Is Smart Man Pennliess Today?

DEAR L. B.: Getting down to earth, you write from a city where jobs are plentiful, indeed, going begging for capable applicants; and where workmen's wages are at an all-time high. So why is this wonder-man Bill practically penniless at the moment? And what about his Army service, if he's old enough to marry? Didn't it open any doors, or pave the way, to higher education for him?

It seems to me you are dazzled by infatuation and reporting a vision that bears no resemblance to the actual Bill, when you say he is extremely intelligent, vital, sensitive, talented, etc.; because if he were all these things, he wouldn't persist like a dolt in artless crudities, if given a chance to study the behavior of "nice people" at first-hand. On the contrary, he'd learn fast, without coaching, in new surroundings.

Further, if Bill's essential personality were as engaging as you depict—witty, enthusiastic, chivalrous,—you may be sure that your friends would have something good to say of him; as, for instance, "A nice guy, but ——."

Inferior Partner Drags Other Down

IN ALL probability he is endowed with lusty male magnetism that has stormed your senses and addled your brain, to the point where you'd like to surrender to the attraction, and to justify the urge you are trying to imagine that he is generally qualified to be your husband; and yet you know he isn't. Thus at the core of your anxiety you are battling yourself,—and it just happens that your friends' concern holds up a mirror to your misgivings.

If you marry Bill, which I don't advise, you may expect to live at his accustomed level, since social differences of the sort described can only be "adjusted" to the limitations of the inferior party. With another such union in mind, the poet Tennyson sagely wrote, "As the husband is, the wife is; thou art mated with a clown and the grossness of his nature shall have weight to drag thee down." M. H.

How to Make Shrimp Norfolk

Your column has helped me in so many ways, but I've never found out how to make Shrimp Norfolk and Crab Norfolk the way they're served at a seafood restaurant in the 1700 block of Pennsylvania ave. and several other places in town. Do you know his secrets? E. L. F.

The proprietor of this restaurant very graciously revealed his way of making Shrimp Norfolk or Crab Norfolk. This is the way he does it: Place enough butter in a casserole to cover the bottom when melted and thoroughly heat the dish. Put the steamed shrimp, which has been shelled and cleaned, or the crab meat into the hot casserole. Sprinkle lightly with paprika to give it a golden brown color. Let remain for about five minutes in oven until it is "good and hot," then add as much dry imported sherry wine as you have butter. Add the wine only after the casserole and shrimp are thoroughly heated. Remove from oven as soon as wine is added and serve immediately. Dip butter-wine sauce over the shrimp or crab meat as it is served. If you wish, you can mix the shrimp and crab meat or use this same recipe substituting lobster meat for the shrimp and crab.

Is there anything that will remove scratches from a new set of silver-plated tableware? Apparently the maid washed the silver with kitchen cleansing powder, and there are small scratches all over the handles of the pieces. F. W.

You may be able to bring up the polish on the silver by having it professionally buffed at a metal refinishing firm or a jeweler's. If the scratches are so deep that they have cut through the silver plate, no process will entirely remove them short of having the pieces replated.

My new decor is modern and I have been given a hand-carved antique Italian table. The top of it is made like an inlay of many pieces of wood forming a floral design in the center. Unfortunately, the piece was not well cared for and pieces of the inlay are missing and the top in general is pretty much of a mess. Do you know anyone who could repair it reasonably, or is my idea of removing the top and replacing it with a shaped glass top more economical? Who could do the job of putting the glass on? B. K.

I would suggest you call some of the firms listed under "Furniture Refinishing and Repairing" in the yellow pages of the telephone book to get some idea as to the cost of repairing the table. When you have that estimate, call a firm listed under "Glass" which specializes in glass for furniture tops, for an estimate as to refurbishing the table that way. It may be that when the top of the table is removed, preparatory to placing glass on it, the surface would not be attractive enough to be covered by glass, thus requiring a new top. When you compare the cost of a new top, plus the glass, to having the inlay repaired and the table refinished, you may feel the latter is the best course. The refurbished table with inlay would probably be a more valuable and interesting piece than the plain-topped one.

Diet—and Exercise—For a Lovelier Figure

By Ida Jean Kain

What is your problem measurement, madam? According to the tape measure, which gives the unbiased facts about figures, the waist and hip measurements are likely to be most out of line. But in the mirror test, it's probably the measurement between—the stomach. Alas, this spreading middle measurement can blot out symmetry and spoil the all-over effect.

You don't have to put up with it! Here is a carefully worked out routine to exercise live tone back into those interlacing middle muscles so they can hold the vital organs in upright posture and quicken their power. You can recapture the sure, pure use of those figure controlling muscles and feel young again!

First take an exercise which encourages the organs to assume their normal, high position . . .

Position: Lying on back on floor, feet elevated to low bench or chair seat, arms down at sides.

IDA JEAN KAIN

Movement: Lift hips off floor to a straight line, flinging arms back on floor overhead. P-u-l-l. Bring arms back to sides as hips are lowered to floor. Repeat slowly 6 times, later 12, then 20. Relax . . .

The next exercise is easy, but the action must be consciously centered through the girdle muscles—otherwise the thigh muscles do the work.

Movement: Slowly move right leg away from left, out to side, heel on floor. Keep middle muscles contracted strongly and move leg slowly. Slowly move leg back to center and repeat with other leg. Perform six times with each leg.

Still on the floor, bend knees, keep soles of feet on floor, and relax in this position. Then from same position, raise hips just slightly off floor and swing over to one side, tilting the hip upward as you pull forcibly up and in with the girdle muscles, contracting the big hip muscles. Swing back to the other side, tilting that hip upward. Repeat 10 times.

One more . . .

Position: Lying on back, left knee bent, foot on floor, right leg straight down. Girdle muscles must be pulled forcibly up and in and held contracted throughout exercise.

Movement: Slowly raise and lower the right leg to right angles, slowly lower. Repeat 10 times; perform with the left leg, making sure to have right knee flexed and foot on floor.

To get the most out of these exercises, hold onto that up-and-in pull in sitting, standing and moving. Don't try to hold your stomach in—hold it up and in. That gives the whole figure a lift.

World Government 'Fantastic,' Patriotic Women's Group Told

By Nicha Soure

STRESSING the difference between a world organization and a world government, Mrs. William A. Becker said yesterday that the advocates of world government have not considered who would be the head of such a superstate.

Calling a world government an "impractical and fantastic scheme," Mrs. Becker told the National Society of Patriotic Women of America that "we want a righteous peace, not a peace at any price." The society met for a luncheon-meeting in the Mayflower Hotel.

Cautioning the society members against socialized medicine, Mrs. Becker stated that a "slave state comes about under the subtle word of welfare."

Federal aid to education, which its advocates say aids States who don't have the money, in reality takes the money away from the States, Mrs. Becker insisted. As an example, she told of a State that would give two million dollars to the Federal Government and have only $720,000 sent back. In a few cases, the States would have more to spend on education, but not in the majority of States, according to Mrs. Becker. "The poorest school community is better than a Federal Government school," Mrs. Becker told the society members.

"Beware of giving up your heritage of freedom," Mrs. Becker cautioned. "Find out where you're going and how you want to go." She urged the members to write letters to their Congressmen and to their boards of education on the subject, always thinking and understanding the fire of our American tradition.

Following the talk of the national president, Mrs. John Axford presented a resolution indorsing the principles of "world organization" through sincere and open cooperation among nations, but opposing a "world government" with a supreme authority over all national governments.

NEW faces were in the majority at the luncheon yesterday at the Congressional Club. The occasion was the meeting of wives of the new Congressmen to organize the 81st Congress Club. Shown getting acquainted with each other are (from left), Mrs. James E. Noland of Indiana, Mrs. Clinton D. McKinnon of California, Mrs. Edward H. Kruse, jr., of Indiana and Mrs Paul C. Jones of Missouri. Following the luncheon Mrs. Noland was elected treasurer of the club; Mrs. Kruse, recording secretary, and Mrs. Jones, first vice president. The new president is Mrs. Andrew J. Biemiller of Missouri

Mrs. Biemiller Heads 81st Congress Club

IT WAS an overwhelming victory for the Democrats yesterday when wives of the new Congressmen elected officers for their 81st Congressional Club. At the luncheon meeting at the Congressional Club, 2001 New Hampshire ave. nw., wives of Democratic Congressmen were chosen for all posts except one.

Mrs. Andrew J. Biemiller of Wisconsin, whose husband regained his seat in the House after a two-year absence, was elected president. Also chosen were Mrs. Paul C. Jones of Missouri, first vice president; Mrs. John B. Sullivan, Mrs. souri, second vice president; Mrs. James E. Noland, jr., of Indiana, treasurer; Mrs. Edward Kruse, jr., of Indiana, recording secretary. Mrs. Gerald R. Ford, jr., of Michigan, who was elected corresponding secretary, is the lone Republican among the new officers.

Following her election Mrs. Biemiller appointed a program committee, including Mrs. Lyndon Johnson, chairman, and Mrs. John R. Sullivan, Mrs. Harold H. Velde, Mrs. Sydney Herlong, jr., Mrs. Clyde Doyle and Mrs. Foster Hurcolo.

Mrs. Albert Carter, wife of the former Congressman, who's been helping to organize congressional clubs for the past 25 years, addressed the meeting.

Sculptors' Art To Brighten Store Windows

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

DON'T BE SURPRISED next week when some of the city's classiest show windows burgeon with statuary. The idea is promoted by the Washington Sculpture Group, whose raison d'etre is to familiarize the average citizen with sculpture, show its decorative value in appropriate settings.

Forty-five sculptured objects will be displayed. Franklin Simon, for instance, will combine four wooden pieces with textiles; Brentano's will use a bronze horsehead to center books on sculpture; an inside Statler window will feature a cast aluminum gazelle head; there's to be a bust of "Pagliacci" in Campbell's Music store; International Business Machines will show off a modern bit; even the Palace Laundry is planning to mix art with linen.

The Washington Sculpture Group, founded two years ago, has 26 members, men and women, of widely varying national backgrounds. Among them is a waitress, a priest, an architect, several school teachers, ditto housewives. Almost all depend financially on some other occupation, but spend most leisure time on their avocation. They work in everything from ebony to quartz, from aluminum to marble and have achieved considerable acclaim at exhibitions. Jane Love organized the group, Katherine Sater, who deserted journalism and a job in Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts for sculpture, is executive secretary. Among the members are Maxim Elias, Clare Fontinini and Father Anthony Lauch.

WE SEEM TO BE up to our neck in such alien subjects as restoration, preservation, conservation. On the latter line, Fairfield Osborn, author of "Our Plundered Planet," is giving a "discussion accompanied by motion pictures," February 8, under the aegis of the Secretary of the Interior and the president of Washington's Carnegie Institute. "Fair" Osborn, who is president of the New York Zoological Society, the Conservation Foundation AND a brother of Mrs. Robert McKay, achieved the best seller ranks almost accidentally. He had worried for years about our vanishing natural resources, felt he had to jot down his anxieties; then, to his surprise, found it paid off handsomely in cash!

THE STATE DEPARTMENT'S Mrs. Ruth Shipley, whose verdict is final on all matters pertaining to passports, is noted for her passionate anonymity. Of all top Government officials, she is least known publicly and her photograph has rarely been printed in the local press. However, Mrs. Shipley, who is handsome, friendly, despite her awesome reputation, goes about quite a bit. This winter she's easily identifiable because of an unusual lapel pin! It's a 3-inch-long zipper bag, dangling from a miniature umbrella!

Honor Men to See Ice Capades

Congressional Medal of Honor winners will be spotlighted at the premiere of the Ice Capades this evening at Uline Arena. Proceeds of the first performance will go to the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club.

Those who will be introduced to the first night audience are Gen. Alexander A. Vandegrift, former commandant of the Marine Corps; Maj. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, famous wartime commander of the 101st Airborne Division; Brig. Gen. Pierpont Morgan Hamilton, intelligence officer of the North African Theater; Col. Thomas G. Lanphier, jr., commander of the 190th Fighter Squadron of the Air National Guard; Lieut. Comdr. Alexander Vraciu, member of Fighting Squadron 16, later Fighting Squadron 19; Lieut. Col. Frank C. Tharin, one of the famous Marine flyers who defended Wake Island in 1941; Comdr. Lawson P. Ramage, outstanding submarine commander; Lieut. Col. John C. Meyer, top scoring fighter pilot; Lieut. Col. Keith L. Ware, who fought in Africa, Sicily, Anzio, Southern France, Germany, Austria; Sergt. Thomas C. Fleury, platoon leader of a heavy machine-gun platoon.

A feature of the evening will be the singing of the National Anthem by Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Air Force.

Fashions For Short And Tall

UNUSUALLY short or tall women need no longer consider themselves a "size problem" when shopping for clothes. At least one New York designer has taken steps to ease their fashion woes by styling a spring collection designed to fit, without costly alterations.

The collection of "Martini Designed" originals was shown this week at Woodward & Lothrop's. Included were a group of "Diminutives," cut to fit the woman who is under 5 feet 5 inches; one make-up of regulation sizes; and one for the long-stemmed girl who measures up to 6 feet when wearing high heels.

This latter group, called "Tall Girl Clothes," is an innovation this season with the Martini film. The dresses have been cut to conform with a figure that is unusually long-waisted. Skirts and sleeve lengths have also been considered and the lines of the dresses designed to minimize height.

THE tall girl dress (left), is one of the group designed for girls who measure up to six feet when wearing high heels. Of navy and white polka dot crepe, it is cut with a long waistline and skirt that is long enough to please any long-stemmed beauty. Available in Woodward & Lothrop Misses' Department, around middle of February.

Miss Perkins Tells Theta Sigma Phi About U. S. Jobs

Miss Frances Perkins, Civil Service Commissioner, was guest speaker last evening at a dinner meeting of the Theta Sigma Phi Fraternity for women journalists at the Press Club.

Miss Perkins discussed the opportunity for women in Government writing positions, pointing out that about half of the 4200 information jobs in United States Government are held by women, at salaries ranging from $2500 to $10,330.

Most of the appointments are made at salaries from $3000 to $5000, she said.

Soroptimists Hear Warning On Communism

Communism is more prevalent in the United States than the average citizen realizes and he should be constantly on guard against accepting it in some "sugar-coated" form, the Soroptimist Club was advised yesterday at its luncheon meeting at the Willard Hotel.

The speaker was Shane MacCarthy, chairman of the current affairs committee of the Washington General Assembly of the Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus.

In his report on the "Progress of Communism Throughout the World," Mr. MacCarthy asserted that there are many forms of "camouflaged communism in this country. He urged the club women to "shirk off" their indifference and learn to recognize them.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Estelle Whiting, program chairman.

Blues Chaser

WE call this outfit the "Blues Chaser." That is just what it does—shoo the gloom out of your winter wardrobe which around this time of year seems as dull and uninteresting as last year's hat. A lightweight wool outfit, preferably i na soft pastel shade, is the best fashion pick-up we know of at this season. This one, with simple basic dress and plaid jacket, is made of wafer-weight worsted. Comes in combinations of beige and brown, and pink and brown. It is both becoming and practical, for it belongs to several seasons. The dress alone, or with the lined jacket, can be worn now under a fur coat. When warm spring days arrive it can be your best suit, or a pretty dress under a short spring topper. Available in the Sport's Shop at Erlebacher's

By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

FORMAL evening gown from the Martini group of regulation sizes is this one of pink beige taffeta and net. Highly styled, it sweeps to a slight bustle in back, is trimmed with large roses made of taffeta. May be ordered from Woodward & Lothrop.

IN FASHION circles they're gossiping about: Nylons that are "plasticized," and thus possess miraculous snag-proof properties.

Word of the new nylon strikes a chord of joy and hope in feminine hearts. Just think of it—sheer stockings that have a good chance of lasting longer than it takes to don a hagnagil through them! The experts claim that the new "plasticizing" process will reduce the snag hazard to a minimum. Nice news too, is that the processing has no effect on the stocking other than strengthening its resistance to wear. You'll find them at Brooks where a large and varied supply has just arrived. The cost? Same as for unprocessed nylons.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING BY MINIMUM WAGE AND INDUSTRIAL SAFETY BOARD ON FEBRUARY 10TH, 1949, FOR OFFICE AND MISCELLANEOUS OCCUPATIONS. The Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board of the District of Columbia, having, on January 11, 1949, approved the recommendations of the Office and Miscellaneous Occupations Wage Conference for minimum wages for women and minors employed in these occupations, as stated hereinafter, gives notice as required by Section 12 of the Minimum Wage Law that it will hold a public hearing at 8 p. m., THURSDAY, February 10, 1949, at the Municipal Center Building, 300 Indiana Avenue Northwest, at which time all persons who wish to speak on the recommended wage standards may do so. DEFINITIONS: (a) "Office and Miscellaneous Occupations" include all occupations in or for establishments not covered by any other wage order issued by the District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board. These occupations include, but are not limited to, such work as is performed by general office clerks, stenographers, typists, bookkeepers, cashiers, various office machine operators, office boys and girls, ushers, messengers, maids, cleaners, elevator operators, janitors, telephone and switchboard operators, teletype operators, receptionists, library workers, teachers, dental assistants, medical assistants and technicians, and laboratory helpers. EXCLUDED FROM THIS WAGE ORDER ARE ALL EMPLOYERS AND EMPLOYES now under other wage orders issued by the District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board, namely: (1) RETAIL TRADE OCCUPATION Minimum Wage Order; (2) PUBLIC HOUSEKEEPING OCCUPATION Minimum Wage Order; (3) LAUNDRY, DRY CLEANING AND DYEING OCCUPATION Minimum Wage Order; (4) BEAUTY CULTURE OCCUPATION Minimum Wage Order; (5) MANUFACTURING AND WHOLESALING OCCUPATION Minimum Wage Order. (b) "Employer" includes anyone acting directly or indirectly in the interests of an employer in relation to an employe in OFFICE AND MISCELLANEOUS OCCUPATIONS. (c) "Employe" means any woman or minor who is employed or permitted to work by an employer in OFFICE AND MISCELLANEOUS OCCUPATIONS. (d) "Minor" means a person of either sex under the age of 18 years. (e) "Hours of work" includes all time during which the employe is required to be on the employer's premises, or to be on duty, or to be at a prescribed place; and (2) a woman or minor is suffered or permitted to work, whether or not required to do so. Hours of work time includes, but shall not be limited to, time when the employe is required to wait on the premises while no work is provided by the employer and time when the employe is required or instructed to travel between the employer's workplaces, provided, however, that time allowed for meal periods within an employe's workday shall not be counted as working time. (f) "Wages" means unconditional payment in cash or by check of specifiable sum, except—that an employer may include as part of wages actually paid, such wages furnished or board, lodging or other facilities as are customarily furnished by him to his employes, provided that such wages are not considered unconditionally paid if the employe pays directly or indirectly to the employer or another person for the employer's benefit the whole or part of the monies delivered to the employe by the employer. (g) "Uniform" includes any garment, dress suit, apron, shirt, collar, cuffs, or head-dress, which is worn by a person as a condition of employment. It shall be a presumption that uniforms are worn as a condition of employment in any establishment if such garments are of a similar style, color or material, or form as part of the decorative pattern of the establishment, provided that, for the purpose of this order, clothing customarily worn for street wear or other wear outside the place of employment shall not be deemed to constitute a uniform. (h) "Voluntary absence" means an absence which is not designed or planned to evade the minimum wage standards. MINIMUM WAGE STANDARDS. No employe in OFFICE AND MISCELLANEOUS OCCUPATIONS shall be paid less than the following minimum wages and wage rates for working time: (a) All employes except those listed in subsections (b) and (c) below: Weekly wage rate: $31.00 for each week in which working time is 32 hours but not more than 44. Part-time rate: 86c per hour for working time of less than 32 hours in any week. Overtime rate: 86c per hour for working time in excess of 44 hours per week. (c) Maids and cleaners: Weekly wage rate: $29.75 for each week in which working time is 32 hours but not more than 44. Part-time rate: 86c per hour for working time of less than 32 hours in any week. Overtime rate: 86c per hour for working time in excess of 44 hours per week. (d) Minimum daily wage: An employe shall be paid for four (4) hours for each day on which she reports under general or special instructions, is given no work or works less than four (4) hours. The requirement to pay the minimum daily wage does not apply to (1) employes in bona fide learner status as full-time students, on days when school is in session. (e) Exception for conditions beyond control of employer: In case an employe, whose normal working time is 32 hours or more, is voluntarily absent in any week, the minimum weekly wage may be prorated for that week on the basis of the number of hours actually worked. REGULATIONS TO SAFEGUARD MINIMUM WAGE STANDARDS. (a) UNIFORMS—When the employe furnishes and launders her own uniform, an amount of $1.50 per week shall be paid in addition to the minimum wage required by this order. When the employe furnishes but does not launder her uniform, an amount of 50c per week shall be paid in addition to the minimum wage required by this order. When the employe launders but does not furnish her own uniform, an amount of $1.00 per week shall be paid in addition to the minimum wage required by this order. (b) COMMISSIONS AND PIECE RATE PAYMENT—Irrespective of the basis of payment used, whether time rate, piece rate, bonus or commission basis, the employe shall be paid not less than the applicable minimum wage each week. In computing the minimum wage, bonus or commission earnings shall be computed for the week in which they are earned and in no circumstances shall they be averaged for a longer period than one week. (c) NO DEDUCTION PERMITTED: No deduction, except as required by law, may be made from the minimum wage without special approval of the Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board. (d) TIPS—In no event shall tips or gratuities from patrons or others be counted as part of the minimum wage. (e) SPLIT SHIFT AND/OR SPREAD OF HOURS—An employe shall be paid 95c in addition to the applicable minimum wage for any day (1) in which the spread of hours exceed eleven (11), or (2) in which there is a split shift, or (3) in which both situations occur. For the purpose of this wage order, a single period of nonworking time of two (2) hours or less within a working day does not constitute a split shift. (f) APPLICATION OF ORDER—The minimum wage rates established by this order shall apply equally to all employes except those for whom student certificates have been issued, or those specially licensed as handicapped, by the Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board. Mrs. ALBERT W. ATWOOD, Chairman; J. C. TURNER, FRANK E. WEALE. Attest: CARRIE L. ALLGOOD, Executive Secretary.

Bids and Proposals 6

DRAWINGS AND SPECIFICATIONS for the construction of an addition and alterations to the Rockingham Memorial Hospital at Harrisonburg, Virginia, are available for distribution to general contractors by Clarence Wenger, architect, 219 South Main Street, Harrisonburg, Virginia. Applications from contractors interested in bidding on this work should be filed promptly with the architect, and the bidding material will be forwarded, shipping charges collect, as soon as possible. The architect will furnish to each bidder one complete set of drawings and specifications for a deposit of seventy-five ($75.00) dollars. He will furnish additional sets as requested, at a price of sixty-five ($65.00) dollars per set. All such documents must be returned to the architect promptly after the bidding. Any bidder, upon returning his original set promptly and in good condition, will be refunded his deposit of $75.00, and any subbidder upon returning such set will be refunded ten ($10.00) dollars. No refund will be made on more than one set to any bidder or nonbidder. Attention of prospective bidders is called to the Code of Virginia requiring the registration of contractors. Bid bond or other acceptable surety in the amount of two (2%) per cent of the bid is required with all bids. Performance bond and payment bond each in the amount of fifty (50%) per cent of contract will be required as condition of signing a contract. Bids will be opened at 10 a. m. What's the Verdict?

EVIDENCE

Q. In a criminal proceeding, the defense attorney asked a witness for the prosecution: "Were you arrested and tried for larceny in District Court last year?" Upon objection, the judge ruled that the question was not proper. Was the ruling correct?

A. One of the penalties under older law of conviction of a felony was to make the criminal incompetent to testify in a judicial proceeding. Statutes have done away with this disability, but the fact of conviction may be shown to affect the credibility of the witness. But there is a lot of difference between conviction and in simply being arrested and tried. Many persons have been "arrested and tried" without being found guilty. The question was properly excluded . . . F. L. D.

Friendless World

The world would be a sorry place . . . And soon would reach its end . . . If no one knew the happiness . . . Of having found a friend . . . For we would all be strangers in . . . A selfish atmosphere . . . With nobody contributing . . . Good fellowship or cheer . . . There would be no community . . . Of happy songs and smiles . . . We would not be concerned about . . . Our neighbor or the poor . . . And every illness great or small . . . Would be our own to cure . . . The world would be a lonely place . . . And reach an early end . . . If everyone ignored the rest . . . And no one had a friend.

He Can't Complain That Life Is Monogamous

Our theater listings have a certain appeal to readers with a sense of humor. Dort Kustritz of 1426 M st. nw. likes this one: "Warner—'John Loves Mary' . . . a comedy about a GI who gets his pal's gal Stateside by marrying her at 11:10 a. m.; 1:15, 3:20, 5:25, 7:35 and 9:40 p. m."

Asks District Liner Kustritz: "Don't you think the GI was overdoing it a bit?"

LATIN FROM MANHATTAN?

Thomas M. Scott of 3318 17th st. ne. is puzzled by a notice on the George Washington University bulletin board.

It announces forthcoming courses in 50 different languages, "all taught by native instructors."

QUICK, PROFESSOR—A SOOTHING LULLABY

Capital Transit's decision to play soothing music for its patrons via FM radio receivers was taken to secure additional revenues for the company.

However transit radio may prove to have a secondary effect—equally beneficial. It may help to placate irate customers like Elisabet M. Stone of 6225 Sligo Parkway dr. (who will be remembered as the founder of the Lizzy Stone League for the Abolition of Long Skirts). Liz writes:

"I've lived in several large cities, but only in New Orleans have I seen streetcars and buses lined up for blocks on end, as they are here. And the only reason you see this on New Orleans' Canal st. is because it has multiple tracks, used by many lines.

"Capital Transit is all wet in trying to blame its faults on the exigencies of traffic. The trouble starts at the terminal points, where cars and buses pour in, one right behind the other, and leave the same way.

"The other night I caught a Mount Rainier trolley at a transfer point. (This is the line that runs between Mount Rainier and Washington via China and Key West).

"I boarded the third car in a string that extended back over three blocks. The car was packed, and I stood all the way to the end of the terminal.

"The last car in the string arrived seconds after mine—and it was empty.

"And that's the way they started out again—all in a bunch. And if you miss a stream of cars, you wait 10 to 30 minutes for the next."

My only reason for printing Liz's complaint is that it's so colorfully stated. But I know it won't do any good, because I've already voiced the same beefs, and Capital Transit has always come back with the same reply: "We do our best, under the circumstances."

What their explanation boils down to is that if Capital Transit vehicles weren't slowed down by passengers, and if they didn't have to operate on crowded city streets, they'd keep to better schedules.

Dear Bill:

Why not suggest that folks who want to give away "magazines for reading, not scrap paper" offer them to hospitals?

I'm sure most of us can recall how bored we were when we were ill and had "nothing to read."

Gwen Firmin.

Dear Gwen:

Good idea—and I hope you've gotten rid of your own Virus X by now.

Personally, I never have any trouble finding reading matter when I'm ill. I go back over favorite books which I invariably read on such occasions.

I think they have a certain therapeutic value for me.

Charles Boyer built and supports the French Research Foundation in Beverly Hills. It has reference books on French history, architecture, costumes, literature, etc. Movie studios or citizens interested in research on France have found this to be a rare collection . . . During the war, Ludwig Bemelmans was assigned by the Army to prepare a GI booklet on "How to Behave in Paris." Bemelmans spent long hours at the foundation, checking through the books, like a true scholar. Boyer was curious about the manner in which Bemelmans had availed himself of his research collection. After the war, Bemelmans sent him one of the booklets: It was illustrated with cartoons and gave the GI's such warnings as "At first meeting, do not say to a lady, 'How about comin' up to my room?' and when you take a French lady to dinner, don't grope for her knee under the tablecloth."

Thomas J. Watson, head of International Business Machine, whose favorite word is "Think," just received the largest "Think" sign he ever saw, as a gift from his employes.

Milton Berle needed a walk-on for his television program, and finally hired one for $25. The next day an agent telephoned Berle and said: "How was the walk-on I found for you?" . . . "Fine," said Berle. "I paid him $25 for doing it" . . . "That's only $2.50 commission for me," said the agent. "You should pay me $5 more, for my expenses in the deal" . . . "$5 for expenses?" replied Berle. "What expenses?" . . . "I'm entitled to $5 expenses," said the agent, with typical agent's tabulation. "I spent $1.10 in cab fares to get him."

Barnaby

The PTA meeting was at Mrs. Adler's house at the other end of our road. She has a little boy who used to have an imaginary playmate too, John—
Yes? Like Barnaby's little man with wings?
Georgie's was an animal or something. But he doesn't see it any more. I asked Mrs. Adler to bring him over here to play with Barnaby for an afternoon—
Fine. He may help Barnaby get over his silly fantasy.
You say this Adler boy claimed he saw an imaginary creature?
What did the family psychiatrist do about his case, Barnaby?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Troubles Loom in Latin America

By Drew Pearson

While we are worrying about troubles in Greece, Turkey, Iran and the back door of Europe, trouble is increasing in our own front yard—Latin America.

PEARSON

Foreign Minister Carlos Hevia of Cuba stopped in Washington to warn President Truman about these troubles last week, but couldn't get in to see him. Too much inauguration. However, other Latin-American Ambassadors have talked to Truman prior to the inauguration and have received mixed reactions.

The President is worried about the increasing growth of Latin-American militarism, but in the case of Venezuela—which the United States recognized last week—he explained that we had to get along with the Venezuelan dictators because we had to get Venezuelan oil for Marshall Plan shipments to Europe.

Also Mr. Truman showed signs of peeve at his old friend, former President Gallegos of Venezuela for a statement made when he arrived in exile in Cuba to the effect that the Venezuelan revolt was the United States' fault.

Most Latin diplomats are inclined to agree that hasty United States recognition of the Peruvian military dictators did lead to the Venezuelan revolt. Nevertheless, Mr. Truman seemed considerably nettled over Gallegos' remark, even though he and President Gallegos traveled out to Bolivar, Mo., last year to unveil a statue of Simon Bolivar, and got to know each other quite well.

At any rate more trouble is brewing in Venezuela, where the military are already at each other's throats.

New Mexico Politics

The Governor of New Mexico met the senior Senator from New Mexico at Secretary of the Treasury Snyder's reception the other day. They were polite but not pleased.

Thereby hangs the story of an election reversal as unexpected as anything predicted by Dr. Gallup.

The Governor of New Mexico, big, popular Tom Mabry, is a Democrat. The senior Senator from New Mexico, dark, bushy-browed Dennis Chavez, is also a Democrat. But they do not love each other.

Reason: Chavez was certain Mabry would not be reelected Governor last November, staked everything that New Mexico would go Republican.

Furthermore, Chavez worked out a neat scheme whereby his brother Dave could be appointed to the United States Senate by a Republican Governor. Chavez, ill for some time, last fall did not expect to live. And he wanted his brother to take his place in the Senate.

Undoubtedly, Governor Mabry would have been willing to appoint Dave Chavez to the Senate, but Dennis Chavez didn't give him a chance. He assumed the Republicans were sure-shot winners, and that a Republican Governor, Manuel Lujan, would be in the saddle to do the appointing.

So Senator Chavez quietly let it be known he was for Lujan with the tacit understanding that Lujan would appoint Brother Dave to the Senate if Dennis passed away.

Then came the election returns. Governor Mabry fooled Chavez and was reelected. Obviously, he is not now going to appoint Brother Dave to the Senate. So a lot of people are betting that rather than have Mabry appoint his successor, Dennis Chavez will now fool the doctors.

Protecting Small Business

Hotly debated in Senate cloakrooms this week has been the question of whether the Senate Small Business Committee shall continue as an independent body or become a subcommittee under the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

One thing which the Eightieth Congress did well—despite all its other faults—was to operate a fearless, forthright Small Business Committee. This was due in part to the astuteness of its counsel, George Meredith, and in part to the rambunctious belligerency of Senator Wherry of Nebraska, who was loud and vocal in his championship of small business though his votes on the Senate floor sometimes were the other way.

Despite this good job, many Democrats want to merge the Small Business Committee—which has operated in its own right—and make it merely a subcommittee.

Part of this opposition is because the Small Business Committee has stepped on too many big-business toes. Part also is based on the fact that if the Small Business Committee remains independent, it will be dominated by kindly, able Senator Jim Murray of Montana, a highly respected statesman, but who is expected to appoint his son as counsel and operate as a one-man committee.

Chinese 'Face'

The exit of Chiang Kai-shek recalls a famous photo taken in the White House garden of Chiang's brother-in-law, T. V. Soong, together with President Truman, and the then Secretaries of State, War and Navy—Edward Stettinius, Henry L. Stimson and James V. Forrestal.

The photo was arranged by former braintruster Tom Corcoran, attorney for the Chinese Government, through his close friend, Forrestal, in order to strengthen Soong's hand in China and make it appear that he was the bosom friend of the President of the United States and his highest Cabinet members.

The photo worked wonders. "Face (we call it prestige) means everything in China, and Soong came back to Nanking ace-high with everyone. Also, it strengthened the position of Chiang Kai-shek. He and his family were considered to have the 100 per cent support of the United States.

It was at about this time that General Marshall went to China as Special Ambassador, and used all his persuasive powers to get Chiang to take other leaders into his government, form a coalition cabinet. But Chiang refused. He had various tokens, such as this photo, to make him think he stood well with Marshall's superior in Washington.

Such are some of the intricacies of Chinese diplomacy.

Note—Tommy the Cork is now one of the most active wire-pullers to keep in office Jim Forrestal, the man who helped arrange the miracle-working photo.
